What Good in Killing?

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 12. — In Paris, two sorrowful women, the mothers of Nungesser and his companion, Capt. Coli, weep and pray for their sons, lost on the ocean.

"Every week since my boy became an aviator," says Madame Coli, "I have gone to implore Our Lady of Legarde for him."

Hope that the men may return safely will last several days, even a week or two. A slow steamer or sailing ship without radio may have picked them up. The chance seems slight, but both men possess extraordinary courage and resourcefulness and may return, to attempt that ocean flight again. Nothing will stop either of them.

DR. RAYMOND PEARL, chief of Johns Hopkins university biological research, says New York city will have 28,765,000 population 70 years hence. How much do you suppose a corner will be worth then with three streets one above the other, and subway below the three.

The real New York city will be on Long Island. Manhattan will be a big business office with flying machines landing on roofs 200 stories high. The main local landing for trans-Atlantic planes will be at Montauk Point, with through planes going on to Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City. Every city an airport.

IN THE Snyder murder case there is something more important than a horrible story, with its sashweght, picture wire, chloroform and unlimited bootleg whisky.

The strange thing is the eagerness expressed by many, women and men, that the convicted woman and man should, without fail, die in the electric chair. Some apparently consider the approaching executions as a sort of victory for themselves.

WHAT good will those executions do? They will add one more horror to a horrible crime. Is it desirable, in the name of justice, that a woman, screaming and struggling, be strapped in the electric chair, put to death by a combination of law and science?

WALL STREET had a comfortable day, stocks selling at high prices, oil just a little feverish. There is more oil than the country can use, but too much is better than too little, and our 12 million automobiles, plus oil burning ships, locomotives and furnaces, will attend to that.

OLD philosophers suggested that as there are defectives united in the human family, murderers, maniacs, thieves, so there may be imperfect specimens among the billions of planets sailing through space. Ours seems to be a hysterical planet, with its wars, plagues, race hatreds, tornadoes, earthquakes, famines.

Fortunately it is still young ,and may be only a baby planet having fits, soon to be cured.

MAZER'S GIRL TESTIFIES FOR PROSECUTION IN MELLETT DEATH

Woman's Testimony Blow at Floyd Streitenberger's Defense.

CONFIRMS STORY

Canton Man Will Attack Evidence Given by Squealer.

CANTON, O., May 12.—Doll Carey, known as "Louie" Mazer's sweetheart, took the witness stand today and added her bit to the testimony, through which the state expects to convict Floyd Streitenberger, former Canton detective, of first degree murder for alleged complicity in the killing of Don Mellett, Canton publisher, here last July.

Thelma Harris on Stand.

The woman confirmed Mazer's story that Streitenberger came to her home the night preceding the murder, looking for Louis. Streitenberger and Mazer went into the kitchen, she said, to hold some sort of a conference, and then left the house, together.

Several days after the killing Streitenberger came back to the house to get a pistol that Mazer had left there, she testified. This gun, according to Mazer's story, was the revolver he had given to Pat McDermott, convicted slayer of the young editor.

Thelma Harris, an inmate of Doll Carey's house, also testified today. Her testimony was along the same line as that of the Carey woman.

Peggy Cavanaugh, Cleveland waitress, known as "Pat McDermott's girl, while the gunman was "hiding out" in Cleveland, was to take the stand this afternoon. The state will probably rest its case immediately afterward. Prosecutor Harter announced.

Lengel Defense Witness.

S. A. Lengel, ousted chief of Canton police, will be the first defense witness, according to attorneys for the defense.

Streitenberger's counsel has announced it will probably take two days to examine defense witnesses, which indicates the case may go to the jury Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

J. H. Robertson and Frank E. Bow, defense attorneys, declared today they would attempt to "tear down" the story of Mazer, jointly indicted for the Mellett murder, who occupied the stand for the state during the larger part of Wednesday's session. Mazer in his testimony, implied that the defendant, Streitenberger was the instigator of the plot to "beat up Mellett," which resulted in the assassination of the newspaperman. The most startling part of Mazer's testimony was his statement that the conspiracy was formulated "under the roof of police headquarters," and that a squad of police who followed the auto in which Streitenberger and himself were riding after the murder, "to pick up Pat McDermott," (now serving life for the crime), made no effort to stop the murder car and question the occupants.

The public is invited to attend.

POLICE SEARCH FOR RUNAWAYS

The boys were traced as far as Toronto. They are believed to have been headed toward East Liverpool. Both youngsters wore light suits but had no caps. The Linn boy wore short pants while his companion had long trousers.

CHIEF EFFORT OF FLOOD RELIEF MACHINERY NARROWS DOWN TODAY TO 21 SMALLPOX PATIENTS

BATON ROUGE, La., May 12.—The chief effort of the $10,000,000 Mississippi flood relief machinery narrowed today from hundreds of thousands of homeless to twenty-one smallpox patients.

A battered old river steamer shoved into the Red Cross camp at Harrisonburg, Catahoula parish, last evening with twenty-two refugees from Dailey's Landing. All were whites. Twenty-one had smallpox.

They had been rescued from the second floor of a farm dwelling 150 miles up the Beouff river, where they had been marooned for ten days. There had been sufficient food, but nothing else. Medical supplies were beyond miles of muddy water. All sanitary facilitie were lacking.

Airplanes Carry Serum.

Today the sorry little band is attended in the pine forests at the tip of the Bayou Macon Hills, where an isolation camp is in readiness for all others from the same district whom the rescue armada of stricken Louisiana can round up. The entire community about Dailey's Landing will be rushed, post haste, to Harrisonburg.

Airplanes took off from Natchez at day break to carry serum to camp. Everyone rescued along the northern reaches of the Beouff and its tributaries will be isolated for weeks. Everyone in Harrisonburg will be inoculated.

Although there are three refugee camps in the Harrisonburg district, caring for approximately 2,000 refugees, Red Cross medical officers believe that immediate isolation of the new arrivals has curbed the probabilities of a devastating epidemic of the dread disease.

Red Cross Work Finds Refugees.

Dailey's Landing is in Franklin parish, in the north end of the state, the section which has been under water for alomst two weeks from the Arkansas overflow.

The stricken knot of refugees was discovered by Miss Winifred Callahan, a volunteer Red Cross worker, who flew from Harrisonburg to Natchez in a navy seaplane to prepare the concentration center there for its last great fight. Today she flew back with thousands of tubes of vaccine. Miss Callahan has been connected recently with civic welfare organizations in Cleveland, Ohio. Her home is in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Armed guards patrol the Harrisonburg isolation camp. When the rescue boat arrived doctors recognized immediately that the desolate cargo were afflicted with some contagious disease. No one was permitted aboard. National guardsmen took up a twilight vigil against new disaster in flood staggered Louisiana.

Cope With Another Disaster.

While smallpox threatened new havoc in northern Louisiana, sand boil in the main channel levees increased the tension throughout the southern half of the state, which has been keyed for days for a break in the bayou Des Glaises levees in southern Aveyelles parish.

"The water behind this last barrier of the flood have been rising six inches a day for the last three days.

MAZER'S GIRL TESTIFIES FOR PROSECUTION IN MELLETT DEATH

Woman's Testimony Blow at Floyd Streitenberger's Defense.

CONFIRMS STORY

Canton Man Will Attack Evidence Given by Squealer.

CANTON, O., May 12.—Doll Carey, known as "Louie" Mazer's sweetheart, took the witness stand today and added her bit to the testimony, through which the state expects to convict Floyd Streitenberger, former Canton detective, of first degree murder for alleged complicity in the killing of Don Mellett, Canton publisher, here last July.

Thelma Harris on Stand.

The woman confirmed Mazer's story that Streitenberger came to her home the night preceding the murder, looking for Louis. Streitenberger and Mazer went into the kitchen, she said, to hold some sort of a conference, and then left the house, together.

Several days after the killing Streitenberger came back to the house to get a pistol that Mazer had left there, she testified. This gun, according to Mazer's story, was the revolver he had given to Pat McDermott, convicted slayer of the young editor.

Thelma Harris, an inmate of Doll Carey's house, also testified today. Her testimony was along the same line as that of the Carey woman.

Peggy Cavanaugh, Cleveland waitress, known as "Pat McDermott's girl, while the gunman was "hiding out" in Cleveland, was to take the stand this afternoon. The state will probably rest its case immediately afterward, Prosecutor Harter announced.

Lengel Defense Witness.

S. A. Lengel, ousted chief of Canton police, will be the first defense witness, according to attorneys for the defense.

Streitenberger's counsel has announced it will probably take two days to examine defense witnesses, which indicates the case may go to the jury Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

J. H. Robertson and Frank E. Bow, defense attorneys, declared today they would attempt to "tear down" the story of Mazer, jointly indicted for the Mellett murder, who occupied the stand for the state during the larger part of Wednesday's session. Mazer in his testimony, implied that the defendant, Streitenberger was the instigator of the plot to "beat up Mellett," which resulted in the assassination of the newspaperman. The most startling part of Mazer's testimony was his statement that the conspiracy was formulated "under the roof of police headquarters," and that a squad of police who followed the auto in which Streitenberger and himself were riding after the murder, "to pick up Pat McDermott," (now serving life for the crime), made no effort to stop the murder car and question the occupants.

Eagles' Fish Fry In Lodge Temple On Friday Night

The public is invited to attend.

POLICE SEARCH FOR RUNAWAYS

Police today were asked to be on the lookout for James Linn, 14, and Earl Patterson, 14, Steubenville, runaways, who left their home yesterday.

The boys were traced as far as Toronto. They are believed to have been headed toward East Liverpool. Both youngsters wore light suits but had no caps. The Linn boy wore short pants while his companion had long trousers.

CHIEF EFFORT OF FLOOD RELIEF MACHINERY NARROWS DOWN TODAY TO 21 SMALLPOX PATIENTS

BATON ROUGE, La., May 12.—The chief effort of the $10,000,000 Mississippi flood relief machinery narrowed today from hundreds of thousands of homeless to twenty-one smallpox patients.

A battered old river steamer shoved into the Red Cross camp at Harrisonburg, Catahoula parish, last evening with twenty-two refugees from Dailey's Landing. All were whites. Twenty-one had smallpox.

They had been rescued from the second floor of a farm dwelling 150 miles up the Beouff river, where they had been marooned for ten days. There had been sufficient food, but nothing else. Medical supplies were beyond miles of muddy water. All sanitary facilitie[illegible] were lacking.

Airplanes Carry Serum.

Today the sorry little band is attended in the pine forests at the tip of the Bayou Macon Hills, where an isolation camp is in readiness for all others from the same district whom the rescue armada of stricken Louisiana can round up. The entire community about Dailey's Landing will be rushed, post haste, to Harrisonburg.

Airplanes took off from Natchez at day break to carry serum to camp. Everyone rescued along the northern reaches of the Beouff and its tributaries will be isolated for weeks. Everyone in Harrisonburg will be inoculated.

Although there are three refugee camps in the Harrisonburg district, caring for approximately 2,000 refugees, Red Cross medical officers believe that immediate isolation of the new arrivals has curbed the probabilities of a devastating epidemic of the dread disease.

Red Cross Work Finds Refugees.

Dailey's Landing is in Franklin parish, in the north end of the state, the section which has been under water for alomst two weeks from the Arkansas overflow.

The stricken knot of refugees was discovered by Miss Winifred Callahan, a volunteer Red Cross worker, who flew from Harrisonburg to Natchez in a navy seaplane to prepare the concentration center there for its last great fight. Today she flew back with thousands of tubes of vaccine. Miss Callahan has been connected recently with civic welfare organizations in Cleveland, Ohio. Her home is in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Armed guards patrol the Harrisonburg isolation camp. When the rescue boat arrived doctors recognized immediately that the desolate cargo were afflicted with some contagious disease. No one was permitted aboard. National guardsmen took up a twilight vigil against new disaster in flood staggered Louisiana.

Cope With Another Disaster.

While smallpox threatened new havoc in northern Louisiana, sand boil in the main channel levees increased the tension throughout the southern half of the state, which has been keyed for days for a break in the bayou Des Glaises levees in southern Aveyelles parish.

"The water behind this last barrier of the flood have been rising six inches a day for the last three days.

Chromium Plating Now Used by U. S. in Manufacturing Coins

The features that have made chromium plating attractive to motorists since introduction on Oldsmobile radiator shells during the past year are being put to work by the United States government in manufacturing money at lower cost. This ultra-hard plating is now being used to improve the protective surface of the plates from which our paper is printed. Its use has resulted in a substantial saving to the government.

Until recently the currency printing plates were made by rolling the design into a soft steel plate which was then case-hardened. These yielded from 30,000 to 70,000 impressions before the fine lines of the plate were spoiled by the abrasive particles of pigment in the inks and the heavy pressure used in printing.

Electrolytic plates composed of layers of copper and nickel were tried. These were cheaper to make but did not last as long. Then experiments were made with chromium plating. A report from the United Engineering society states that this plating, deposited on the nickel surface of an electrolytic plate in a film only two ten-thousandths of an inch thick increases the useful life of the plate at least four times that of a nickel surface and twice that of a case-hardened steel surface.

Tests made by the U. S. bureau of statistics of scratching chromium with a diamond show that it is the hardest metal thus far examined. It was the bureau that developed chromium plating methods for currency printing.

"DEVIL HORSE" STRAND FILM

Black Stallion Hero of Romance of West.

The entire population of the Crow Indian reservation in Montana worked for months in the Hal Roach production, "The Devil Horse," coming to the Strand theatre Friday and Saturday, as a starring vehicle for Rex, king of wild horses.

The princely black stallion is the hero of a romance of the early West, written from historical legend by Hal Roach and directed by Fred Jackman, with Rex, Lady, the Killer, Gladys McConnell, Yakima Canutt, Robert Kortman, Roy Clements and Jackman's son, Fred, Jr., in the cost.

Jackman went to Lodge Grass, Montana, scene of Custer's last fight several weeks in advance of the filming, and there met the leaders of the Indians in conference and made arrangements for the appearance of the entire tribe in the story. This does not mean that the Indians appear in a half dozen scenes or an atmospheric flash, but throughout the picture. They are the real Crow Indians—not actors made up in imitation of the braves.

The Indians found the making of motion pictures interesting and full of thrills for them. It is hardly necessary to remind the public, however, that the Indians of today, particularly these of the Crow reservation, are mostly college graduates and not primitive people unable to understand modern inventions. Yet the Hal Roach film troupe, found them all living in tepees, with blanket garb, just as their uncivilized forefathers lived. Many of them easily comprehended the workings of the camera used in taking scenes and other technical things, from their studies in school, but they wore the real Indian garb and gave no indication of a desire to change.

Floods And Booms

There is some talk now of the great Mississippi flood starting a business boom in this country. Theodore H. Price, a leading business analyst, explains the theory in a newspaper article, as follows:

"The dimensions of the extraordinary disaster have come to be appreciated and it is evident that the whole country will demand that its repetition shall be prevented. There is a feeling that the government will be compelled to spend at least a billion dollars in flood prevention work and that the expenditure of this great sum will increase the demand for everything, quicken the circulation of money and resuscitate the speculative movement that appeared to be languishing two weeks ago. How far this theory is warranted remains to be seen, but it is sustained by some precedents, and by its appeal to the imagination the decline in the stock market has been arrested."

Yes, it would liven things up generally in the business world, no doubt, if Uncle Sam undertook to spend anything like a billion dollars in flood relief and reconstruction. Many would welcome that. But let us not deceive ourselves about any business boom resulting from that sort of stimulus.

People with necessary materials to sell would profit. Manufacturers and middlemen would gain. Since everybody is a consumer, many consumers, caught in the various currents of prosperity set up by the circulation of so much money, would profit in some way or other. But the great mass of consumers would lose, in having to pay higher prices for their necessaries. And the whole public, whose money Uncle Sam spends, would have to pay it sooner or later in the form of taxes.

Whatever is destroyed is a dead loss. Replacement of lost goods, or reconstruction of a bad job, always has to be paid for. A great catastrophe, whether war or fire or flood, inevitably levies its toll first on the immediate sufferers, and then on all of the vast, interwoven social organization they belong to.

Only—and this is worth remembering—the moral and spiritual impetus gained in heroically setting to work to overcome a calamity sometimes carries people ahead so that in the end they are better off than they would have been without the calamity. That is the reward of courage.

The Prune Prize

The $50 prize offered by a California organization of prune producers for the best essay on prunes has been won by Miss Zoe Wolcott, the young lady who runs the cafeteria in the Kansas State Teachers' college.

Miss Wolcott, in her eulogy of the prune, explained how that humble fruit may be made so attractive and tempting that restaurant patrons will clamor for it.

Unquestionably that can be done, by any cook who uses culinary intelligence in preparing her prunes. And strange as some folks may consider this assertion, the same thing can be done with apple sauce and spinach, or almost anything else that is "good for you" but often spoiled in the cooking.

What most cooks, especially restaurant cooks, do to these wholesome and potentially delicious articles of food is a crime for which they should be sentenced for life to eat what they cook.

Now that a little more attention is being paid to the proper preparation of prunes and spinach, a friend of the apple in all its edible forms feels like making a plea for the redemption of apple sauce from its low estate.

Apple pie is probably the most popular food in America. Most pie-eaters eat apple pie not for the crust, but for what's in it. Why should cooked apple be any less delicious by itself than as pie-filler? It's all in the cooking. Let the experts apply their brain-power to this problem, and let the apple growers make it worth their while.

An Outdoor Club

A new type of club has been organized in Ashtabula, O. It is the Outdoor club, established by 100 residents of that city. They have dammed a small river and formed a 13-acre lake for fishing, boating and swimming. They have purchased a 1200-acre tract of land which is to be preserved for members and their children as a great playground.

Members drew choices for lots in the club preserve and are allowed to do whatever they want—within certain restrictions—on their own lots. One family, for example, may have a log cabin; another may go in for a miniature forest preserve. One member says he has 18 different varieties of native trees growing in his 40 by 80 "forest."

There will be children's plagrounds, facilities for boating, swimming, trap-shooting, rifle practice, fishing, tennis, baseball and just about everything except golf.

Golf is omitted simply because the members have other opportunities to play that game at near-by country or golf clubs. The Outdoor club is to meet hitherto unfilled needs. It is much like a great park, privately owned and controlled by a group of citizens who appreciate outdoor life and want to get it close to their homes.

If Sacco and Vanzetti had been tried for murder in some of our other states, they'd have been sentenced to life imprisonment, finished serving their terms and got out long before this.

PITY FOR THE UNSKILLED

The minstrel parade went swinging along where two husky individuals were assaulting the soil beneath the asphalt with picks, three feet below the surface and over on a side of the street. For the sake of novelty, let us respectively refer to these two industrials as Pat and Mike. They straightened their backs to watch the pageant pass.

Behind the band in the front file were the two proprietors and two highly paid end men. Then trailed a large and assorted company, all in showy parade costumes.

Said Patrick to Michael after the music had died away and they had laboriously resumed work:

"Twas a fine body av men."

"It was," commented his friend, "an' it's a pity that prob'ly not one av thim has a thrade."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 12. — Hundreds who tap oil in the backyard or otherwise, accumulate sudden wealth, trek to Gotham to splurge. The metropolis is considered an outlet for a swollen purse. There are so many ways here of thinning the bankroll.

To New York, these innocents are the new rich and they watch their amusing didoes with a slight lift of eyebrow. Jolly folks, but so bourgeoise, you know. They are legitimate prey for the dressmakers—who tell them casually of Mrs. Astorbilt buying 100 gowns at a clip.

Also for period furniture dealers, interior decorators, sellers of first editions, antique mongers and such. They begin quickly to learn of Rembrandts and Sezannes. To supplant "hired girls" with trim maids with French caps and manners of chilled steel.

Even the bootleggers are soon convincing them there are beverages a trifle more Corybantic than coffee. And Papa in no time has parked his scrap chewing tobacco in the ash can and has learned to select a rose-tinted cigarette from a jade bowl.

They learn rapidly — these newly rich. They want to get on socially and they do not question the price. Some of their antics are uproariously amusing. They tell of one, for instance, who had a silken rope looped from brass stanchions, like those at cafe entrances, at his dining room door.

Another acquired, a Gothic home with sweeping lawns and hedge copse. The lawns stood as epical tribute to the art of the landscape gardener. But the owner was not quite satisfied. It lacked a Frog Crossing touch. So he studied the lawn with iron deer and as an even added conceit had their antlers lighted by tiny electric bulbs at night.

Many of them, as a high life gesture, back a Broadway show. The original butter and egg man along the Rialto was a Kensan who awakened to find a hundred and ten barrel fortune gushing daily. New York may smile, but it would suffer greatly without them. They are the heaviest of all heavy spenders.

The most poignantly pathetic story of mother love instinct comes from a Jersey farmer. A mother bird had her nest in a haystack. The birdlings had just hatched, when fire broke out in the hay stack and afterward the farmer found the charred ashes of the mother bird with her wings stretched out over her brood. The story brought tears to one hard-boiled sinner.

One of those taxi drivers with an habitually abused look, sat static in his cab when I opened the door last evening.

"To the New Amsterdam theatre," I ventured.

"It's a short run. How much of a tip?" he asked. And yet some wonder why it is so many taxicab companies sag into bankruptcy.

More and more are New York executives keeping away from their offices. In many of the highest salaried posts in the town the occupants only visit the office three days a week. Ray Long, the magazine executive, recently wrote a paper to be read before 9,000 executives in which he said, "no one does any thinking in an office." Big executives, no matter how carefully protected, are finding the only way they can escape the drudgery of unimportant details is to stay away. Hundreds have offices fitted up in their homes. Only trusty aides can reach them.

I know an executive who has five "dead" phones on his desk to give the visitor an impression of his importance. Invariably he makes a visitor cool his heels in the outer office. He is the same magnificent bluff who one day hung a card outside his door reading, "Be back in 10 minutes." A man he does not fool wrote under it: "What for?"

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Milk Products Research.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12—Another of the scientific organizations that are formed to advance various industries will shortly open headquarters in Washington. It is the Milk and Milk Products Research Bureau. The north central headquarters of the Bureau have already been opened in Grand Rapids, Mich., and later there will be offices in Battle Creek and in Chicago. This move is being made, it is explained, as the result of several years of investigation and of intensive study of the needs of the milk industry as a whole in the United States and Canada.

The primary object of the Bureau, according to the managing director, W. H. Hassett, is to bring about through educational methods the expansion of the sale of milk as a food to a degree comparable with the sale of other food products.

An effort will also be made to effect the establishment and maintenance of a national standard of purity as applied to milk, and an enlargement of the volume and an increase in the certainty of milk supply. This is carrying out the idea that it is useless to attempt to get the public to use more milk unless there is a guarantee that the milk will be pure, with an adequate supply available to meet the stimulated demand.

People are in general to be instructed as to the dietary properties of milk and as to its necessity in relation to the welfare of children. Farmers and dairymen are to be educated to an understanding and practice of sanitation and hygiene in cow barns and milk plants.

Other objectives of the new Bureau, as announced, include the promotion of new uses for milk, extension of the scientific knowledge of milk within the industry, co-operation with public health officials, medical bodies, and school authorities, the systematizing of transportation and marketing, improvement in the breeding and feeding of herds and in the growth of feed crops, and statistical and other forms of research that will benefit the public and the industry as well.

Data Already Compiled.

In 1925, according to government statistics cited by Mr. Hassett, the total consumption of whole milk in the United States was 116,505,395,000 pounds. Of that amount, 25 per cent was consumed in the production of dairy butter, 11 per cent was used in making butter on the farms of the country, 17 per cent was used in making cheese, condensed milk, evaporater milk, ice cream, and like commodities, and 47 per cent was consumed by households.

Converted into terms of money, the total value of dairy products that year was $2,740,000,000 while the milk consumed by households aggregated a national bill of $1,287,000,000.

The milk bill is impressive and seems formidable if not prohibitive, but it is pointed out that it amounts to only about ten dollars per capita. That means merely three cents a day, approximately, for each man, woman and child in the country, and it is not enough, in the opinion of the men who are back of the new organization.

"Despite the fact that milk is praised by the highest medical authorities as an ideal food," says Mr. Hassett, "and despite the fact that it is essential to private and commercial baking and cooking, less than 8 per cent of the total annual food bill of the 115,000,000 inhabitants, more or less, of this country was expended for milk."

The remedy for this state of affairs, which he characterizes as deplorable, is the improvement of marketing or sales methods. Florists met such a situation by adopting the slogan, "Say it with flowers," and it is possible, although Mr. Hassett does not suggest it, that the new organization of milk producers will come to the front with an equally effective sales appeal to the public.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered by the milk industry as a whole, it is said, is the insufficient and uncertain supply. That would seem to call for more and better cows, but the layman is often in error in such conclusions and in this instance the remedy authoritatively proposed is "so to improve the present contact of producers and distributors as to assure both a ready and constant market." There does not seem now to be a widely organized effort to regulate the flow of milk from the farm to the dairy or the plant, it is pointed out, and it is that lack of reliability which harms not only the productive and distributive factors of the business but ultimately the public, as well.

Variation of Standards.

Variation of standards of milk throughout the United States especially exerts an obstructive influence upon the industry, says Mr. Hassett.

"The need for a milk standardized nationally never was so urgent as at the present time. The benefits that would ensue from such standardization are obvious. The trade as a whole would benefit, as would the public. Once the latter were assured that the milk it consumes is of the highest national standard, once the maximum bacterial count were nationally defined, once the butter fat content were nationally established, once the manner in which milk is handled were fixed by a national standard of sanitation, the confidence of those who consume milk, especially in the household, would be very greatly increased."

The properties of milk not only as a nutrient but as a therapeutic should be more widely known, adds Mr. Hassett. What the right application of milk will do for the sick, for the lean, and for the fat, what the vital importance of milk is in relation to the health of the community and that of the nation, has not been sufficiently emphasized, in his opinion. He holds that the public should be disabused of the apparent idea that "milk is just milk," and that an industry so necessary to the life of all people should occupy a corresponding place in the economics of the nation.

There are those who might argue that to increase the milk diet of the country is in effect putting everybody on the waterwagon, in view of the fact that cows' milk is 87 per cent water. However, it includes 4 per cent of fat, 3.35 per cent of protein, 4.90 per cent of sugar, and 0.75 per cent of ash, and the combination seems to be fundamentally nutritive and healthful.

Just what good milk is was defined in the United States Pure Food and Drugs law, accepted by most of the states:

"Milk is the fresh, clean, lacteal secretion obtained by the complete milking of one or more healthy cows, properly fed and kept, excluding that obtained within 15 days before and 10 days after calving, and contains not less than 8.5 per cent of solids-not-fat and not less than 3.25 per cent of milk fat."

It is stated also by authorities of conceded standing that all milk except that produced under extraordinarily good sanitary conditions should be subjected to modern low temperature pasteurization before being used.

One of the principal troubles with so many people who are "run down" is that they don't get the car's number.—Zanesville Signal.

Floods And Booms

There is some talk now of the great Mississippi flood starting a business boom in this country. Theodore H. Price, a leading business analyst, explains the theory in a newspaper article, as follows:

"The dimensions of the extraordinary disaster have come to be appreciated and it is evident that the whole country will demand that its repetition shall be prevented. There is a feeling that the government will be compelled to spend at least a billion dollars in flood prevention work and that the expenditure of this great sum will increase the demand for everything, quicken the circulation of money and resuscitate the speculative movement that appeared to be languishing two weeks ago. How far this theory is warranted remains to be seen, but it is sustained by some precedents, and by its appeal to the imagination the decline in the stock market has been arrested."

Yes, it would liven things up generally in the business world, no doubt, if Uncle Sam undertook to spend anything like a billion dollars in flood relief and reconstruction. Many would welcome that. But let us not deceive ourselves about any business boom resulting from that sort of stimulus.

People with necessary materials to sell would profit. Manufacturers and middlemen would gain. Since everybody is a consumer, many consumers, caught in the various currents of prosperity set up by the circulation of so much money, would profit in some way or other. But the great mass of consumers would lose, in having to pay higher prices for their necessaries. And the whole public, whose money Uncle Sam spends, would have to pay it sooner or later in the form of taxes.

Whatever is destroyed is a dead loss. Replacement of lost goods, or reconstruction of a bad job, always has to be paid for. A great catastrophe, whether war or fire or flood, inevitably levies its toll first on the immediate sufferers, and then on all of the vast, interwoven social organization they belong to.

Only—and this is worth remembering—the moral and spiritual impetus gained in heroically setting to work to overcome a calamity sometimes carries people ahead so that in the end they are better off than they would have been without the calamity. That is the reward of courage.

The Prune Prize

The $50 prize offered by a California organization of prune producers for the best essay on prunes has been won by Miss Zoe Wolcott, the young lady who runs the cafeteria in the Kansas State Teachers' college.

Miss Wolcott, in her eulogy of the prune, explained how that humble fruit may be made so attractive and tempting that restaurant patrons will clamor for it.

Unquestionably that can be done, by any cook who uses culinary intelligence in preparing her prunes. And strange as some folks may consider this assertion, the same thing can be done with apple sauce and spinach, or almost anything else that is "good for you" but often spoiled in the cooking.

What most cooks, especially restaurant cooks, do to these wholesome and potentially delicious articles of food is a crime for which they should be sentenced for life to eat what they cook.

Now that a little more attention is being paid to the proper preparation of prunes and spinach, a friend of the apple in all its edible forms feels like making a plea for the redemption of apple sauce from its low estate.

Apple pie is probably the most popular food in America. Most pie-eaters eat apple pie not for the crust, but for what's in it. Why should cooked apple be any less delicious by itself than as pie-filler? It's all in the cooking. Let the experts apply their brain-power to this problem, and let the apple growers make it worth their while.

An Outdoor Club

A new type of club has been organized in Ashtabula, O. It is the Outdoor club, established by 100 residents of that city. They have dammed a small river and formed a 13-acre lake for fishing, boating and swimming. They have purchased a 1200-acre tract of land which is to be preserved for members and their children as a great playground.

Members drew choices for lots in the club preserve and are allowed to do whatever they want—within certain restrictions—on their own lots. One family, for example, may have a log cabin; another may go in for a miniature forest preserve. One member says he has 18 different varieties of native trees growing in his 40 by 80 "forest."

There will be children's plagrounds, facilities for boating, swimming, trap-shooting, rifle practice, fishing, tennis, baseball and just about everything except golf.

Golf is omitted simply because the members have other opportunities to play that game at near-by country or golf clubs. The Outdoor club is to meet hitherto unfilled needs. It is much like a great park, privately owned and controlled by a group of citizens who appreciate outdoor life and want to get it close to their homes.

If Sacco and Vanzetti had been tried for murder in some of our other states, they'd have been sentenced to life imprisonment, finished serving their terms and got out long before this.

PITY FOR THE UNSKILLED

The minstrel parade went swinging along where two husky individuals were assaulting the soil beneath the asphalt with picks, three feet below the surface and over on a side of the street. For the sake of novelty, let us respectively refer to these two industrials as Pat and Mike. They straightened their backs to watch the pageant pass.

Behind the band in the front file were the two proprietors and two highly paid end men. Then trailed a large and assorted company, all in showy parade costumes.

Said Patrick to Michael after the music had died away and they had laboriously resumed work:

"Twas a fine body av men."

"It was," commented his friend, "an' it's a pity that prob'ly not one av thim has a thrade."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 12. — Hundreds who tap oil in the backyard or otherwise, accumulate sudden wealth, trek to Gotham to splurge. The metropolis is considered an outlet for a swollen purse. There are so many ways here of thinning the bankroll.

To New York, these innocents are the new rich and they watch their amusing didoes with a slight lift of eyebrow. Jolly folks, but so bourgeoise, you know. They are legitimate prey for the dressmakers—who tell them casually of Mrs. Astorbilt buying 100 gowns at a clip.

Also for period furniture dealers, interior decorators, sellers of first editions, antique mongers and such. They begin quickly to learn of Rembrandts and Sezannes. To supplant "hired girls" with trim maids with French caps and manners of chilled steel.

Even the bootleggers are soon convincing them there are beverages a trifle more Corybantic than coffee. And Papa in no time has parked his scrap chewing tobacco in the ash can and has learned to select a rose-tinted cigarette from a jade bowl.

They learn rapidly — these newly rich. They want to get on socially and they do not question the price. Some of their antics are uproariously amusing. They tell of one, for instance, who had a silken rope looped from brass stanchions, like those at cafe entrances, at his dining room door.

Another acquired, a Gothic home with sweeping lawns and hedge copse. The lawns stood as epical tribute to the art of the landscape gardener. But the owner was not quite satisfied. It lacked a Frog Crossing touch. So he studied the lawn with iron deer and as an even added conceit had their antlers lighted by tiny electric bulbs at night.

Many of them, as a high life gesture, back a Broadway show. The original butter and egg man along the Rialto was a Kensan who awakened to find a hundred and ten barrel fortune gushing daily. New York may smile, but it would suffer greatly without them. They are the heaviest of all heavy spenders.

The most poignantly pathetic story of mother love instinct comes from a Jersey farmer. A mother bird had her nest in a haystack. The birdlings had just hatched, when fire broke out in the hay stack and afterward the farmer found the charred ashes of the mother bird with her wings stretched out over her brood. The story brought tears to one hard-boiled sinner.

One of those taxi drivers with an habitually abused look, sat static in his cab when I opened the door last evening.

"To the New Amsterdam theatre," I ventured.

"It's a short run. How much of a tip?" he asked. And yet some wonder why it is so many taxicab companies sag into bankruptcy.

More and more are New York executives keeping away from their offices. In many of the highest salaried posts in the town the occupants only visit the office three days a week. Ray Long, the magazine executive, recently wrote a paper to be read before 9,000 executives in which he said, "no one does any thinking in an office." Big executives, no matter how carefully protected, are finding the only way they can escape the drudgery of unimportant details is to stay away. Hundreds have offices fitted up in their homes. Only trusty aides can reach them.

I know an executive who has five "dead" phones on his desk to give the visitor an impression of his importance. Invariably he makes a visitor cool his heels in the outer office. He is the same magnificent bluff who one day hung a card outside his door reading, "Be back in 10 minutes." A man he does not fool wrote under it: "What for?"

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Milk Products Research.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12— Another of the scientific organizations that are formed to advance various industries will shortly open headquarters in Washington. It is the Milk and Milk Products Research Bureau. The north central headquarters of the Bureau have already been opened in Grand Rapids, Mich., and later there will be offices in Battle Creek and in Chicago. This move is being made, it is explained, as the result of several years of investigation and of intensive study of the needs of the milk industry as a whole in the United States and Canada.

The primary object of the Bureau, according to the managing director, W. H. Hassett, is to bring about through educational methods the expansion of the sale of milk as a food to a degree comparable with the sale of other food products.

An effort will also be made to effect the establishment and maintenance of a national standard of purity as applied to milk, and an enlargement of the volume and an increase in the certainty of milk supply. This is carrying out the idea that it is useless to attempt to get the public to use more milk unless there is a guarantee that the milk will be pure, with an adequate supply available to meet the stimulated demand.

People are in general to be instructed as to the dietary properties of milk and as to its necessity in relation to the welfare of children. Farmers and dairymen are to be educated to an understanding and practice of sanitation and hygiene in cow barns and milk plants.

Other objectives of the new Bureau, as announced, include the promotion of new uses for milk, extension of the scientific knowledge of milk within the industry, cooperation with public health officials, medical bodies, and school authorities, the systematizing of transportation and marketing, improvement in the breeding and feeding of herds and in the growth of feed crops, and statistical and other forms of research that will benefit the public and the industry as well.

Data Already Compiled.

In 1925, according to government statistics cited by Mr. Hassett, the total consumption of whole milk in the United States was 116,505,395,000 pounds. Of that amount, 25 per cent was consumed in the production of dairy butter, 11 per cent was used in making butter on the farms of the country, 17 per cent was used in making cheese, condensed milk, evaporater milk, ice cream, and like commodities, and 47 per cent was consumed by households.

Converted into terms of money, the total value of dairy products that year was $2,740,000,000 while the milk consumed by households aggregated a national bill of $1,287,000,000.

The milk bill is impressive and seems formidable if not prohibitive, but it is pointed out that it amounts to only about ten dollars per capita. That means merely three cents a day, approximately, for each man, woman and child in the country, and it is not enough, in the opinion of the men who are back of the new organization.

"Despite the fact that milk is lauded by the highest medical authorities as an ideal food," says Mr. Hassett, "and despite the fact that it is essential to private and commercial baking and cooking, less than 8 per cent of the total annual food bill of the 115,000,000 inhabitants, more or less, of this country was expended for milk."

The remedy for this state of affairs, which he characterizes as deplorable, is the improvement of marketing or sales methods. Florists met such a situation by adopting the slogan, "Say it with flowers," and it is possible, although Mr. Hassett does not suggest it, that the new organization of milk producers will come to the front with an equally effective sales appeal to the public.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered by the milk industry as a whole, it is said, is the insufficient and uncertain supply. That would seem to call for more and better cows, but the layman is often in error in such conclusions and in this instance the remedy authoritatively proposed is "so to improve the present contact of producers and distributors as to assure both a ready and constant market." There does not seem now to be a widely organized effort to regulate the flow of milk from the farm to the dairy or the plant, it is pointed out, and it is that lack of reliability which harms not only the productive and distributive factors of the business but ultimately the public, as well.

Variation of Standards.

Variation of standards of milk throughout the United States especially exerts an obstructive influence upon the industry, says Mr. Hassett.

"The need for a milk standardized nationally never was so urgent as at the present time. The benefits that would ensue from such standardization are obvious. The trade as a whole would benefit, as would the public. Once the latter were assured that the milk it consumes is of the highest national standard, once the maximum bacterial count were nationally defined, once the butter fat content were nationally established, once the manner in which milk is handled were fixed by a national standard of sanitation, the confidence of those who consume milk, especially in the household, would be very greatly increased."

The properties of milk not only as a nutrient but as a therapeutic should be more widely known, adds Mr. Hassett. What the right application of milk will do for the sick, for the lean, and for the fat, what the vital importance of milk is in relation to the health of the community and that of the nation, has not been sufficiently emphasized, in his opinion. He holds that the public should be disabused of the apparent idea that "milk is just milk," and that an industry so necessary to the life of all people should occupy a corresponding place in the economics of the nation.

There are those who might argue that to increase the milk diet of the country is in effect putting everybody on the waterwagon, in view of the fact that cows' milk is 87 per cent water. However, it includes 4 per cent of fat, 3.35 per cent of protein, 4.90 per cent of sugar, and 0.75 per cent of ash, and the combination seems to be fundamentally nutritive and healthful.

Just what good milk is was defined in the United States Pure Food and Drugs law, accepted by most of the states:

"Milk is the fresh, clean, lacteal secretion obtained by the complete milking of one or more healthy cows, properly fed and kept, excluding that obtained within 15 days before and 10 days after calving, and contains not less than 8.5 per cent of solids-not-fat and not less than 3.25 per cent of milk fat."

It is stated also by authorities of conceded standing that all milk except that produced under extraordinarily good sanitary conditions should be subjected to modern low temperature pasteurization before being used.

"MOTHER" WINS AT CERAMIC

Belle Bennett Plays Lead in Kathleen Norris Story.

Belle Bennett, who created history with her superb work in "Stella Dallas," has added new laurels with her magnificent performance in "Mother," which opened today at the Ceramic theatre. "Mother" is a simple and wholesome, yet absorbing, story of a woman who sacrifices herself for her family, only to find them growing away from her when prosperity arrives, and Miss Bennett's artistry makes her literally live the part.

Few pictures in recent months have achieved such a powerful effect as does this straightforward but intensely dramatic film. As a study of the results of too much success and too much jazz, it is thoroughly worth while, and with the crowning touch of Miss Bennett's perfect interpretation and the support of a splendid cast, it is a masterpiece.

Much of "Mother's" appeal is due to the remarkable direction of J. Leo Meehan, the man who made the notable screen version of Gene Stratton-Porter's "Laddie," "The Magic Garden," and "Keeper of the Bees." Meehan has an unusual flare for the "homey," natural type of story, such as both Mrs. Porter and Kathleen Norris, the author of the famous novel which suggested "Mother," wrote, and he has reached great heights in his handling of the story values and the fearless presentation of the theme.

Crawford Kent heads the supporting cast, and given a superb portrayal of the architect who forgets his wife's share in his success. William Bakewell, a youngster of immense promise, is splendid as the waywar' son, and little Joyce Coad, Mabel Julienne Scott, Charlotte Stevens and Sam Allen are perfectly cast in their respective role. Dorothy Yost wrote an excellent adaptation and continuity of the story suggested by the Norris' novel, and Allen Siegler, the cameraman, deserves a word of praise for the marvelous photography.

Four Frigidaires Minute Turned Out By Dayton Company

Four Frigidaires a minute are now being turned out in the plants of Frigidaire Corporation at Dayton, according to information received by J. A. Trotter, local dealer. This is a production of 2,000 units a day, which taxes the capacity of the factories recently enlarged through a $20,000,000 expansion program.

"It has been estimated by Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, that four out of every five electric refrigerators now being installed are Frigidaires," said Trotter. "This subsidiary now ranks second in the General Motors group in unit sales, an illustration of the overwhelming acceptance which has been accorded electric refrigeration by housewives of America.

"Carrying out its policy of larger sales and lower prices, Frigidaire recently announced a new household model, selling at the lowest price in the history of the business, and designed to appeal to hundreds of thousands who have been awaiting a Frigidaire of standard quality, selling at a popular price.

"The amazing growth of Frigidaire sales, which are reaching twice their 1926 volume, reflects the convenience and dependability of Frigidaire and its desirability from a beauty standpoint.

"Other recent additions to the line which include electric water coolers and a heavy duty compressor for use in commercial installations, have extended the benefits of Frigidaire to wider fields, which in the past have been primarily dependent upon outside ice supply."

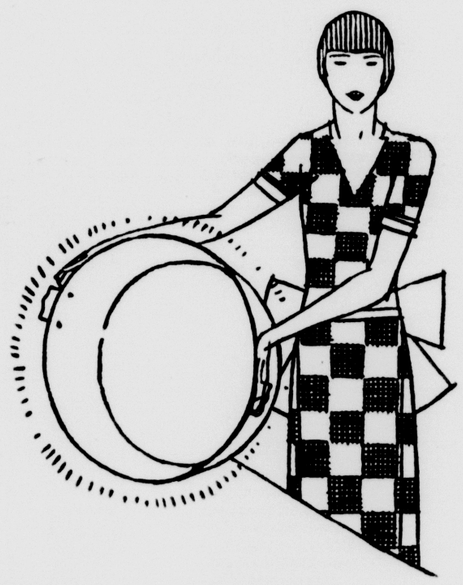
Ring-around-the-dishpan isn't a game



HARD WATER + = PLUS MEL'O MAKES SOFT WATER

It's a tragedy. A hard-water tragedy. And it happens in many kitchens every day. It happens in many laundries too, and in many bathrooms.

Why does that scummy ring form in dishpans, washtubs, bathtubs? Because the water is hard! Soap used in hard water combines with the hardness and makes the scum. Add more soap; but the scum remains.

In the dishpan this scum forms a glaze of grease on the dishes. It makes them hard to wash. In the laundry tubs it gets into the clothes. It clings to the fabric. No amount of rinsing can get it all out. In the bathtub and washbowl it makes extra work.

Melo softens hard water and makes it like rain water.

But put a teaspoonful of Melo in the dishpan and that greasy scum won't form. See how easily the dishes wash, how they sparkle, how soft and smooth your hands are. Put a tablespoonful in the washtub and see how wondrous white the clothes are. Put a pinch of Melo in the wash basin and a ring won't form no matter how dirty the hands are. Put two tablespoonfuls of Melo in the bathtub and you won't have to scrub the tub after taking a bath. And my, how pleasant the bath will be!

Keep a package of Melo in the kitchen, in the laundry, in the bathroom. It takes the place of the old-fashioned rain barrel. Get it at your grocer's.

The water in East Liverpool is 9 times as hard as it should be. Two tablespoonfuls of Melo will soften a bathtub full of water. Two tablespoonfuls in the washtubs. One teaspoonful in the dishpan.

Four Frigidaires Minute Turned Out By Dayton Company

Four Frigidaires a minute are now being turned out in the plants of Frigidaire Corporation at Dayton, according to information received by J. A. Trotter, local dealer. This is a production of 2,000 units a day, which taxes the capacity of the factories recently enlarged through a $20,000,000 expansion program.

"It has been estimated by Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors that four out of every five electric refrigerators now being installed are Frigidaires," said Trotter. "This subsidiary now ranks second in the General Motors group in unit sales, an illustration of the overwhelming acceptance which has been accorded electric refrigeration by housewives of America.

"Carrying out its policy of larger sales and lower prices, Frigidaire recently announced a new household model, selling at the lowest price in the history of the business, and designed to appeal to hundreds of thousands who have been awaiting a Frigidaire of standard quality, selling at a popular price.

"The amazing growth of Frigidaire sales, which are reaching twice their 1926 volume, reflects the convenience and dependability of Frigidaire and its desirability from a health stand point.

"Other recent additions to the line which include electric water coolers and a heavy duty compressor for use in commercial installations have extended the benefits of Frigidaire to wider fields, which in the past have been primarily dependent upon outside ice supply."

HOPE FOR TWO FLIERS CENTERS ON NEWFOUNDLAND

NUNGESSER'S CRAFT MAY BE IN WILDERNESS

Naval Aviators Think Both Men are Dead.

FARMER'S REPORT

Exhaust of Airship Heard Monday at Harbor Grace.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Hope for the French fliers, Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, centered today on Newfoundland where, if they landed, they may still be alive in the wilderness. The most optimistic naval fliers do not believe they are on the surface of the ocean if they were forced down at sea Monday.

The possibility that the fliers may have landed in the Canadian wilderness is based on reports from Harbor Grace that a farmer there distinctly heard the exhaust of an airship at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Harbor Grace was near the line of flight of the aviators.

Dirgible Joins in Search.

It has been more than 100 hours since the aviators hopped off and, according to their own schedule, they are three days overdue here.

Despite widespread search by navy and merchant ships and airplanes all the way across the Atlantic not a trace of the missing airplane has been found.

The U. S. navy dirigible Los Angeles, which crossed the Atlantic from Germany to this country in 1924, was offered by the navy department to join the search today. The dirigible was under orders to proceed from the air station at Lakehurst, N. J., and cruise along the coasts of Long Island and southern New England.

It now begins to look as though the attempt to make a non-stop flight from this city to Paris is going to develop into a sensational contest. Aviators Lloyd Bertaud and Clarence Chamberlin are all set for their hop-off at Curtis field on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock, weather permitting.

But another aviator, Charles A. Lindbergh, of San Diego, Calif., is racing towards this city in a Wright motored Ryan monoplane and he plans to set out for Paris as soon as possible after he reaches Roosevelt Field, Long Island.

Bellanca Plane Tuned Up.

CURTISS FIELD, GARDEN CITY, N. Y., May 12.—Sudden activity behind locked and guarded doors of the Bellanca hangar here today resulted in reports that Clarence Chamberlin and Lloyd Bertaud were preparing to leave immediately on their non-stop flight to Paris. Chamberlain said they would certainly start at the latest tomorrow morning and the hour of starting has been tentatively set at 1 a. m.

News from St. Louis that dare devil Lindbergh was winging his way to New York with the intention of stopping for gas and then going on to Paris resulted in the sudden spurt of activity at the Bellanca hangar.

Seach for St. Roman.

RIO JANEIRO, May 12.—Search along the Brazilian coast for Captain St. Roman, the French aviator who has been missing for one week since he took off from St. Louis, Senegal, to fly across the Atlantic ocean, has been given up.

Experts here believe that St. Roman was forced down in mid-ocean and that his plane was soon swamped and all on board lost.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Annie Christensen.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Christensen, 71 years old, who died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Fred Russell, Industry, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Shepler-Murray funeral home, Beaver, in charge of Rev. A. J. Alexander, pastor of the Beaver Presbyterian church Burial will be made in Beaver cemetery.

Two Girls Crushed to Death.

CLEVELAND, May 12.—Ruth Weisberg, 8, and Elaine, 5, her sister, were dead here today as a result of being crushed between an automobile and the front of a shoe repair shop. The little girls were looking in the window of the shop when a car, driven by a woman, careened up over the curb and crashed into them. The woman was to be questioned by police and authorities today.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our bereavement in the death our son, brother and grandson.

which is to be paid into the state general revenue fund. The Myers bill is estimated to increase the revenues paid into the general revenue fund about $2,000,000 annually.

Insurance companies, it was stated, are swamping the governor's office with requests that the Myers bill be vetoed by the governor.

Pass Action on Veto.

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—Ohio legislative leaders today were considering the advisability of requesting the solons when they reconvene here May 31 to re-pass, over the governor's veto, at least some of the items cut out of the Williamson general appropriation bill by Governor Vic Donahey.

The governor, it was announced, blue-penciled items, totaling about $1,-$015,000, from the Williamson bill, thereby reducing from $53,500,000, the amount fixed by the legislature, to $49,485,000, the amount which may be expended to defray costs of state governmental operations during the 18-months' period beginning July 1, next.

It was intimated that Donahey expected to slash about $8,000,000 from the Williamson bill, including $2,000,000 for state aid for weak school districts, $250,000 as state aid for county health districts, state aid for salaries of county superintendents and assistants, and $12,000 for traveling expenses of the American Legion band of Ohio to Paris this year, on the ground of insufficient state revenues.

Passage by the legislature of the Dodd bill, providing for a 6-10 mill direct state tax levy, however, induced the governor to change his mind, it was indicated.

Other Measures Adopted.

Other measures passed by the Ohio legislature at its session here this week are:

The Sullivan bill, increasing the state gasoline tax from two to three cents per gallon, after eliminating a senate amendment which sought to reduce the annual state license fee on pleasure autos 50 per cent.

The Chappelear-Herbert election reform bill (requested by the governor) including provision of optional permanent registration of voters in all cities and registration districts throughout the state.

The Lefever bill (requested by the governor) empowering the state utilities commission, with the approval of the governor, to appoint attorney-examiners and to employ and discharge its own employes.

The Norton bill, amending the Norton highway recodification act, by eliminating certain provisions objected to by governor Donahey, and providing that the governor may remove at will the state highway director; requiring use of prison-made brick on the highways, and increasing the authority of the state highway director in grade crossing eliminations.

The Jones bill (requested by the governor) providing for an adjustment of the tax rate of a taxing district situated partly in two, or more, counties, and defining the fiscal officer in townships as the township clerk.

Passed Over Governor's Veto.

The solons pased the following bills over the governor's veto:

The Lewis bill, authorizing the governor to order heads of state departments to keep expenditures within legislative appropriations.

The Gillen-Burnett bill, transferring control of the state schools for the deaf and blind from the state welfare department to the state department of education.

The Stone-Nickels bill, permitting school boards to lease school lands for the purpose of sinking gas wells.

Jurors Disagree In $50,000 Action Against Chaplin

NEW YORK, May 12.—After deliberating more than seven hours, the jury in the $50,000 damage suit brought by Leo Loeb against Charles S. Chaplin, disagreed and was discharged early today by Federal Judge Bondy.

Loeb alleged that Chaplin had plagiarized part of a scenario called "The Rookie," using parts of it in the film comedy, "Shoulder Arms."

Chaplin testified that he had not used any part of the Loeb scenario while filming "Shoulder Arms," but had worked only from his own notes.

Motions will be submitted in a few days and it is likely that Loeb will seek to bring another action.

Six Bodies Found In Ruins of Home Of Texas Lodge

DALLAS, Texas, May 12. — Six bodies had been recovered today from the ruins of the Odd Fellows' lodge building here, which was destroyed by fire and an explosion last night.

Fifty-six persons were injured, some seriously, in the blast.

Star Football Player Dead.

CLEVELAND, May 12. — Found hanging by his necktie in the bathroom of a downtown hotel, Robert C. Droege Jr., 26, star football player for Case in 1921, was dead here today. Droege had been in California for several months, and announcement of his suicide was the first his parents knew of his return home, they said.

To save his old home, W. Brewer, aged 82 of Woorage, Australia, stayed day and night in a creek with a bucket extinguishing sparks and cinders that were blown from the bush fires that destroyed a large area recently.

C. A. LINDBERGH PREPARES FOR OCEAN FLIGHT

Captain Leaves St. Louis for Roosevelt Field.

NON-STOP JUMP

Tiny Metal Plane Will be Used in Crossing Atlantic.

ST. LOUIS, May 12. — Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, who flew here yesterday from San Diego, Calif., hopped off this morning at 8:12 o'clock for Roosevelt Field, Long Island. From there he will set out in his tiny metal plane for a non-stop jump across the Atlantic.

After Lindbergh's departure President Knight, of the Air club, who is chief backer of the St. Louisan's trans-Atlantic attempt, said the flyer probably would pass over Terre Haute, Dayton, Columbus, south of Pittsburgh, Allentown, Pa., and Newark, N. J., before he reaches Long Island.

The plane in which Lindbergh will attempt his trans-Atlantic flight is small in comparison with others that have made the attempt. Its wingspread is only 46 feet, its gross weight less than 5,000 pounds and its gasoline capacity 45 gallons. It is, however, built for efficiency and endurance.

The machine is a metal-bodied, single-seated ship, originally built to seat two persons. The extra seat was taken out to make room for additional gasoline.

Every inch of the surface, even the hob-caps, is stream-lined to break the wind resistance. The propellor is made of steel.

The instrument board is a maze of sixteen turncock valves governing fueling control. A periscope, an air cushion seat, a sky-light over the seat and celluloid windows at the side are other features.

The cost of the "Spirit of St. Louis," is estimated at $15,000.

On his trans-Atlantic flight, Lindbergh will take 450 gallons of gasoline and 27 gallons of oil. He will take a route over Nova Scotia and Newfoundland where he will get his last glimpse of land until he passes over Land's End, westernmost point in England.

Officers Elected By Methodists of Diocese of Ohio

CLEVELAND, May 12.—Election of officers closed the 110th annual convention of the Methodist Episcopal church, diocese of Ohio, here.

Girard F. Patterson was elected secretary of the convention; F. W. Palmer, trustee; John W. Withycombe, registrar, and William G. Mather was re-elected treasurer of the diocese.

Rev. Maurice Clark, Bishop A. A. Gilman of Hankow, China, and Rev. Louis E. Daniels addressed the convention yesterday.

Attorney General Rules on Search of Autos for Liquor

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—In the absence of facts upon which to base a reasonable belief that a law is being violated, no officer has the right to stop persons driving automobiles, or to search autos without a search warrant, according to a ruling given today by Attorney General E. C. Turner to B. F. McDonald, state prohibition commissioner.

"Where an officer has reasonable grounds to believe, and does believe, that liquor is being transported, in violation of law, and that, before a warrant could be secured, the automobile would be beyond the reach of the officer, with its load of illegal liquor, such officer has the right to search such auto without a warrant," Turner told McDonald.

Gregory's Victor Orchestra Plays at Park Dance Tonight

Dan Gregory's Victor recording orchestra will make their final appearance at Virginia Gardens, Rock Springs park, tonight.

The orchestra will go from the park to the new Capitol theatre, New York, where it will play during the summer.

The Gregory orchestra opened its engagement here Monday evening, when the Trianon club, of Chester, gave its second annual dance. Large crowds were present at both the Tuesday and Wednesday evening dances.

Three Men Killed In Mountain Feud; Five are in Jail

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 12.—Three men are dead here today and five men, two of them deputy sheriffs are being held in the Mingo county jail as the result of the renewal of a long standing mountain feud at Dingess, an isolated mountain town in Mingo county.

Two of the men were killed outright and the third died of wounds early today, after being brought to the hospital at Welch, W. Va.

The dead are W. M. Conn, 42, railroad section foreman; James Conn, 40, his brother, and W. M. Hampton.

Those held in jail are Deputy Sheriffs E. Wellman, and Hugh Wellman, and Noah Wellman, Troy Wellman, and Pat Dingess. Noah Wellman was slightly wounded.

According to state troopers investigating the shooting, the trouble started when the two deputies and their three companions attempted to serve warrants on the Conn brothers on a charge of firing shots into the Wellman home last Monday night.

Smallpox in Flood Zone

said a state engineer's report this morning from Simmesport, at the junction of the Atchafalaya and Old rivers. Thousands of levee defenders continued their heroic struggle against the inexorable waters as the machinery of rescue and relief speeded its preparations to cope with disaster in the six rich and fertile parishes beyond the slowly crumbling protecting wall.

On the east bank of the river, eighteen miles south of Baton Rouge, a public health service vessel stands guard today over the famous Carville leper colony, where 250 patients are endangered by the rising waters.

Guard Leper Colony.

Citizens of the community patrol the levees, watching for new points of seepage. Weather reports predict a rise of 10 to 13 inches in the Carville region before the crest of the flood passes. Members of the district levee board are manifestly annoyed but insist their dykes are safe. A break in the east bank levees south of Baton Rouge has been held by federal engineers to be far less likely than a crevasse in the west levees.

Panic prevailed in the Carville district for several hours last night when a single sand bag was washed out of the levee. A member of the dike patrol who chanced to be on the spot was swept from his feet and rolled down the inside of the 25-foot wall before the inrushing water. Picking himself up from the mud he ran down the road in the manner of Paul Revere broadcasting on a long lung length, "Crevasse, crevasse." The community for five miles around was aroused in a flash. Hundreds gathered about the deserted patrol, threw in a few sand bags and stopped the flow. The incident is symtomatic of the nervous state in which land owners and tenant farmers throughout several thousand square miles in Louisiana have lived for almost a month

THE BUCKEYE NEWS

NO. 18. MAY 12, 1927. VOL. 1.

Do any of you readers know where we could find a good assistant editor for the Buckeye News? What if we got sick or something! Wouldn't that be a calamity?

You may not think so, but we thought this was funny: A minister asked a man why he didn't attend church. "Well, I'll just tell you," replied the back-slider, "the first time I went they poured water in my face, and the second time they tied me to a woman and I've had to keep her ever since.'

"Yes," said the minister, "and the next time you go they'll probably throw dirt on you."

An East Liverpool man was trying to teach his wife to drive the car the other evening. She was pretty nervous. Suddenly she yelled, "Here you take the wheel, here comes a tree!"

The following item appeared in a metropolitan newspaper recently: "Ikey Ikenstein accidentally drove his car into the parade of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. He would have been thirty-eight years old next October."

And we extracted a laugh from this one: Young Brown got married. On the first pay day he gave his wife $20 of his $25 salary and kept the balance. Next week he reversed the process. "But Harold," exclaimed the bride, "how do you expect me to get along on $5.00?"

"Hanged if I know," he replied, "I had a rotten time myself last week. Now it's your turn."

CIRCUS AIDE DIES SUDDENLY

Arthur Farmer, 56, W. L. Main Ticket Agent, Stricken.

Arthur Farmer, 56, supervising ticket agent for the Walter L. Main circus, which exhibited here yesterday, died in the City hospital at 9:10 o'clock last evening from a complication of diseases.

Farmer had been ill for several days but refused to leave the show. His condition became critical at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and he was taken from the circus cars near the Patterson Field show grounds and removed to the hospital in one of the McLain-Yellow cabs.

Heads of the circus, at the conclusion of last night's performance, contributed $360 to pay the hospital bill and funeral expenses. A representative remained in East Liverpool to take care of the body when the circus left for Sharon, Pa., at 2 o'clock this morning.

The body will be shipped to Evansville, Ind., where a daughter is said to reside.

Shanghai Reports Military Activities On Chinese Fronts

SHANGHAI, May 12.—Military activities are reported on all fronts today.

Fengtien troops are making a steady advance towards Hankow and the eventual withdrawal of the Nationalists from that city is regarded as inevitable.

Chiang Kai Shek's troops are entrenching at Nanking, fearing an attack from the Nationalist extremists from Kiangsi. Meanwhile the artillery duel between Nanking and Pukow continues. Chiang Kai Shek is preparing for a new attack against the Shangtung armies from Chinkiang.

Extensive recruiting is in progress in all provinces.

Nickel Plate Stock Jumps 13 Points To $208 Share

NEW YORK, May 12.—The common stock of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad (Nickel Plate) jumped 13 points to a record high price of $208 a share at the beginning of trading in the stock market today.

This road is the center of the proposed Nickel Plate trunk line system which is to be formed by consolidation with the Chesapeake and Ohio, Hocking Valley, Erie and Pere Marquette roads, under the leadership of the Van Sweringen brothers, of Cleveland, backed by a powerful New York banking group.

Two Persons Dead In Ohio Following Unusual Tragedy

ZANESVILLE, O., May 12. — Two persons were dead today at Sarahsville, Noble county, near here, following an unusual tragedy.

Charles Swain, 50, farmer, shot and killed himself instantly, after slaying the 5-month-old daughter of Miss Retta Highman, daughter of a neighboring family.

Swain's son, Samuel Swain, 21, was married in April to Miss Mildred Grimes, and immediately afterward, Miss Highman filed a statutory charge against the youth.

The elder Swain late yesterday called at the home of Miss Highman's parents, called the young woman to the front porch, and begged her to withdraw the charge. She refused and Swain suddenly drew a revolver from his pocket and shot the baby through the head, killing her instantly. Swain then shot himself. The baby's clothing caught fire from the gunshot, fired at close range, and her body was almost consumed by fire before relatives of the mother put out the blaze. The mother was uninjured.

Trip to Steubenville to be made next Thursday evening when members of the East Liverpool club will be guests of the Steubenville Kiwanians was discussed at the luncheon meeting in the Larkins' Annex, Market street, at noon today.

Plans for the trip were outlined by Walter B. Hill. City Auditor William McGraw is chairman of the committee on reservations. The club members plan to make the trip aboard a special interurban car, leaving here at 5 o'clock.

Committees submitted reports at the luncheon. Ralph Sayre reported for the rural relations committee.

Probate Judge Lodge Riddle, Lisbon, discussed the Columbiana county fresh air camp which will be maintained on the W. K. George farm in Madison township this summer.

Dorothy Mackaye To Defend Name in Kelly Murder Trial

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—Dorothy Mackaye awaited her turn today to take the witness stand at the murder trial of Paul Kelly. Miss Mackaye will defend her name, linked with that of the young film player in an asserted love motive for the fatal beating of her husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy star.

Although the actress has been summoned as a state witness, her attorneys announced she will be given an opportunity to refute imputations in the testimony of Ethel Lee, her Negro housemaid.

The servant girl, placed in the witness box yesterday to give an eye-witness account of the fist fight, which, the state charges, caused Raymond's death, dealt the defense a double blow when she told of intimate association between Kelly and the actor's wife.

Suit for $50,000 Is Filed Against "Peaches" Browning

CHICAGO, May 12.—Suit for $50,000 alleging breach of contract, was filed today against Frances "Peaches" Browning and Mrs. Caroline Heenan, her mother, by Arnold Stoltz, theatrical booking agent.

Stoltz claimed "Peaches" agreed to pay him everything over $1,650 a week for 30 weeks nad then when bookings at a higher figure were secured, said she was a minor and refused to pay.

HOPE FOR TWO FLIERS CENTERS ON NEWFOUNDLAND

NUNGESSER'S CRAFT MAY BE IN WILDERNESS

Naval Aviators Think Both Men are Dead.

FARMER'S REPORT

Exhaust of Airship Heard Monday at Harbor Grace.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Hope for the French fliers, Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, centered today on Newfoundland where, if they landed, they may still be alive in the wilderness. The most optimistic naval fliers do not believe they are on the surface of the ocean if they were forced down at sea Monday.

The possibility that the fliers may have landed in the Canadian wilderness is based on reports from Harbor Grace that a farmer there distinctly heard the exhaust of an airship at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Harbor Grace was near the line of flight of the aviators.

Dirgible Joins in Search.

It has been more than 100 hours since the aviators hopped off and, according to their own schedule, they are three days overdue here.

Despite widespread search by navy and merchant ships and airplanes all the way across the Atlantic not a trace of the missing airplane has been found.

The U. S. navy dirigible Los Angeles, which crossed the Atlantic from Germany to this country in 1924, was offered by the navy department to join the search today. The dirigible was under orders to proceed from the air station at Lakehurst, N. J., and cruise along the coasts of Long Island and southern New England.

It now begins to look as though the attempt to make a non-stop flight from this city to Paris is going to develop into a sensational contest. Aviators Lloyd Bertaud and Clarence Chamberlin are all set for their hop-off at Curtis field on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock, weather permitting.

But another aviator, Charles A. Lindbergh, of San Diego, Calif., is racing towards this city in a Wright motored Ryan monoplane and he plans to set out for Paris as soon as possible after he reaches Roosevelt Field, Long Island.

Bellanca Plane Tuned Up.

CURTISS FIELD, GARDEN CITY, N. Y., May 12.—Sudden activity behind locked and guarded doors of the Bellanca hangar here today resulted in reports that Clarence Chamberlin and Lloyd Bertaud were preparing to leave immediately on their non-stop flight to Paris. Chamberlain said they would certainly start at the latest tomorrow morning and the hour of starting has been tentatively set at 1 a. m.

News from St. Louis that dare devil Lindbergh was winging his way to New York with the intention of stopping for gas and then going on to Paris resulted in the sudden spurt of activity at the Bellanca hangar.

Seach for St. Roman.

RIO JANEIRO, May 12.—Search along the Brazilian coast for Captain St. Roman, the French aviator who has been missing for one week since he took off from St. Louis, Senegal, to fly across the Atlantic ocean, has been given up.

Experts here believe that St. Roman was forced down in mid-ocean and that his plane was soon swamped and all on board lost.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Annie Christensen.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Christensen, 71 years old, who died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Fred Russell, Industry, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Shepler-Murray funeral home, Beaver, in charge of Rev. A. J. Alexander, pastor of the Beaver Presbyterian church Burial will be made in Beaver cemetery.

She leaves one brother, Joseph Althar, Smith's Ferry, and one sister, Mrs. Virginia Hayes of West Point.

Two Girls Crushed to Death.

CLEVELAND, May 12.—Ruth Weisberg, 8, and Elaine, 5, her sister, were dead here today as a result of being crushed between an automobile and the front of a shoe repair shop. The little girls were looking in the window of the shop when a car, driven by a woman, careened up over the curb and crashed into them. The woman was to be questioned by police and authorities today.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our bereavement in the death our son, brother and grandson.

Especially do we thank Rev. Davidson, Mrs. Pearl Emmerling, Mrs. James Turner and those who so kindly donated the use of their cars.

which is to be paid into the state general revenue fund. The Myers bill is estimated to increase the revenues paid into the general revenue fund about $2,000,000 annually.

Insurance companies, it was stated, are swamping the governor's office with requests that the Myers bill be vetoed by the governor.

Pass Action on Veto.

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—Ohio legislative leaders today were considering the advisability of requesting the solons when they reconvene here May 31 to re-pass, over the governor's veto, at least some of the items cut out of the Williamson general appropriation bill by Governor Vic Donahey.

The governor, it was announced, blue-penciled items, totaling about $1,-$015,000, from the Williamson bill, thereby reducing from $53,500,000, the amount fixed by the legislature, to $49,485,000, the amount which may be expended to defray costs of state governmental operations during the 18-months' period beginning July 1, next.

It was intimated that Donahey expected to slash about $8,000,000 from the Williamson bill, including $3,000,000 for state aid for weak school districts, $250,000 as state aid for county health districts, state aid for salaries of county superintendents and assistants, and $12,000 for traveling expenses of the American Legion band of Ohio to Paris this year, on the ground of insufficient state revenues.

Passage by the legislature of the Dodd bill, providing for a 6-10 mill direct state tax levy, however, induced the governor to change his mind, it was indicated.

Other Measures Adopted.

Other measures passed by the Ohio legislature at its session here this week are:

The Sullivan bill, increasing the state gasoline tax from two to three cents per gallon, after eliminating a senate amendment which sought to reduce the annual state license fee on pleasure autos 50 per cent.

The Chappelear-Herbert election reform bill (requested by the governor) including provision of optional permanent registration of voters in all cities and registration districts throughout the state.

The Lefever bill (requested by the governor) empowering the state utilities commission, with the approval of the governor, to appoint attorney-examiners and to employ and discharge its own employes.

The Norton bill, amending the Norton highway recodification act, by eliminating certain provisions objected to by governor Donahey, and providing that the governor may remove at will the state highway director; requiring use of prison-made brick on the highways, and increasing the authority of the state highway director in grade crossing eliminations.

The Jones bill (requested by the governor) providing for an adjustment of the tax rate of a taxing district situated partly in two, or more, counties, and defining the fiscal officer in townships as the township clerk.

Passed Over Governor's Veto.

The solons pased the following bills over the governor's veto:

The Lewis bill, authorizing the governor to order heads of state departments to keep expenditures within legislative appropriations.

The Gillen-Burnett bill, transferring control of the state schools for the deaf and blind from the state welfare department to the state department of education.

The Stone-Nickels bill, permitting school boards to lease school lands for the purpose of sinking gas wells.

Jurors Disagree In $50,000 Action Against Chaplin

NEW YORK, May 12.—After deliberating more than seven hours, the jury in the $50,000 damage suit brought by Leo Loeb against Charles S. Chaplin, disagreed and was discharged early today by Federal Judge Bondy.

Loeb alleged that Chaplin had plagiarized part of a scenario called "The Rookie," using parts of it in the film comedy, "Shoulder Arms."

Chaplin testified that he had not used any part of the Loeb scenario while filming "Shoulder Arms," but had worked only from his own notes.

Motions will be submitted in a few days and it is likely that Loeb will seek to bring another action.

Six Bodies Found In Ruins of Home Of Texas Lodge

DALLAS, Texas, May 12. — Six bodies had been recovered today from the ruins of the Odd Fellows' lodge building here, which was destroyed by fire and an explosion last night.

Fifty-six persons were injured, some seriously, in the blast.

Star Football Player Dead.

CLEVELAND, May 12. — Found hanging by his necktie in the bathroom of a downtown hotel, Robert C. Droege Jr., 26, star football player for Case in 1921, was dead here today. Droege had been in California for several months, and announcement of his suicide was the first his parents knew of his return home, they said.

To save his old home, W. Brewer, aged 82 of Woorake, Australia, stayed day and night in a creek with a bucket extinguishing sparks and cinders that were blown from the bush fires that destroyed a large area recently.

C. A. LINDBERGH PREPARES FOR OCEAN FLIGHT

Captain Leaves St. Louis for Roosevelt Field.

NON-STOP JUMP

Tiny Metal Plane Will be Used in Crossing Atlantic.

ST. LOUIS, May 12. — Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, who flew here yesterday from San Diego, Calif., hopped off this morning at 8:12 o'clock for Roosevelt Field, Long Island. From there he will set out in his tiny metal plane for a non-stop jump across the Atlantic.

After Lindbergh's departure President Knight, of the Air club, who is chief backer of the St. Louisan's trans-Atlantic attempt, said the flyer probably would pass over Terre Haute, Dayton, Columbus, south of Pittsburgh, Allentown, Pa., and Newark, N. J., before he reaches Long Island.

The plane in which Lindbergh will attempt his trans-Atlantic flight is small in comparison with others that have made the attempt. Its wing-spread is only 46 feet, its gross weight less than 5,000 pounds and its gasoline capacity 45 gallons. It is, however, built for efficiency and endurance.

The machine is a metal-bodied, single-seated ship, originally built to seat two persons. The extra seat was taken out to make room for additional gasoline.

Every inch of the surface, even the hob-caps, is stream-lined to break the wind resistance. The propellor is made of steel.

The instrument board is a maze of sixteen turncock valves governing fueling control. A periscope, an air cushion seat, a sky-light over the seat and celluloid windows at the side are other features.

The cost of the "Spirit of St. Louis," is estimated at $15,000.

On his trans-Atlantic flight, Lindbergh will take 450 gallons of gasoline and 27 gallons of oil. He will take a route over Nova Scotia and Newfoundland where he will get his last glimpse of land until he passes over Land's End, westernmost point in England.

Girard F. Patterson was elected secretary of the convention; F. W. Palmer, trustee; John W. Withycombe, registrar, and William G. Mather was re-elected treasurer of the diocese.

Rev. Maurice Clark, Bishop A. A. Gilman of Hankow, China, and Rev. Louis E. Daniels addressed the convention yesterday.

Attorney General Rules on Search of Autos for Liquor

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—In the absence of facts upon which to base a reasonable belief that a law is being violated, no officer has the right to stop persons driving automobiles, or to search autos without a search warrant, according to a ruling given today by Attorney General E. C. Turner to B. F. McDonald, state prohibition commissioner.

"Where an officer has reasonable grounds to believe, and does believe, that liquor is being transported, in violation of law, and that, before a warrant could be secured, the automobile would be beyond the reach of the officer, with its load of illegal liquor, such officer has the right to search such auto without a warrant," Turner told McDonald.

The orchestra will go from the park to the new Capitol theatre, New York, where it will play during the summer.

The Gregory orchestra opened its engagement here Monday evening, when the Trianon club, of Chester, gave its second annual dance. Large crowds were present at both the Tuesday and Wednesday evening dances.

Three Men Killed In Mountain Feud; Five are in Jail

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 12.—Three men are dead here today and five men, two of them deputy sheriffs are being held in the Mingo county jail as the result of the renewal of a long standing mountain feud at Dingess, an isolated mountain town in Mingo county.

Two of the men were killed outright and the third died of wounds early today, after being brought to the hospital at Welch, W. Va.

The dead are W. M. Conn, 42, railroad section foreman; James Conn, 40, his brother, and W. M. Hampton.

Those held in jail are Deputy Sheriffs E. Wellman, and Hugh Wellman, and Noah Wellman, Troy Wellman, and Pat Dingess. Noah Wellman was slightly wounded.

According to state troopers investigating the shooting, the trouble started when the two deputies and their three companions attempted to serve warrants on the Conn brothers on a charge of firing shots into the Wellman home last Monday night.

said a state engineer's report this morning from Simmesport, at the junction of the Atchafalaya and Old rivers. Thousands of levee defenders continued their heroic struggle against the inexorable waters as the machinery of rescue and relief speeded its preparations to cope with disaster in the six rich and fertile parishes beyond the slowly crumbling protecting wall.

On the east bank of the river, eighteen miles south of Baton Rouge, a public health service vessel stands guard today over the famous Carville leper colony, where 250 patients are endangered by the rising waters.

Guard Leper Colony.

Citizens of the community patrol the levees, watching for new points of seepage. Weather reports predict a rise of 10 to 13 inches in the Carville region before the crest of the flood passes. Members of the district levee board are manifestly annoyed but insist their dykes are safe. A break in the east bank levees south of Baton Rouge has been held by federal engineers to be far less likely than a crevasse in the west levees.

Panic prevailed in the Carville district for several hours last night when a single sand bag was washed out of the levee. A member of the dike patrol who chanced to be on the spot was swept from his feet and rolled down the inside of the 25-foot wall before the inrushing water. Picking himself up from the mud he ran down the road in the manner of Paul Revere broadcasting on a long lung length, "Crevasse, crevasse." The community for five miles around was aroused in a flash. Hundreds gathered about the deserted patrol, threw in a few sand bags and stopped the flow. The incident is symtomatic of the nervous state in which land owners and tenant farmers throughout several thousand square miles in Louisiana have lived for almost a month

THE BUCKEYE NEWS

NO. 18. MAY 12, 1927. VOL. 1.

Do any of you readers know where we could find a good assistant editor for the Buckeye News? What if we got sick or something! Wouldn't that be a calamity?

You may not think so, but we thought this was funny: A minister asked a man why he didn't attend church. "Well, I'll just tell you," replied the back-slider, "the first time I went they poured water in my face, and the second time they tied me to a woman and I've had to keep her ever since."

"Yes," said the minister, "and the next time you go they'll probably throw dirt on you."

An East Liverpool man was trying to teach his wife to drive the car the other evening. She was pretty nervous. Suddenly she yelled, "Here you take the wheel, here comes a tree!"

The following item appeared in a metropolitan newspaper recently: "Ikey Ikenstein accidentally drove his car into the parade of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. He would have been thirty-eight years old next October."

And we extracted a laugh from this one: Young Brown got married. On the first pay day he gave his wife $20 of his $25 salary and kept the balance. Next week he reversed the process. "But Harold," exclaimed the bride, "how do you expect me to get along on $5.00?"

"Hanged if I know," he replied, "I had a rotten time myself last week. Now it's your turn."

CIRCUS AIDE DIES SUDDENLY

Arthur Farmer, 56, W. L. Main Ticket Agent, Stricken.

Arthur Farmer, 56, supervising ticket agent for the Walter L. Main circus, which exhibited here yesterday, died in the City hospital at 9:10 o'clock last evening from a complication of diseases.

Farmer had been ill for several days but refused to leave the show. His condition became critical at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and he was taken from the circus cars near the Patterson Field show grounds and removed to the hospital in one of the McLain Yellow cabs.

Heads of the circus, at the conclusion of last night's performance, contributed $360 to pay the hospital bill and funeral expenses. A representative remained in East Liverpool to take care of the body when the circus left for Sharon, Pa., at 2 o'clock this morning.

The body will be shipped to Evansville, Ind., where a daughter is said to reside.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The common stock of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad (Nickel Plate) jumped 13 points to a record high price of $208 a share at the beginning of trading in the stock market today.

Two Persons Dead In Ohio Following Unusual Tragedy

ZANESVILLE, O., May 12. — Two persons were dead today at Sarahsville, Noble county, near here, following an unusual tragedy.

Charles Swain, 50, farmer, shot and killed himself instantly, after slaying the 5-month-old daughter of Miss Retta Highman, daughter of a neighboring family.

Swain's son, Samuel Swain, 21, was married in April to Miss Mildred Grimes, and immediately afterward, Miss Highman filed a statutory charge against the youth.

The elder Swain late yesterday called at the home of Miss Highman's parents, called the young woman to the front porch, and begged her to withdraw the charge. She refused and Swain suddenly drew a revolver from his pocket and shot the baby through the head, killing her instantly. Swain then shot himself. The baby's clothing caught fire from the gunshot, fired at close range, and her body was almost consumed by fire before relatives of the mother put out the blaze. The mother was uninjured.

NATHAN JONES CASE WILL GO TO APPELLATE COURT

ANOTHER TRIAL ON WELLSVILLE CHARGE DENIED

Judge Lones Overrules Motion in House Burning Conviction.

ASKS $2,000 BOND

Man Sentenced to Serve Term in Reformatory.

Motion for a new trial, filed by Nathan Jones, of Wellsville, who was recently tried in common pleas court on an indictment charging him with burning property with intent to prejudice insurers, yesterday was overruled by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones at Lisbon.

As a result, the case will be taken to the court of appeals, according to action by the accused man's counsel, Attorney W. A. O'Grady. The bond has been set at $2,000, which, if given, will act as a stay of execution.

Counsel for Jones declared that the confession of Randall Jones, a brother introduced in the case as evidence against the prisoner, was in error, as the signature, it was asserted was obtained under duress by police.

Judge Lones held that if common pleas court had committed error, he would be glad to have the appeals court act in the case.

Jones was found guilty by a jury and was sentenced to serve from one to 10 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 12.—After an irregular opening, in which prices of the active stocks were decidedly mixed, the market moved forward in the early trading today, under the lead of the Nickel Plate rails, the motors and a few specialties. Oil stocks also showed the effects of the latest move for conservation of crude oil supplies, most of the independent oils selling at fractionally higher prices.

Buying of the Nickel Plate rails was based on prospects of government approval of the preliminary plans of the trunk line consolidation, in which it is proposed to segregate the stock holdings of the various roads from the operating company. New York, Chicago and St. Louis — the parent Nickel Plate — jumped 10 points to 205½ in the first period, while Chesapeake and Ohio, Erie and Pere Marquette, the other members of the merger combination, were in demand at higher prices.

Chrysler led the low-priced motor shares with an advance to above 46. General Motors was quiet on the eve of an important meeting of the directors of the company, at which an extra cash dividend is expected to be authorized. Hudson and Packard sold higher.

The resumption of a million-car-week in domestic railroad traffic was hailed as a favorable indicator of current trade. Good results are expected to follow the conferences of the oil production leaders seeking to curtail production in the country as a whole. Call money renewals were unchanged at 4½ per cent, with money market conditions generally unchanged.

Motion for a new trial, filed by Nathan Jones, of Wellsville, who was recently tried in common pleas court on an indictment charging him with burning property with intent to prejudice insurers, yesterday was overruled by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones at Lisbon.

As a result, the case will be taken to the court of appeals, according to action by the accused man's counsel. Attorney W. A. O'Grady. The bond has been set at $2,000, which, if given, will act as a stay of execution.

Counsel for Jones declared that the confession of Randall Jones, a brother, introduced in the case as evidence against the prisoner, was in error, as the signature, it was asserted was obtained under duress by police.

Judge Lones held that if common pleas court had committed error, he would be glad to have the appeals court act in the case.

Jones was found guilty by a jury and was sentenced to serve from one to 10 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 12.—After an irregular opening, in which prices of the active stocks were decidedly mixed, the market moved forward in the early trading today, under the lead of the Nickel Plate rails, the motors and a few specialties. Oil stocks also showed the effects of the latest move for conservation of crude oil supplies, most of the independent oils selling at fractionaliy higher prices.

Buying of the Nickel Plate rails was based on prospects of government approval of the preliminary plans of the trunk line consolidation, in which it is proposed to segregate the stock holdings of the various roads from the operating company. New York, Chicago and St. Louis — the parent Nickel Plate — jumped 10 points to 205½ in the first period, while Chesapeake and Ohio, Erie and Pere Marquette, the other members of the merger combination, were in demand at higher prices.

Chrysler led the low-priced motor shares with an advance to above 46. General Motors was quiet on the eve of an important meeting of the directors of the company, at which an extra cash dividend is expected to be authorized. Hudson and Packard sold higher.

The resumption of a million-car week in domestic railroad traffic was hailed as a favorable indicator of current trade. Good results are expected to follow the conferences of the oil production leaders seeking to curtail production in the country as a whole. Call money renewals were unchanged at 4½ per cent, with money market conditions generally unchanged.

COMMISSIONERS LIST HEARINGS

Highway Projects Will be Discussed Here Next Monday.

Furthering the 1927 road improvement program, the county commissioners will hold two road hearings next Monday. The first of these hearings will have to do with the improvement of the Elkton-Clarkson road and the second will refer to the improvement of the Rogers-Negley section of the Lisbon-East Palestine intercounty highway.

The contract for the grading of that section of the Elkton-Clarkson road is expected to be let by the commissioners within the next few weeks, the plans and specifications for this part of the project having already been worked up by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. With the final surfacing of the Elkton-Clarkson road, which will cross the new East Liverpool-Youngstown road, it is believed that Lisbon-East Liverpool traffic will then be diverted over this route instead of following the Lincoln highway through Madison township. The commissioners have not been advised by the state highway department when the four-mile stretch of brick road in Madison township will be repaired, but it is taken to be certain that no permanent improvement of this section will be authorized for several years on account of the financial condition of the state highway department. In the meantime, work grading and surfacing the Elkton-Clarkson road will be rushed through under the major road improvement program as determined upon several years ago.

The road between Lisbon and Elkton is to be surfaced with a brick top, this being placed on the present macadam roadbed, and the narrow brick road extending into Elkton is to be widened to meet the requirements of increased traffic.

The Salem-Canton road via North Georgetown and Homeworth will be improved next year as there remains but two miles to receive a concrete top. This route will give a direct route between Salem to Canton, eliminating traffic through Alliance and making Homeworth a more central traffic point.

SUPPLY MINISTER TO FILL PULPIT

While a large number of ministers now in charge of western churches have filed written application for the pulpit, it has not been determined when a permanent selection will be made. One minister from Missouri has filed an application for the vacancy.

COUNTY AUDITOR NAMES ASSESSORS

Three new assessors have been appointed and three others remain to be appointed by County Auditor Elmer E. Walker as a result of vacancies being made known when assessors met at Lisbon Wednesday to receive instructions and also supplies to complete the personal property tax return.

New assessors appointed were Gas Klaruhn for Yellow Creek township; John W. Grove, Knox township; W. H. Smallwood for Wayne township.

Assessors are to begin their work at once, and the record must be returned to Lisbon in complete form on or before June 1.

Sale Confirmed.

The sale of chattel mortgaged property has been confirmed in common pleas court in the case of Edward C. Hagan against John Hagan and others. The property was sold by Sheriff George Wright, and the court has ordered the execution of a bill of sale from the sheriff's office. A writ of possession has also been awarded by the court to the plaintiff.

Judgment Handed Down.

The First National bank of Salem has obtained a judgment for $528.08 in its action against G. W. Williams, as signor of a cognovit note. Judgment for costs has also been handed down against the defendant in this action which was filed August 13th, last.

COMMISSIONERS LIST HEARINGS

Highway Projects Will be Discussed Here Next Monday.

Furthering the 1927 road improvement program, the county commissioners will hold two road hearings next Monday. The first of these hearings will have to do with the improvement of the Elkton-Clarkson road and the second will refer to the improvement of the Rogers-Negley section of the Lisbon-East Palestine intercounty highway.

The contract for the grading of that section of the Elkton-Clarkson road is expected to be let by the commissioners within the next few weeks, the plans and specifications for this part of the project having already been worked up by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. With the final surfacing of the Elkton-Clarkson road, which will cross the new East Liverpool-Youngstown road, it is believed that Lisbon-East Liverpool traffic will then be diverted over this route instead of following the Lincoln highway through Madison township. The commissioners have not been advised by the state highway department when the four-mile stretch of brick road in Madison township will be repaired, but it is taken to be certain that no permanent improvement of this section will be authorized for several years on account of the financial condition of the state highway department. In the meantime, work grading and surfacing the Elkton-Clarkson road will be rushed through under the major road improvement program as determined upon several years ago.

The road between Lisbon and Elkton is to be surfaced with a brick top, this being placed on the present macadam roadbed, and the narrow brick road extending into Elkton is to be widened to meet the requirements of increased traffic.

The Salem-Canton road via North Georgetown and Homeworth will be improved next year as there remains but two miles to receive a concrete top. This route will give a direct route between Salem to Canton, eliminating traffic through Alliance and making Homeworth a more central traffic point.

SUPPLY MINISTER TO FILL PULPIT

Rev. Thomas Baxter of Coldwater, Mich., will be the supply minister at the morning and evening service at the Lisbon Presbyterian church next Sunday. The supply for the following Sunday has not been determined upon by the pulpit committee of this congregation.

Rev. P. W. Macaulay, former pastor, removed his household goods to Cleveland Wednesday.

While a large number of ministers now in charge of western churches have filed written application for the pulpit, it has not been determined when a permanent selection will be made. One minister from Missouri has filed an application for the vacancy.

COUNTY AUDITOR NAMES ASSESSORS

Three new assessors have been appointed and three others remain to be appointed by County Auditor Elmer E. Walker as a result of vacancies being made known when assessors met at Lisbon Wednesday to receive instructions and also supplies to complete the personal property tax return.

New assessors appointed were Gus Klaruhn for Yellow Creek township; John W. Grove, Knox township; W. H. Smallwood for Wayne township.

Assessors are to begin their work at once, and the record must be returned to Lisbon in complete form on or before June 1.

Marriage License.

A marriage license has been issued to Lawrence W. Blythe, of Koppel, Pa., a machinist, and Miss Mary Katharine Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Weber of East Palestine. The couple were married at Lisbon by Justice M. K. Zimerman.

Report Approved.

In the partition case filed recently in common pleas court by R. B. Grim against Maude L. Moore, the report of the commissioners has been approved by Judge W. F. Lones. The commissioners were J. N. Mehaffie, J. J. Fitzsimmons and George Faulk.

Judgment Rendered.

Judgment on a cognovit note has been rendered for $1,230.21 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Henry Theiss and others against M. W. Taylor and others.

Verdict Returned.

A directed verdict for $400 has been returned in common pleas No. 2 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Flora Hawkswood against the First National bank of East Liverpool, as administrator of the estate of Ellen Moore, deceased. A motion for a new trial has been overruled and a judgment on the verdict and also for the costs has been entered by Judge F. M. Whitcraft.

Sale Confirmed.

The sale of chattel mortgaged property has been confirmed in common pleas court in the case of Edward C. Hagan against John Hagan and others. The property was sold by Sheriff George Wright, and the court has ordered the execution of a bill of sale from the sheriff's office. A writ of possession has also been awarded by the court to the plaintiff.

Judgment Handed Down.

The First National bank of Salem has obtained a judgment for $528.08 in its action against G. W. Williams, as signor of a cognovit note. Judgment for costs has also been handed down against the defendant in this action which was filed August 13th, last.

South of the Atlas

BY MARSHALL P. WALL
AUTHOR OF "THE VALLEY OF STONE" "RIDDLE OF HOOKS" ETC.

LARRY GRENFALL, American traveler and student of Eastern magic, receives a telephone call from BEN MANSOUR, cosmopolite and old friend, saying he must see him at once.

GILES, Mansour's servant, drives Larry to his friend's house. While the two are talking a turbanned head appears at the window. Mansour opens it and a Moor steps in. He gives Mansour a ring as a token, set with a magnificent ruby. Mansour throws it on a table. Through the Moor it is revealed that Mansour is a Moor and ruler of his tribe. For some reason he must die but he insists that his son rule after him. Mansour says that he has taken poison and the Moor goes, tossing into the room a tiny tiger—the Striped Death. Mansour asks Grenfall if he will go to Morocco, find the Temple, endure the Ordeal and crush the Group—all of which is Greek to Grenfall. He is to find a certain Omar ben Medjad. Then Mansour dies. Giles has instructions to open a certain trunk and take care of the letters he will find therein.

CHAPTER FOUR.
Gray Dawn—and After.

Grenfall was aroused by the return of Giles. The man was visibly grief-stricken and now a new trouble seemed added to his woes.

"Beggin' your pardon, Mr. Grenfall, but 'is trunk ain't a trunk at all; that is, I mean to say, sir, when I opened it I found it 'eld only a chest of some outlandish sort, and I'm blessed if I can make out any way to open it. You'll 'ave to 'elp me, I'm a-thinkin,' sir."

Silently, Larry rose, casting a final glance at the body of Mansour, then turned and followed Giles. The servant led the way up a flight of stairs, to a bedroom with appointments so Oriental that Grenfall could almost have believed himself at that moment in the heart of Morocco or Araby. In a corner he glimpsed the trunk, its lid thrown open, while beside it on the floor was a square chest, heavily carven.

"There it is, sir," Giles pointed to the chest. "There don't appear to be any lock on it; one of them 'eathen treasure boxes, I call it."

Still silent, Larry dropped to his knees, beside the box, his eyes lighting with interest. He recognized it as a chest whose lid opened only through manipulating secret springs; it was of a pattern popular among the shorfa of Morocco, who used them as treasure chests.

He ran his fingers over the carving, pressing tentatively here and there, seeking for a crack that might indicate where the lid opened; but he looked in vain. After an hour he had exhausted every idea he had as to how the box opened. He had used every artifice he had picked up in his studies of Morocco, but in the end he rose, baffled, and turned to Giles.

"Fetch a hatchet, or a hammer, Giles, I'm afraid we shall have to burst it open."

With the words he stopped to lift the box, in order that he might set it more conveniently for the contemplated battering. Grasping either end he straightened, and nearly fell over backwards. The upper framework of the chest had come loose in his hands, allowing the bottom to drop out. Somehow, he had manipulated the springs without having been aware of it. The chest was open.

Giles, breathing heavily, joined him and together they began explorsing the contents. Larry dropped his hand on a heavy, stiff, paper packet, lifting it to glance at the superscription. It was addressed to Giles, and without a word he handed it to the servitor, who ripped it open with shaking fingers.

"'Ere, Mr. Grenfall, part of it is for you. See, this 'ere envelope says, plain as day 'Giles, deliver this to Mr. Grenfall;' so there, sir, it's yours, and I 'ope it means something worth while to you, beggin' your pardon, sir."

Larry grasped the envelops, opening with a quick motion of his muscular fingers. Several sheets of paper dropped out and he saw that for the most part they were legal instruments directing disposal of Mansour's estate after certain things were settled. One sheet bequeathed to Giles a sum of money that fairly staggered the little man, then Larry picked up a page that was meant for his eyes only. This he read last:

"When you read this, dear friend, I will have passed from the life that you know. The inclosed instructions will care for all affairs I leave behind me that concerns the world you and I have known in the course of our friendship. It is my desire that Giles take his share, return to England, buy himself a fine house and live out his life in comfort, and may Allah be with him for he was a faithful friend and a competent man. As for you, friend of my heart, I have already told you, I hope, what I wish you to do for me. If it chances that my passing comes before I see you, kismet! and perhaps it is just as well. But if I have told you—and you alone will know now—I urge you with all my heart to carry out my last desires.

"Above all things, find the Temple and give to Omar ben Medjad the casket I have already told you about. Omar will restore its contents, the Sacred Eye, to he who must have it, for without it, no man may rule in Barbary.

Now dear friend, farewell, as you Americans say, until we met again."

SHERIF OMAR BAN MANSOUR
EL-RASMAZE

The letter finished, Larry let his eyes linger on the signature. Here, Mansour had revealed his true identity; he was a sherif in Morocco and if one could judge by what had already transpired this night, he was a very powerful sherif.

Familiar as he was with Morocco and its history, Larry had never entertained any fancies about Mansour's name, thinking of course, that the first name was Benjamin. The man was dark, but no darker than Grenfall himself; which is so unusual a thing among the Berbers, who are of the white race, and never by word or deed had he intimated he was anything other than what he had always pretended to be to Larry— cultured English gentleman.

Pondering over what Mansour had told him and thinking, too, of the letter, Larry awoke suddenly to a realization that the man had made absolutely no detailed mention of the Temple; on the other hand he had made the puzzle in Larry's mind more confusing.

It was very perplexing, and to make matters worse, if that were possible, there was not to be had a clue of any sort that might help to clarify the situation. Perhaps, if he could round up one of the turbanned Moors of the limousine, or the fellow who had brought the token and the message, he might force from him, or them, some information that would dissolve the mists that hovered over all the events of the crazy, eerie night.

On second thought, he imagined that to capture one of the turbanned men would do little good, especially if there were anything of a religious nature connected with their presence here. A Moor would die rather than yield up any word that might be deemed inimical to his religious beliefs. For a long time Larry conversed with Giles, seeking to learn all he could from the little man that might be helpful in understanding the present state of affairs, but Giles, it turned out, knew little or nothing about Mansour's real life and activities. In the end Larry gave it up and rose.

"We must allow things to remain as they are until after the funeral, I imagine, Giles. Then, since it was Mansour's wish, it will be best that you go to England. For the present, we will return to the dining room and fetch his body here."

He stopped and set the lid of the chest in place, sensing that Giles had left the room; then he followed the servitor, reaching the stairs in time to hear a startled call:

"Quick, Mr. Grenfall; 'urry, sir!"

Larry dashed into the room and found Giles standing with ashen face and shaking knees, pointing to where Mansour's body had been lying on the divan an hour earlier. At the same instant that he saw Giles' pointing hand, Larry was conscious of a sold draft blowing on him; sensed that the room was cold. Then he re-echoed Giless' cry of bewilderment.

Ben Mansour's body was gone!

A window—the one which had admitted the messenger—was standing open and through this came chilling gusts of wind and swirling snow. Outside the gray dawn was beginning to break across the Jersey flats, giving early prospect of a dreary and cheerless day.

Larry reached the window with a half-dozen swinging leaps, then was out in the storm, seeking footprints in the drifting snow. As well to have sought a certain grain of dust in a sand storm. The high wind and constantly falling snow had obliterated every trace the vandals' feet might have made.

Dashing around the corner of the house, Larry looked toward the spot where he had left the limousine. It, too, was gone.

Despair in his heart, resolved to call the police as quickly as he could reach Mansour's telephone, he returned to the house, closing the window behind him tightly. Already Giles had a fresh fire kindled on the hearth. Larry started for the telephone and was interrupted by Giles' voice, coming from the hearth:

"As soon as the fire gets a-goin' a little better, Mr. Grenfall, we'll 'ave a bit of 'ot coffee," he said. Larry was amazed at the matter-of-factness of the man.

"Great heavens, Giles" he exclaimed, "how can you speak of coffee when—"

Giles' uplifted hand, from which a piece of paper fluttered, stopped him. The little servitor rose to his feet now and handed this paper to Larry.

"Read it ,sir, and you'll see why I 'ave ceased to worry about 'is body."

Larry fippped the paper open in front of him and read a few lines of badly scrawled English, with queer spelling and queerer punctuation:

'Fear noating, we tak oar Sherifs body home and, noating shall stoap us, we will give hes the hoanor, due a Loar of the, Beliefers, it will do no Good to seek us foar we tak the Body to Barbary; and you, can not fiad us.'

The missive was unsigned, but Larry sensed it had been written hastily by one of the turbanned men who had made the night one of mystery. He thrust the paper in his pocket his mind a jumble of fears and fancies, his brain over-keen because of the horrors of the night and lack of sleep. He realized that Giles' attitude had been the only proper one to take, as a result of the message, for knowing the Moors as he did, he knew that they would use every wile, resort to every sacrifice, to carry out their ends. He did not fancy now that it would be well to arouse the police and have them sek the fellows. No, it probably would come to pass that Ben Mansour would be more honored when buried by his own kind, than if the funeral was held here. He turned to the servitor:

"I think, after all, you are right in not worrying, Giles. Prepare the coffee, by all means—also, some sandwiches. After we have eaten, I intend thoroughly ransacking the chest upstairs. Strange that we heard nothing when they were taking Mansour's body out; stranger still that we did not hear the motor of the Pennant Twelve when they drove off with it."

"I don't know as I'd call it strange, sir," Giles ventured, a little timidly. "The storm was 'owlin' someut fierce, if you recall, Mr. Grenfall, and it 'd deaden the sound of the motor. Us bein' upstairs, away from this open window that we found, there ain't much about it so strange that we didn't 'ear the bloody 'eathens when they come in, to my way of thinkin.'"

"We'll let that pass for the present, Giles. While you prepare us a bite, I shall go back and search the chest. Supposing you fetch my share of the food to me there."

"Very good, sir," said Giles, and turned from the room.

If Larry had expected to find anything in the chest that he had not previously seen, he was doomed to disappointment. For the most part it held only small personal trinkets of Mansour and a few gold coins. Among what he imagined had been Mansour's personal jewels he discovered a small, golden muck balsam flower of seven petals, and on the tip of each petal was a faint, Islamic symbol. These he examined carefully. After a time he looked up and muttered softy:

"The Seven Marabouts of the Seven Tribes."

Looking closely at the symbols again, his face lighted:

"I wonder what on earth that means? What seven tribes? Lord knows there are many in Morocco—stay, though. Beyond the Atlas—by jove, that's it—the Seven Tribes of the Berbers—the seven principal tribes, I mean. Could Mansour have been the sherif over these? It looks as if he had."

He dropped the trinket in his pocket as Giles entered with sandwiches and coffee, then, his mind going backward to earlier in the night, he bade Giles set the things down and serve him, then dashed from the room.

The Token was where Mansour had thrown it, and even the gray dawn that was now flooding the room could not smother the hot fires that pulsed in the ruby's heart, where it reflected back the tossing flames on the hearth. Larry picked up the ring and slipped it on his finger. As though obeying some instinct, he turned the stone toward his palm. Silently he rejoined Giles and gulped down scalding cups of black coffee.

"I shall return to my apartments, Giles," he said, when, his appetite appeased and his brain cleared by the potent strength of the coffee, he shoved back his chair. "As for you, I fancy it would be best for you to go directly to England, in accordance with Mansour's wishes. No doubt, this will never come to the attention of the authorities, and we shall, of course, say nothing ourselves. If you think you need me before you sail, come to my rooms, but you must hasten for as rapidly as I can wind up some personal affairs, I shall do so, then I shall sail myself."

"You will be goin' abroad, Mr. Grenfall?"

"Aye, Giles; to Morocco. Your late master made me promise to do certain things for him there. I shall do my best to fulfill his wishes, though I'm dashed if I know what it is all about, or how or what I shall do when I get there."

The COMMANDER
A STUDEBAKER BIG SIX

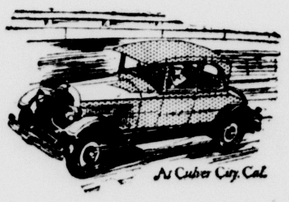
Only by owning a Commander can you avoid taking Commander dust on hills and highways

FROM one Coast to the other, The Commander is smashing records of speed, records of hill climbing, records of sales!

5000 Miles in Less Than 5000 Minutes

In a recent sensational test at Culver City, California, under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, Harry Hartz and three other noted pilots drove The Commander—a strictly stock, fully-equipped enclosed car—5000 miles in 4909 minutes, total elapsed time, establishing ten new world records.

This is better than mile-a-minute speed for 81 consecutive hours and 49 minutes—the fastest speed for the farthest distance ever attained by any stock car!



At Culver City, Cal.

The Commander Out-Climbs All Other Cars

In another public contest, five automobile dealers in Batavia, N. Y., challenged Studebaker's repeated statement that The Commander will out-perform any car selling within a thousand dollars of its price. The scene of the contest was a long hill near Batavia with an average grade of 10%.

The Commander won every test made—creeping test, standing start and flying start. Then, to cap the climax, The Commander carried seventeen men, weighing 2794 pounds, to the top in high gear, the speedometer reading 35 miles at the start and 22 miles at the finish.

Climbs 10-Story Building

In Washington, D. C., the Capitol Garage dedicated its new building by inviting all the automobile dealers to engage in an indoor hill-climbing contest—a climb of twenty ramps, ten stories in height.

The Commander wound its way easily up the steep ramps in high gear—and 5000 people cheered its victory over the field. After the contest, 102 drivers of different cars tried to equal The Commander's time-record—but every one failed!

What These Records Mean to You

You probably will never need mile-a-minute speed for 5000 miles—you may never want to enter a hill-climbing contest. But these remarkable records are further proof of what we have demonstrated time and again on Studebaker's 800-acre Proving Ground—that The Commander in every phase of every-day driving will out-perform and out-live any other car, six or eight, selling for less than $2500.

Harry Hartz wired us, after setting 10 new world records in The Commander:

"Based on my experience driving my personal Studebaker Commander, and in making the recent record run at Culver City Speedway with a Studebaker Commander strictly stock model, it is my opinion that it will maintain any given speed, up to 65 miles per hour, longer, more smoothly, and at less expense per hour traveled, for gasoline, oil and repairs, than any other stock automobile now being built in the United States."

The best evidence for you of the thrilling performance of The Commander is what the car will do in your own hands. Get behind the wheel of a Commander as our guest—without strings or obligation. Youth of the Atlas

BY MARSHALL D. HALL
AUTHOR OF THE VALLEY OF STONE AND STRIFE OF THE HOOKER CO. ETC.

BEN MANSOUR, cosmopolite and old friend, saying he must see him at once.

GILES, Mansour's servant, drives Larry to his friend's house. While the two are talking a turbanned head appears at the window. Mansour opens it and a Moor steps in. He gives Mansour a ring as a token, set with a magnificent ruby. Mansour throws it on a table. Through the Moor it is revealed that Mansour is a Moor and ruler of his tribe. For some reason he must die but he insists that his son rule after him. Mansour says that he has taken poison and the Moor goes, tossing into the room a tiny tiger—the Striped Death. Mansour asks Grenfall if he will go to Morocco, find the Temple, endure the Ordeal and crush the Group—all of which is Greek to Grenfall. He is to find a certain Omar ben Medjad. Then Mansour dies. Giles has instructions to open a certain trunk and take care of the letters he will find therein.

CHAPTER FOUR.
Gray Dawn—and After.

Grenfall was aroused by the return of Giles. The man was visibly grief-stricken and now a new trouble seemed added to his woes.

"Beggin' your pardon, Mr. Grenfall, but 'is trunk ain't a trunk at all; thut is, I mean to say, sir, when I opened it I found it 'eld only a chest of some outlandish sort, and I'm blessed if I can make out any way to open it. You'll 'ave to 'elp me, I'm a-thinkin,' sir."

Silently, Larry rose, casting a final glance at the body of Mansour, then turned and followed Giles. The servant led the way up a flight of stairs, to a bedroom with appointments so Oriental that Grenfall could almost have believed himself at that moment in the heart of Morocco or Araby. In a corner he glimpsed the trunk, its lid thrown open, while beside it on the floor was a square chest, heavily carven.

"There it is, sir." Giles pointed to the chest. "There don't appear to be any lock on it; one of them 'eathen treasure boxes, I call it."

Still silent, Larry dropped to his knees, beside the box, his eyes lighting with interest. He recognized it as a chest whose lid opened only through manipulating secret springs; it was of a pattern popular among the shorfa of Morocco, who used them as treasure chests.

He ran his fingers over the carving, pressing tentatively here and there, seeking for a crack that might indicate where the lid opened; but he looked in vain. After an hour he had exhausted every idea he had as to how the box opened. He had used every artifice he had picked up in his studies of Morocco, but in the end he rose, baffled, and turned to Giles.

"Fetch a hatchet, or a hammer, Giles, I'm afraid we shall have to burst it open."

With the words he stopped to lift the box, in order that he might set it more conveniently for the contemplated battering. Grasping either end he straightened, and nearly fell over backwards. The upper framework of the chest had come loose in his hands, allowing the bottom to drop out. Somehow, he had manipulated the springs without having been aware of it. The chest was open.

Giles, breathing heavily, joined him and together they began explorsing the contents. Larry dropped his hand on a heavy, stiff, paper packet, lifting it to glance at the superscription. It was addressed to Giles, and without a word he handed it to the servitor, who ripped it open with shaking fingers.

"'Ere, Mr. Grenfall, part of it is for you. See, this 'ere envelope says, plain as day 'Giles, deliver this to Mr. Grenfall;' so there, sir, it's yours, and I 'ope it means something worth while to you, beggin' your pardon, sir."

Larry grasped the envelops, opening with a quick motion of his muscular fingers. Several sheets of paper dropped out and he saw that for the most part they were legal instruments directing disposal of Mansour's estate after certain things were settled. One sheet bequeathed to Giles a sum of money that fairly staggered the little man, then Larry picked up a page that was meant for his eyes only. This he read last:

"When you read this, dear friend, I will have passed from the life that you know. The inclosed instructions will care for all affairs I leave behind me that concerns the world you and I have known in the course of our friendship. It is my desire that Giles take his share, return to England, buy himself a fine house and live out his life in comfort, and may Allah be with him for he was a faithful friend and a competent man. As for you, friend of my heart, I have already told you, I hope, what I wish you to do for me. If it chances that my passing comes before I see you, kismet! and perhaps it is just as well. But if I have told you—and you alone will know now—I urge you with all my heart to carry out my last desires.

"Above all things, find the Temple and give to Omar ben Medjad the casket I have already told you about. Omar will restore its contents, the Sacred Eye, to he who must have it, for without it, no man may rule in Barbary.

Now dear friend, farewell, as you Americans say, until we met again."

SHERIF OMAR BAN MANSOUR EL-RASMAZE.

The letter finished, Larry let his eyes linger on the signature. Here, Mansour had revealed his true identity; he was a sherif in Morocco and if one could judge by what had already transpired this night, he was a very powerful sherif.

Familiar as he was with Morocco and its history, Larry had never entertained any fancies about Mansour's name, thinking of course, that the first name was Benjamin. The man was dark, but no darker than Grenfall himself; which is so unusual a thing among the Berbers, who are of the white race, and never by word or deed had he intimated he was anything other than what he had always pretended to be to Larry— cultured English gentleman.

Pondering over what Mansour had told him and thinking, too, of the letter, Larry awoke suddenly to a realization that the man had made absolutely no detailed mention of the Temple; on the other hand he had made the puzzle in Larry's mind more confusing.

It was very perplexing, and to make matters worse, if that were possible, there was not to be had a clue of any sort that might help to clarify the situation. Perhaps, if he could round up one of the turbanned Moors of the limousine, or the fellow who had brought the token and the message, he might force from him, or them, some information that would dissolve the mists that hovered over all the events of the crazy, eerie night.

On second thought, he imagined that to capture one of the turbanned men would do little good, especially if there were anything of a religious nature connected with their presence here. A Moor would die rather than yield up any word that might be deemed inimical to his religious beliefs. For a long time Larry conversed with Giles, seeking to learn all he could from the little man that might be helpful in understanding the present state of affairs, but Giles, it turned out, knew little or nothing about Mansour's real life and activities. In the end Larry gave it up and rose.

"We must allow things to remain as they are until after the funeral, I imagine, Giles. Then, since it was Mansour's wish, it will be best that you go to England. For the present, we will return to the dining room and fetch his body here."

He stopped and set the lid of the chest in place, sensing that Giles had left the room; then he followed the servitor, reaching the stairs in time to hear a startled call:

"Quick, Mr. Grenfall; 'urry, sir!"

Larry dashed into the room and found Giles standing with ashen face and shaking knees, pointing to where Mansour's body had been lying on the divan an hour earlier. At the same instant that he saw Giles' pointing hand, Larry was conscious of a cold draft blowing on him; sensed that the room was cold. Then he re-echoed Giless' cry of bewilderment.

Ben Mansour's body was gone!

A window—the one which had admitted the messenger—was standing open and through this came chilling gusts of wind and swirling snow. Outside the gray dawn was beginning to break across the Jersey flats, giving early prospect of a dreary and cheerless day.

Larry reached the window with a half-dozen swinging leaps, then was out in the storm, seeking footprints in the drifting snow. As well to have sought a certain grain of dust in a sand storm. The high wind and constantly falling snow had obliterated every trace the vandals' feet might have made.

Dashing around the corner of the house, Larry looked toward the spot where he had left the limousine. It, too, was gone.

Despair in his heart, resolved to call the police as quickly as he could reach Mansour's telephone, he returned to the house, closing the window behind him tightly. Already Giles had a fresh fire kindled on the hearth. Larry started for the telephone and was interrupted by Giles' voice, coming from the hearth:

"As soon as the fire gets a-goin' a little better, Mr. Grenfall, we'll 'ave a bit of 'ot coffee," he said. Larry was amazed at the matter-of-factness of the man.

"Great heavens, Giles" he exclaimed, "how can you speak of coffee when—"

Giles' uplifted hand, from which a piece of paper fluttered, stopped him. The little servitor rose to his feet now and handed this paper to Larry.

"Read it ,sir, and you'll see why I 'ave ceased to worry about 'is body."

Eight Derby Hopefuls Get Play As Big Turf Event Nears

Preakness Winner and Mate Whiskery Among Favored Few

By Davis J. Walsh.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—Bostonian, winner of the Preakness; his stable companion, Whiskery, which ran third; J. N. Camden's Hydromel, the still hopeful Scapa Flow; W. J. Salmon's Black Panther, the Bradley pair, Boo and Bewithus, and that overnight contender, Rolled Stocking, of the Parrish barn, were the stand-out candidates today, forty-eight hours before the running of the great Kentucky Derby. Of course, every eligible at the Downs is a dark horse but gentlemen are known to like them both light of head and hair and those designated are dark like table linen. They will get the play at the one-way windows—always in but seldom out.

Their rise to prominence has served to create the usual division between the sections, emphasized to a greater degree in the Derby than in any other race. Hydromel, Rolled Stocking and the Bradley entry are the hopes of the west; the Whitney pair, Bostonian and Whiskery; Black Panther and Scapa Flow are from the east.

Form is Served in Derby.

It would be an apt commentary on the customary attempt to beat the game at the track if none of the admitted contenders paid off after the race. But the fact of the matter is that form is served much more rigidly in the derby than in the Preakness, the only corresponding race of the early season when form is mostly the bunk. Still, the boys know very little about some of those mentioned and maybe that is as good a reason as any for giving them a play.

Rolled Stocking, for example, has run one good and one bad race this year. But the good one was no later than Saturday last. So the boys are thoroughly convinced. The colt beat Osmand six lengths in a derby trial at one mile in 1:38 3-5. Very good for the Downs. Yet if he steps out Saturday the way he did at Lexington to finish fourth behind Hydromel, Buddy Bauer and Aregel in a field of four he won't be a race horse; he'll be a pursuer.

Neither Boo nor Bewithus has been out under colors in some time. The former was good at New Orleans, the latter was better at Lexington. But, if the colts weren't owned by E. R. Bradley, they probably would attract as much attention as a man with a head.

Bostonian's Record Good.

Bostonian's only start as a three-year-old, barring an indifferent performance at Jamaica, was a Pimlico on Monday. True, he won the Preakness impressively and without post mortems but, outside of that, you have to go back to his two-year-old campaign to get a line on his racing. This shows that he ran often and well, being rarely unplaced. He seemed to show a fondness for going a distance, which, if true, will do him practically no harm in the derby.

All in all, we will have to accept the belief that Bostonian is quite a colt; at least, until he proves to be otherwise.

Whiskery, the other Whitney entry, may or may not improve on his Preakness effort. If he doesn't, he is out like a man gone to lunch. Even taking into consideration the fact that possibly he burned himself up racing Scapa Flow into submission, the horse was in a position to win in the stretch if his drive was that of a prospective champion. Sometimes, however, the Preakness failure becomes a derby success and perhaps that will prove true in Whiskery's case. I am betting the other way.

Camden Colt Impressive.

Hydromel and Black Panther, judged on their records, are much the sounder play. The Camden colt not only won that Lexington race at a mile and 70 yards from Rolled Stocking and the others in the clinking time of 1:42 but did 1:38 4-5 for the mile at the Downs on Monday in winning the prospect purse after a slow start. He really didn't find his running until the last quarter but seemed to have plenty left at the end. He was carrying only 107 pounds at the time but many now regard this horse as the real contender from the west.

Black Panther ran well at a mile and 70 yards, this season, winning twice and placing second in three races before the Preakness. He was forced to take the overland route in the big stake from first to last; yet had enough left to finish fourth. This horse has had to come from behind in all his races this year, so he may be a slow breaker. At that, he beat Bostonian in finishing second to Saxon at Jamaica.

As for Scapa Flow, his hope, if any, would seem to be a heavy track. He ran well in the mud at Pimlico last Friday but the going was bad in the Preakness and so was Scapa, which just about makes it a stand off. On his Preakness form, the Jeffords colt won't stand the racket for a mile and a quarter.

WANTED BAN TO HEAR BOTH SIDES

DETROIT, May 12.—Although expressing regret that Ban Johnson, president of the American league, did not see fit to "hear both sides of the case," Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, today declared that he regarded the action of Johnson in fining Ty Cobb and Al Simmons $200 each as a closed incident. The players were fined for their part in an argument with Umpire Emmett Ormsby in the Boston-Philadelphia game in Philadelphia last Thursday.

McTigue-Heeney Matched.

'BUCH'S' OLD 880 MARK STILL GOOD

Local Lad Shares Half-mile Record With Perkins.

East Liverpool high school still has a share in equity in Columbiana county interscholastic track and field records which, in recent years, have shown a leaning toward the northern end of the county.

In 1916 Ernest Bucher traveled once around the oval at the county fairgrounds to make the half mile in two minutes and five seconds and the record stood until 10 years later, last year, to be exact, when Perkins, Salem's stellar middle distance man, negotiated the 880-yard jaunt in exactly the same time. The two hold it jointly now.

Other county records are still pretty well distributed among the schools of the northern end of the county as Blue and White followers await the appearance of another "Ernie" Bucher.

Bucher was so far above the rest of the field in the half mile in the several years in which he ran that he was really never forced to win. In other words, it is the opinion that if Bucher had ran up against an opponent of something near his own calibre, the chances are that his mark of 2 minutes and five seconds would have been reduced. As it was the local lad had little trouble in outclassing the field.

Records at which county schools will shoot in Saturday's annual meet follow:

220 Low Hurdles—Gregg, Salem, 1926, time 27 seconds.

Pole Vault—Allen, Salem, 1926, height, 11 feet, 9 5-8 inches.

Half Mile Run—Jointly held by Bucher, East Liverpool, 1916, and Perkins, Salem, 1926, time, 2 minutes, 5 seconds.

440 Yard Dash—Gaines, Columbiana, 1920, time 52 seconds.

Mile Run—Campbell, Wellsville, 1916, time 4 minutes, 47 4-5 seconds.

THREE SOFT BALL TILTS ON TONIGHT

Three More Friday Will Complete Week's Card.

Klondyke, Northside and Newell will provide the locale for three Recreation League engagements scheduled for tonight.

The National Furnitures, defeated in their first start of the season, will tackle the Ohio Powers on the Klondyke diamond, in Harvey avenue. The Powers won their opener and in the event of a victory for the Furnitures tonight, the two clubs would rate a .500 percentage.

Heinies, another undefeated squad, will tangle with Smith News, which lost its opener, the setto being billed for Northside.

Laughlin, East End, will make its debut on the Newell grounds against the Newell Laughlin entry.

Harry Davies will umpire at Klondyke, Lorah at the Northside and Waters at Newell.

On Friday's assignment, Bulger Drugs and the Review-Tribune will clash at Klondyke. One of them is sure to land in the .500 class after this encounter, both having won their openers. The Workingman's Store will play the Y. M. C. A. at Upper Columbian park and Roselawns will meet the Johannes Drugs at Northside.

The umpire assignment is: Davies at Klondyke; Waters at Upper Columbian park; and Lorah at Northside.

DELANEY MAY BE FIRST FOR JACK

NEW YORK, May 12.—The possibility loomed today that Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, may be Jack Dempsey's first opponent when the former heavyweight king returns to the ring. It is said that Delaney will inform the New York state athletic commission tomorrow that he intends to vacate his title and enter the heavyweight ranks.

Paulino Uzcudun, the basque heavyweight, is scheduled as Dempsey's first opponent, but if Paulino fails to dispose of Ed Keeley in their bout in Boston, his bout with Dempsey would cause no great rush to the turnstiles. In that event Dempsey would take on Delaney instead of Paulino, it was pointed out.

Rickard already has announced that Dempsey has agreed to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney fracas if victorious in his first bout. It is now believed that Dempsey will start east from California about the middle of next month.

2 GOTHAN CLUBS LEAD

Babe's Eighth Homer Gives Yanks Win Over Browns.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 12.—New York's baseball teams are setting the pace in both leagues today. The Giants handed the Cardinals a 10 to 1 drubbing yesterday and knocked the world's champions out of first place in the National League, while Babe Ruth's eighth home run of the season enabled the Yankees to beat the Browns again, 4 to 2, and keep their two game lead over the White Sox intact.

The Giants slaughtered Jesse Haines, who had been leading the league pitchers with five victories and no defeats, while the Cards couldn't hit McQuillan with a sashweight, Hornsby hit his sixth homer and drove in five runs in all.

Ruth's four base swat ruined Ernie Nevers, who twirled for the Browns. Ernie was good but Urban Shocker was better. The Browns are now in seventh place.

Dr. Ted Lyons of the White Sox successfully amputated the three game winning streak of Horace Lisenbee, youthful Washington twirler. Lyons held the Senators to four hits and Ward hit a double with the bases jammed as the Sox won, 4 to 1.

Ban Johnson plastered a $200 fine on Ty Cobb and Ty promptly vented his ire on the Tigers, clouting two doubles and stealing a base. The Athletics won, 3 to 1, Quinn outpitching Holloway.

Hack Wilson delivered his sixth homer but the Cubs lost to the Phillies, 5 to 2. The Phils advanced to third place, while Chicago flopped back into second division.

Cincinnati took a lease on the National league cellar by losing to Brooklyn, 7 to 5. Both Pete Donahue and Jess Petty, the starting pitchers, took their showers early by request.

The Boston Braves had the Pirates on the run when rain halted the game in the eighth with the score tied at four all.

Rain held the Indians and the Red Sox idle.

BILLIARDS TRANSFER TWO GAMES

Play Laughlin and Turk Nash at Columbian Park.

Four contests—two on this side of the river and two in West Virginia—will mark the conclusion of the first successful week of City Industrial League competition.

Manager Ed McVeigh's American Billiards are slated to entertain the Newell Laughlin nine tonight in the East End. This engagement was to have been played, naturally, at Klondyke, the Billiards' home grounds, but with the state line lot still in dubious condition, Manager McVey thought it best to transfer the tilt to Columbian park, home ground of the K. T. K. aggregation. The Klondyke infield has not yet been smoothed out to the complete satisfaction of the Billiards' officials.

On Friday night the Billiards will play the Turk Nash club and it is possible also that this game, too, will be taken to Columbian park, with K. T. K. idle.

The Katies will be playing tonight against the Chester Superior Cord Tires at Smith Field, Chester.

The other encounter on Friday night's layout will send the Wellsville Nash Motor nine into action against Pilot Dailey's Home Laughlin combine, on the Newell lot.

Eight Derby Hopefuls Get Play As Big Turf Event Nears

Klondyke, Northside and Newell will provide the locale for three Recreation League engagements scheduled for tonight.

The National Furnitures, defeated in their first start of the season, will tackle the Ohio Powers on the Klondyke diamond in Harvey avenue. The Powers won their opener and in the event of a victory for the Furnitures tonight, the two clubs would rate a .500 percentage.

Heimies, another undefeated squad, will tangle with Smith News, which lost its opener, the setto being billed for Northside.

Laughlin, East End, will make its debut on the Newell grounds against the Newell Laughlin entry.

Harry Davies will umpire at Klondyke, Lorah at the Northside and Waters at Newell.

On Friday's assignment, Bulger Drugs and the Review-Tribune will clash at Klondyke. One of them is sure to land in the .500 class after this encounter, both having won their openers. The Workingman's Store will play the Y. M. C. A. at Upper Columbian park and Roselawns will meet the Johannes Drugs at Northside.

The umpire assignment is: Davies at Klondyke; Waters at Upper Columbian park; and Lorah at Northside.

DELANEY MAY BE FIRST FOR JACK

NEW YORK, May 12.—The possibility loomed today that Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, may be Jack Dempsey's first opponent when the former heavyweight king returns to the ring. It is said that Delaney will inform the New York state athletic commission tomorrow that he intends to vacate his title and enter the heavyweight ranks.

Paulino Uzcudun, the basque heavyweight, is scheduled as Dempsey's first opponent, but if Paulino fails to dispose of Ed Keeley in their bout in Boston, his bout with Dempsey would cause no great rush to the turnstiles. In that event Dempsey would take on Delaney instead of Paulino, it was pointed out.

Rickard already has announced that Dempsey has agreed to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney fracas if victorious in his first bout. It is now believed that Dempsey will start east from California about the middle of next month.

2 GOTHAM CLUBS LEAD

Babe's Eighth Homer Gives Yanks Win Over Browns.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 12.—New York's baseball teams are setting the pace in both leagues today. The Giants handed the Cardinals a 10 to 1 drubbing yesterday and knocked the world's champions out of first place in the National League, while Babe Ruth's eighth home run of the season enabled the Yankees to beat the Browns again, 4 to 2, and keep their two game lead over the White Sox intact.

The Giants slaughtered Jesse Haines, who had been leading the league pitchers with five victories and no defeats, while the Cards couldn't hit McQuillan with a sashweight, Hornsby hit his sixth homer and drove in five runs in all.

Ruth's four base swat ruined Ernie Nevers, who twirled for the Browns. Ernie was good but Urban Shocker was better. The Browns are now in seventh place.

Dr. Ted Lyons of the White Sox successfully amputated the three game winning streak of Horace Lisenbee, youthful Washington twirler. Lyons held the Senators to four hits and Ward hit a double with the bases jammed as the Sox won, 4 to 1.

Ban Johnson plastered a $200 fine on Ty Cobb and Ty promptly vented his ire on the Tigers, clouting two doubles and stealing a base. The Athletics won, 3 to 1, Quinn outpitching Holloway.

Hack Wilson delivered his sixth homer but the Cubs lost to the Phillies, 5 to 2. The Phils advanced to third place, while Chicago flopped back into second division.

Cincinnati took a lease on the National league cellar by losing to Brooklyn, 7 to 5. Both Pete Donahue and Jess Petty, the starting pitchers, took their showers early by request.

The Boston Braves had the Pirates on the run when rain halted the game in the eighth with the score tied at four all.

Rain held the Indians and the Red Sox idle.

Play Laughlin and Turk Nash at Columbian Park.

Four contests—two on this side of the river and two in West Virginia—will mark the conclusion of the first successful week of City Industrial League competition.

Manager Ed McVeigh's American Billiards are slated to entertain the Newell Laughlin nine tonight in the East End. This engagement was to have been played, naturally, at Klondyke, the Billiards' home grounds, but with the state line lot still in dubious condition, Manager McVey thought it best to transfer the tilt to Columbian park, home ground of the K. T. K. aggregation. The Klondyke infield has not yet been smoothed out to the complete satisfaction of the Billiards' officials.

On Friday night the Billiards will play the Turk Nash club and it is possible also that this game, too, will be taken to Columbian park, with K. T. K. idle.

The Katies will be playing tonight against the Chester Superior Cord Tires at Smith Field, Chester.

The other encounter on Friday night's layout will send the Wellsville Nash Motor nine into action against Pilot Dailey's Home Laughlin combine on the Newell lot.

Sports Done Brown

By Norman E. Brown.

PAOLINO UZCUDUN, bounding Basque of the Pyrenees, who stepped from meager living with his fists in his homeland to a fortune in the rings of New York over night, may not be a clever boxer or a hard hitter, or a match for Jack Dempsey.

BUT HE IS NOT DUMB.

Wherefore there should be rejoicing. This sets him apart from most of the cauliflower ear artists.

The other day Tex Rickard, who has been playing a sort of glorified shell game with all and sundry heavyweights, met with Senor Paolino and associated parties, to sign him for two fights—the first with Jack Dempsey and the second with the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney fight (provided Senor Paolino won in his first effort).

Senor Paolino was enthusiastic about signing. He offered only one suggestion. That was that, in exchange for signing up for the two fights he receive a posted forfeit from Rickard of $25,000 to protect himself should the battle with Jack Dempsey fail to come off.

Mr. Rickard thought of him in terms of whippersnapper, upstart and other things. Paolino explained calmly that it was merely a business proposition with him. While training for his fight with Dempsey, July 9, he could not accept other engagements and failure of the Dempsey bout to materialize would deprive him of a chance to earn a few honest nickels in some other promoter's ring.

Now this was the first time in the history of the ring game that a mere pretender to the throne had asked the promoter to post a forfeit. It has been the habit for years for the defending champion to insure himself against loss of time, vaudeville engagements and tooth paste ads by demanding that the promoter post a juicy forfeit several months in advance. Rickard is already $200,000 "in" on Gene Tunney's next appearance, against whoever may be sent into the ring against him. Tunney, in signing over the right to his services for a year to Rickard made the promoter agree to deposit 100 grand last winter and another like sum this spring as an indication of good faith.

But for Paolino, a "second rate" fighter, based on his record to date, and a greenhorn in American high ring finances, to come across with that straight left to Rickard's pocketbook—why it was unheard of. It just isn't done, that's all.

But Paolino and his advisers had the right idea. The Spaniard must capitalize on his name while he still remains the colorful newcomer that he is. Two socks on the button by a couple of hams and his Spanish atmosphere will be wasted on the desert air.

Having defeated Charley Paddock, world's fastest human, in a 220-yard dash at Phoenix, Ariz., recently John Francis Scott, above, of the University of Arizona and captain of the track team there, is ready for Roland Locke and the others. Scott's time against Paddock was 22 1-5 seconds, 1.7 seconds slower than the record.

Berlenbach Back June 6.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The date for Paul Berlenbach's return to the ring has been set for June 6 when the former light heavyweight champion will fight Jake Warren, Chicago negro heavyweight here.

Sports Done Brown

By Norman E. Brown.

PAOLINO UZCUDUN, bounding Basque of the Pyrenees, who stepped from meager living with his fists in his homeland to a fortune in the rings of New York over night may not be a clever boxer or a hard hitter, or a match for Jack Dempsey.

BUT HE IS NOT DUMB.

Wherefore there should be rejoicing. This sets him apart from most of the cauliflower ear artists.

The other day Tex Rickard, who has been playing a sort of glorified shell game with all and sundry heavyweights, met with Senor Paolino and associated parties, to sign him for two fights—the first with Jack Dempsey and the second with the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney fight (provided Senor Paolino won in his first effort).

Senor Paolino was enthusiastic about signing. He offered only one suggestion. That was that, in exchange for signing up for the two fights he receive a posted forfeit from Rickard of $25,000 to protect himself should the battle with Jack Dempsey fail to come off.

Mr. Rickard thought of him in terms of whippersnapper, upstart and other things. Paolino explained calmly that it was merely a business proposition with him. While training for his fight with Dempsey, July 9, he could not accept other engagements and failure of the Dempsey bout to materialize would deprive him of a chance to earn a few honest nickels in some other promoter's ring.

Now this was the first time in the history of the ring game that a mere pretender to the throne had asked the promoter to post a forfeit. It has been the habit for years for the defending champion to insure himself against loss of time, vaudeville engagements and tooth paste ads by demanding that the promoter post a juicy forfeit several months in advance. Rickard is already $200,000 "in" on Gene Tunney's next appearance, against whoever may be sent into the ring against him. Tunney, in signing over the right to his services for a year to Rickard made the promoter agree to deposit 100 grand last winter and another like sum this spring as an indication of good faith.

But for Paolino, a "second rate" fighter, based on his record to date, and a greenhorn in American high ring finances, to come across with that straight left to Rickard's pocket book—why it was unheard of. It just isn't done, that's all.

But Paolino and his advisers had the right idea. The Spaniard must capitalize on his name while he still remains the colorful newcomer that he is. Two socks on the button by a couple of hams and his Spanish atmosphere will be wasted on the desert air.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

EGYPTIAN ENVOY TELLS HOW NILE IS FORCED TO BEHAVE

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Mahmoud Samy Pasha undoubtedly has told more floods "where to head in at" than any other man in the United States.

SAMY PASHA

Mr. Samy is Egyptian minister in Washington.

He's an engineer. His engineering specialty, at home, is making the Nile behave.

Regularly every year, since long before the first pharaoh began building pyramids, the Nile has started to go on the rampage, just as the Mississippi did this year.

With equal regularity, the river control folks have taken the venerable stream in charge, adapted all the solid part of it to soil fertilization, utilized all they wanted of its liquid ingredient for irrigation purposes, and emptied the rest out into the Mediterranean, as casually as you'd drain the water out of your bathtub.

OF course it mustn't be assumed that the Nile control system was as perfect when Moses was still living in Egypt as it is today.

Even then it possibly was better than our present Mississippi river system, but M. Samy doesn't feel that that's boasting much about it. Now, however, he assures us, it's as dependable as a flivver factory.

They simply don't have Nile valley floods, Mr. Samy says.

They have irrigation, because they need it, but it's regulated to a bee's knee.

M. SAMY put all his trust in levees. They have gates in them to let out such water as the crops require—that much and no more—and that's all they do let out.

They've stronger levees than the Mississippi's, and higher. They have a five-foot safety margin, instead of only two feet, as on the Mississippi. Some are set back from the river half a mile or a mile and some are not, depending on circumstances. In places there are two sets.

"Oh, yes, the initial expense is high," agrees M. Samy, "but they pay for themselves."

THERE also are revetments where they're needed, and the river's course is given a certain amount of direction, but in the main the system is one of levees.

As for breaks—

"There's no danger of breaks," says M. Samy, "if leaks are stopped promptly, and that's a mere question of careful watching, and having plenty of men on the job the minute they're needed.

The Egyptian government provides the men by conscription, as for the military service. They don't have to be sent for. They're there. There's a jail penalty for not being.

"It works, anyway," is M. Samy's knock-out answer to all the critics of the system.

M. SAMY isn't enthusiastic over headwater reservoirs.

Egypt has one of the largest in the world—formed by the Assuan dam.

"From an engineering standpoint it's a wonderful success," says M. Samy, "but ever since it's been in operation, the region it affects has shown a steady decline in cotton and cereal yields per acre.

"I don't know why. Maybe it's just a spiteful trick of nature. At any rate, it's a poor advertisement for storage reservoirs."

FORESTRY experts blame destruction of its headwater timber for the Mississippi's unmanageability.

The Niles rises in the Abyssinian mountain. They're thickly wooden, now as always. If their trees were swept away, would the Nile still be controllable?

M. Samy shrugs his shoulders. Never having tried it under circumstances, he doesn't know. Yet he has vast confidence in his well-guarded levees. It's hard to convince him Mississippi floods are inevitable.

Kills Roaches, Bed-Bugs, Ants, This Sure Way

Here is the simple and quick way to kill bed-bugs, roaches and ants: Just pour some of the new chemical discovery—P.D.Q., wherever you find these pests. The moment it touches the insects—they die. Can do no damage to your springs or furniture; won't rot or stain clothing. P.D.Q. is used and recommended by leading hotels, hospitals and railroads as the quickest and safest way of getting rid of pesky insects. Instantly it smothers and kills the living creatures; coats their eggs and stops them from hatching and multiplying. A 35c package of this golden chemical will make a quart of mixture—so deadly it will kill a million bed-bugs. P.D.Q. can also be had in double-strength liquid form—ready for use. Free patent spout enables you to reach hard-to-get-at-places with ease. Get P.D.Q. at your druggist's today. Your money back, if the bugs are not gone tomorrow.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is on e safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Mathews Original Cut Rate who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

Following the confession of David Kelly in Glasgow court recently that he had knocked down his sweetheart and severely carved her with a razor, the magistrate ruled that "when the girl did not want him it was a brutal thing to assault her in this way," and sent him to jail.

Why "90%" Are Still Suffering.

It is a glorious thing to awake with a lively, healthy, energetic body. It is a misery to drag an aching, tired, weary body from a restless, sleepless bed. W. K. Holland, Harlingen, Texas, thus: "I bet that 90% of those suffering from kidney irregularities never take anything for kidney regulation until it is too late, whereas Foley Pills diuretic would be a god-send to them, as they have been to me." A reliable, valuable medicine, constantly in use over 25 years. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. Sold everywhere.

Ten thousand Circassions from the Caucasus who emigrated to Turkey during the Russo-Turkish war in 1864, and were transplanted by Turkey to Trans-Jordan, still refuse to accept new ideas and are clinging to their racial dress, language and customs.

They've stronger levees than the Mississippi's, and higher. They have a five-foot safety margin, instead of only two feet, as on the Mississippi. Some are set back from the river half a mile or a mile and some are not, depending on circumstances. In places there are two sets.

"Oh, yes, the initial expense is high," agrees M. Samy, "but they pay for themselves."

THERE also are revetments where they're needed, and the river's course is given a certain amount of direction, but in the main the system is one of levees.

As for breaks—

"There's no danger of breaks," says M. Samy, "if leaks are stopped promptly, and that's a mere question of careful watching, and having plenty of men on the job the minute they're needed.

The Egyptian government provides the men by conscription, as for the military service. They don't have to be sent for. They're there. There's a jail penalty for not being.

"It works, anyway," is M. Samy's knock-out answer to all the critics of the system.

M. SAMY isn't enthusiastic over headwater reservoirs.

Egypt has one of the largest in the world—formed by the Assuan dam.

"From an engineering standpoint it's a wonderful success," says M. Samy, "but ever since it's been in operation, the region it affects has shown a steady decline in cotton and cereal yields per acre.

"I don't know why. Maybe it's just a spiteful trick of nature. At any rate, it's a poor advertisement for storage reservoirs."

FORESTRY experts blame destruction of its headwater timber for the Mississippi's unmanageability.

The Niles rises in the Abyssinian mountain. They're thickly wooded, now as always. If their trees were swept away, would the Nile still be controllable?

M. Samy shrugs his shoulders. Never having tried it under circumstances, he doesn't know. Yet he has vast confidence in his well-guarded levees. It's hard to convince him Mississippi floods are inevitable.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Mathews Original Cut Rate who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

Following the confession of David Kelly in Glasgow court recently that he had knocked down his sweetheart and severely carved her with a razor, the magistrate ruled that "when the girl did not want him it was a brutal thing to assault her in this way," and sent him to jail.

Why "90%" Are Still Suffering.

It is a glorious thing to awake with a lively, healthy, energetic body. It is a misery to drag an aching, tired, weary body from a restless, sleepless bed. W. K. Holland, Harlingen, Texas, thus: "I bet that 90% of those suffering from kidney irregularities never take anything for kidney regulation until it is too late, whereas Foley Pills diuretic would be a god-send to them, as they have been to me." A reliable, valuable medicine, constantly in use over 25 years. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. Sold everywhere.

Two Sorowful Women.

What Good in Killing?
Cheerful Wall Street.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 12. — In Paris, two sorrowful women, the mothers of Nungesser and his companion, Capt. Coli, weep and pray for their sons, lost on the ocean.

"Every week since my boy became an aviator," says Madame Coli, "I have gone to implore Our Lady of Legarde for him."

Hope that the men may return safely will last several days, even a week or two. A slow steamer or sailing ship without radio may have picked them up. The chance seems slight, but both men possess extraordinary courage and resourcefulness and may return, to attempt that ocean flight again. Nothing will stop either of them.

DR. RAYMOND PEARL, chief of Johns Hopkins university biological research, says New York city will have 28,765,000 population 70 years hence. How much do you suppose a corner will be worth then with three streets one above the other, and subway below the three.

The real New York city will be on Long Island. Manhattan will be a big business office with flying machines landing on roofs 200 stories high. The main local landing for trans-Atlantic planes will be at Montauk Point, with through planes going on to Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City. Every city an airport.

IN THE Snyder murder case there is something more important than a horrible story, with its sashweght, picture wire, chloroform and unlimited bootleg whisky.

The strange thing is the eagerness expressed by many, women and men, that the convicted woman and man should, without fail, die in the electric chair. Some apparently consider the approaching executions as a sort of victory for themselves.

WHAT good will those executions do? They will add one more horror to a horrible crime. Is it desirable, in the name of justice, that a woman, screaming and struggling, be strapped in the electric chair, put to death by a combination of law and science?

WALL STREET had a comfortable day, stocks selling at high prices, oil just a little feverish. There is more oil than the country can use, but too much is better than too little, and our 12 million automobiles, plus oil burning ships, locomotives and furnaces, will attend to that.

OLD philosophers suggested that as there are defectives united in the human family, murderers, maniacs, thieves, so there may be imperfect specimens among the billions of planets sailing through space. Ours seems to be a hysterical planet, with its wars, plagues, race hatreds, tornadoes, earthquakes, famines.

Fortunately it is still young ,and may be only a baby planet having fits, soon to be cured.

TIRES LOADED IN ONE AUTOMOBILE

New Two-door Sedan and Coupe, Latter Owned by Lisbon Veterinarian, are Reported Missing.

Three new Buick automobiles, a dozen tires, about $100 in cash and a stock of groceries and other merchandise were taken in three robberies, two at Lisbon and one at Salineville, last night and early today.

Tires Worth $150 Taken

The new Buick sedan and coupe, valued at $1,150, were stolen from the Hart [illegible] any's garage and sales room, [illegible] street, Salineville, at 3 o'clock this morning. Entrance was effected by breaking a window at the rear of the garage. Doors leading into the stock room where the tires were stored and to the office, where the cash register was looted, were battered open. The thieves also jimmied the locks in the front doors of the garage.

A woman residing near the garage was awakened by the pounding of the lock in the garage. A few minutes later a car was driven out of the garage and headed in the direction of Wellsville. Later the machine returned and is believed to have taken the road in the direction of Carrollton or Summitville.

The woman believed the car to have been driven by Samuel Hart, owner of the garage, and gave no alarm.

Hart found the garage doors standing open at 7 o'clock this morning. He notified the sheriff's office and the Wellsville police.

Cash and Groceries Stolen.

Glass in the front door of the Crubaugh garage, Lincoln highway, south of Lisbon, was broken and the lock in the door slipped back. A new Buick coupe, owned by Dr. A. C. McCandless, Lisbon veterinarian, was stolen. Nothing else in the garage so far as could be determined by the owner was missing.

The Atlantic and Pacific tea store, South Market street, Lisbon, was entered through the rear door. The thieves, after smashing a window glass, reached through the opening, turning back the door lock and also a door bar.

Between $50 and $100 in cash and a quantity of merchandise were secured. The value of merchandise cannot be determined until after an inventory is made by the manager.

Sheriff Wright made an investigation of the three robberies at noon.

Seeks Another Hearing on Anania Murder Charge.

Arguments on a motion for a new trial filed by Salvatore Rini, 22, of East Liverpool, found guilty by a jury of second degree murder in the death of Pasquale (Patsy) Anania, 25, of Wellsville, will be heard in common pleas court, Lisbon, Friday, by Judge W. F. Lones.

The question was to have been argued yesterday afternoon, but a postponement was asked by Defense Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville. "We only received a copy of the charge of the court this morning, and we are not prepared at this time to argue the motion," said O'Grady.

Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes, ready to proceed, urged that the matter be disposed of.

Rini and his mother and father were in court when the postponement was ordered by Judge Lones.

In the event the defense motion is overruled, it is expected that Judge Lones will sentence Rini to life imprisonment.

Rini was convicted of the death of Anania, whose body, with a knife wound in the heart, was found in his (Rini's) apartment in East Liverpool on last March 22.

MAZER'S GIRL TESTIFIES FOR PROSECUTION IN MELLETT DEATH

Woman's Testimony Blow at Floyd Streitenberger's Defense.

CONFIRMS STORY

Canton Man Will Attack Evidence Given by Squealer.

CANTON, O., May 12.—Doll Carey, known as "Louie" Mazer's sweetheart, took the witness stand today and added her bit to the testimony, through which the state expects to convict Floyd Streitenberger, former Canton detective, of first degree murder for alleged complicity in the killing of Don Mellett, Canton publisher, here last July.

Thelma Harris on Stand.

The woman confirmed Mazer's story that Streitenberger came to her home the night preceding the murder, looking for Louis. Streitenberger and Mazer went into the kitchen, she said, to hold some sort of a conference, and then left the house, together.

Several days after the killing Streitenberger came back to the house to get a pistol that Mazer had left there, she testified. This gun, according to Mazer's story, was the revolver he had given to Pat McDermott, convicted slayer of the young editor.

Thelma Harris, an inmate of Doll Carey's house, also testified today. Her testimony was along the same line as that of the Carey woman.

Peggy Cavanaugh, Cleveland waitress, known as "Pat McDermott's girl, while the gunman was "hiding out" in Cleveland, was to take the stand this afternoon. The state will probably rest its case immediately afterward, Prosecutor Harter announced.

Lengel Defense Witness.

S. A. Lengel, ousted chief of Canton police, will be the first defense witness, according to attorneys for the defense.

Streitenberger's counsel has announced it will probably take two days to examine defense witnesses, which indicates the case may go to the jury Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

J. H. Robertson and Frank E. Bow, defense attorneys, declared today they would attempt to "tear down" the story of Mazer, jointly indicted for the Mellett murder, who occupied the stand for the state during the larger part of Wednesday's session. Mazer in his testimony, implied that the defendant, Streitenberger was the instigator of the plot to "beat up Mellett," which resulted in the assassination of the newspaperman. The most startling part of Mazer's testimony was his statement that the conspiracy was formulated "under the roof of police headquarters," and that a squad of police who followed the auto in which Streitenberger and himself were riding after the murder, "to pick up Pat McDermott," (now serving life for the crime), made no effort to stop the murder car and question the occupants.

Eagles' Fish Fry In Lodge Temple On Friday Night

East Liverpool aerie, No. 457, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will entertain with a fish fry for the benefit of the degree team in the Broadway lodge temple, between 5:30 and 8 o'clock Friday evening.

Proceeds will be used in defraying the expenses of the degree team to the state convention at Youngstown, June 19-22. The committee in charge of the affair is composed of Joseph Shaffer, Orville Morgan, Martin Odas, Harry Price and William Webb.

The public is invited to attend.

POLICE SEARCH FOR RUNAWAYS

Police today were asked to be on the lookout for James Linn, 14, and Earl Patterson, 14, Steubenville, runaways, who left their home yesterday.

The boys were traced as far as Toronto. They are believed to have been headed toward East Liverpool. Both youngsters wore light suits but had no caps. The Linn boy wore short pants while his companion had long trousers.

CHIEF EFFORT OF FLOOD RELIEF MACHINERY NARROWS DOWN TODAY TO 21 SMALLPOX PATIENTS

BATON ROUGE, La., May 12.—The chief effort of the $10,000,000 Mississippi flood relief machinery narrowed today from hundreds of thousands of homeless to twenty-one smallpox patients.

A battered old river steamer shoved into the Red Cross camp at Harrisonburg, Catahoula parish, last evening with twenty-two refugees from Dailey's Landing. All were whites. Twenty-one had smallpox.

They had been rescued from the second floor of a farm dwelling 150 miles up the Beouff river, where they had been marooned for ten days. There had been sufficient food, but nothing else. Medical supplies were beyond miles of muddy water. All sanitary facilitie[illegible] were lacking.

Airplanes Carry Serum.

Today the sorry little band is attended in the pine forests at the tip of the Bayou Macon Hills, where an isolation camp is in readiness for all others from the same district whom the rescue armada of stricken Louisiana can round up. The entire community about Dailey's Landing will be rushed, post haste, to Harrisonburg.

Airplanes took off from Natchez at day break to carry serum to camp. Everyone rescued along the northern reaches of the Beouff and its tributaries will be isolated for weeks. Everyone in Harrisonburg will be inoculated.

Although there are three refugee camps in the Harrisonburg district, caring for approximately 2,000 refugees, Red Cross medical officers believe that immediate isolation of the new arrivals has curbed the probabilities of a devastating epidemic of the dread disease.

Red Cross Work Finds Refugees.

Dailey's Landing is in Franklin parish, in the north end of the state, the section which has been under water for alomst two weeks from the Arkansas overflow.

The stricken knot of refugees was discovered by Miss Winifred Callahan, a volunteer Red Cross worker, who flew from Harrisonburg to Natchez in a navy seaplane to prepare the concentration center there for its last great fight. Today she flew back with thousands of tubes of vaccine. Miss Callahan has been connected recently with civic welfare organizations in Cleveland, Ohio. Her home is in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Armed guards patrol the Harrisonburg isolation camp. When the rescue boat arrived doctors recognized immediately that the desolate cargo were afflicted with some contagious disease. No one was permitted aboard. National guardsmen took up a twilight vigil against new disaster in flood-staggered Louisiana.

Cope With Another Disaster.

While smallpox threatened new havoc in northern Louisiana, sand boil in the main channel levees increased the tension throughout the southern half of the state, which has been keyed for days for a break in the bayou Des Glaises levees in southern Aveyelles parish.

"The water behind this last barrier of the flood have been rising six inches a day for the last three days.

This amazing reduction is brought about by a mysterious little device that is easily installed on any car in a few minutes' time. E. Oliver, 1041-890 W. Winnebago St., Milwaukee, Misc., is so proud of this invention that for a limited time he is offering the device free to auto owners who will help introduce it. He also needs men everywhere and offers profits of $75 to $150 a week to men who will handle local business. Write him at once for his free sample offer and money making proposition.—Adv.

Chromium Plating Now Used by U. S. in Manufacturing Coins

The features that have made chromium plating attractive to motorists since introduction on Oldsmobile radiator shells during the past year are being put to work by the United States government in manufacturing money at lower cost. This ultra-hard plating is now being used to improve the protective surface of the plates from which our paper is printed. Its use has resulted in a substantial saving to the government.

Until recently the currency printing plates were made by rolling the design into a soft steel plate which was then case-hardened. These yielded from 30,000 to 70,000 impressions before the fine lines of the plate were spoiled by the abrasive particles of pigment in the inks and the heavy pressure used in printing.

Electrolytic plates composed of layers of copper and nickel were tried. These were cheaper to make but did not last as long. Then experiments were made with chromium plating. A report from the United Engineering society states that this plating, deposited on the nickel surface of an electrolytic plate in a film only two ten-thousandths of an inch thick increases the useful life of the plate at least four times that of a nickel surface and twice that of a case-hardened steel surface.

Tests made by the U. S. bureau of statistics of scratching chromium with a diamond show that it is the hardest metal thus far examined. It was the bureau that developed chromium plating methods for currency printing.

"DEVIL HORSE" STRAND FILM

Black Stallion Hero of Romance of West.

The entire population of the Crow Indian reservation in Montana worked for months in the Hal Roach production, "The Devil Horse," coming to the Strand theatre Friday and Saturday, as a starring vehicle for Rex, king of wild horses.

The princely black stallion is the hero of a romance of the early West, written from historical legend by Hal Roach and directed by Fred Jackman, with Rex, Lady, the Killer, Gladys McConnell, Yakima Canutt, Robert Kortman, Roy Clements and Jackman's son, Fred, Jr., in the cost.

Jackman went to Lodge Grass, Montana, scene of Custer's last fight several weeks in advance of the filming, and there met the leaders of the Indians in conference and made arrangements for the appearance of the entire tribe in the story. This does not mean that the Indians appear in a half dozen scenes or an atmospheric flash, but throughout the picture. They are the real Crow Indians—not actors made up in imitation of the braves.

The Indians found the making of motion pictures interesting and full of thrills for them. It is hardly necessary to remind the public, however, that the Indians of today, particularly these of the Crow reservation, are mostly college graduates and not primitive people unable to understand modern inventions. Yet the Hal Roach film troupe, found them all living in tepees, with blanket garb, just as their uncivilized forefathers lived. Many of them easily comprehended the workings of the camera used in taking scenes and other technical things, from their studies in school, but they wore the real Indian garb and gave no indication of a desire to change.

Floods And Booms

There is some talk now of the great Mississippi flood starting a business boom in this country. Theodore H. Price, a leading business analyst, explains the theory in a newspaper article, as follows:

"The dimensions of the extraordinary disaster have come to be appreciated and it is evident that the whole country will demand that its repetition shall be prevented. There is a feeling that the government will be compelled to spend at least a billion dollars in flood prevention work and that the expenditure of this great sum will increase the demand for everything, quicken the circulation of money and resuscitate the speculative movement that appeared to be languishing two weeks ago. How far this theory is warranted remains to be seen, but it is sustained by some precedents, and by its appeal to the imagination the decline in the stock market has been arrested."

Yes, it would liven things up generally in the business world, no doubt, if Uncle Sam undertook to spend anything like a billion dollars in flood relief and reconstruction. Many would welcome that. But let us not deceive ourselves about any business boom resulting from that sort of stimulus.

People with necessary materials to sell would profit. Manufacturers and middlemen would gain. Since everybody is a consumer, many consumers, caught in the various currents of prosperity set up by the circulation of so much money, would profit in some way or other. But the great mass of consumers would lose, in having to pay higher prices for their necessaries. And the whole public, whose money Uncle Sam spends, would have to pay it sooner or later in the form of taxes.

Whatever is destroyed is a dead loss. Replacement of lost goods, or reconstruction of a bad job, always has to be paid for. A great catastrophe, whether war or fire or flood, inevitably levies its toll first on the immediate sufferers, and then on all of the vast, interwoven social organization they belong to.

Only—and this is worth remembering—the moral and spiritual impetus gained in heroically setting to work to overcome a calamity sometimes carries people ahead so that in the end they are better off than they would have been without the calamity. That is the reward of courage.

The Prune Prize

The $50 prize offered by a California organization of prune producers for the best essay on prunes has been won by Miss Zoe Wolcott, the young lady who runs the cafeteria in the Kansas State Teachers' college.

Miss Wolcott, in her eulogy of the prune, explained how that humble fruit may be made so attractive and tempting that restaurant patrons will clamor for it.

Unquestionably that can be done, by any cook who uses culinary intelligence in preparing her prunes. And strange as some folks may consider this assertion, the same thing can be done with apple sauce and spinach, or almost anything else that is "good for you" but often spoiled in the cooking.

What most cooks, especially restaurant cooks, do to these wholesome and potentially delicious articles of food is a crime for which they should be sentenced for life to eat what they cook.

Now that a little more attention is being paid to the proper preparation of prunes and spinach, a friend of the apple in all its edible forms feels like making a plea for the redemption of apple sauce from its low estate.

Apple pie is probably the most popular food in America. Most pie-eaters eat apple pie not for the crust, but for what's in it. Why should cooked apple be any less delicious by itself than as pie-filler? It's all in the cooking. Let the experts apply their brain-power to this problem, and let the apple growers make it worth their while.

An Outdoor Club

A new type of club has been organized in Ashtabula, O. It is the Outdoor club, established by 100 residents of that city. They have dammed a small river and formed a 13-acre lake for fishing, boating and swimming. They have purchased a 1200-acre tract of land which is to be preserved for members and their children as a great playground.

Members drew choices for lots in the club preserve and are allowed to do whatever they want—within certain restrictions—on their own lots. One family, for example, may have a log cabin; another may go in for a miniature forest preserve. One member says he has 18 different varieties of native trees growing in his 40 by 80 "forest."

There will be children's plagrounds, facilities for boating, swimming, trap-shooting, rifle practice, fishing, tennis, baseball and just about everything except golf.

Golf is omitted simply because the members have other opportunities to play that game at near-by country or golf clubs. The Outdoor club is to meet hitherto unfilled needs. It is much like a great park, privately owned and controlled by a group of citizens who appreciate outdoor life and want to get it close to their homes.

If Sacco and Vanzetti had been tried for murder in some of our other states, they'd have been sentenced to life imprisonment, finished serving their terms and got out long before this.

PITY FOR THE UNSKILLED

The minstrel parade went swinging along where two husky individuals were assaulting the soil beneath the asphalt with picks, three feet below the surface and over on a side of the street. For the sake of novelty, let us respectively refer to these two industrials as Pat and Mike. They straightened their backs to watch the pageant pass.

Behind the band in the front file were the two proprietors and two highly paid end men. Then trailed a large and assorted company, all in showy parade costumes.

Said Patrick to Michael after the music had died away and they had laboriously resumed work:

"Twas a fine body av men."

"It was," commented his friend, "an' it's a pity that prob'ly not one av thim has a thrade."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 12. — Hundreds who tap oil in the backyard or otherwise, accumulate sudden wealth, trek to Gotham to splurge. The metropolis is considered an outlet for a swollen purse. There are so many ways here of thinning the bankroll.

To New York, these innocents are the new rich and they watch their amusing didoes with a slight lift of eyebrow. Jolly folks, but so bourgeoise, you know. They are legitimate prey for the dressmakers—who tell them casually of Mrs. Astorbilt buying 100 gowns at a clip.

Also for period furniture dealers, interior decorators, sellers of first editions, antique mongers and such. They begin quickly to learn of Rembrandts and Sezannes. To supplant "hired girls" with trim maids with French caps and manners of chilled steel.

Even the bootleggers are soon convincing them there are beverages a trifle more Corybantic than coffee. And Papa in no time has parked his scrap chewing tobacco in the ash can and has learned to select a rose-tinted cigarette from a jade bowl.

They learn rapidly — these newly rich. They want to get on socially and they do not question the price. Some of their antics are uproariously amusing. They tell of one, for instance, who had a silken rope looped from brass stanchions, like those at cafe entrances, at his dining room door.

Another acquired, a Gothic home with sweeping lawns and hedge copse. The lawns stood as epical tribute to the art of the landscape gardener. But the owner was not quite satisfied. It lacked a Frog Crossing touch. So he studied the lawn with iron deer and as an even added conceit had their antlers lighted by tiny electric bulbs at night.

Many of them, as a high life gesture, back a Broadway show. The original butter and egg man along the Rialto was a Kensan who awakened to find a hundred and ten barrel fortune gushing daily. New York may smile, but it would suffer greatly without them. They are the heaviest of all heavy spenders.

The most poignantly pathetic story of mother love instinct comes from a Jersey farmer. A mother bird had her nest in a haystack. The birdlings had just hatched, when fire broke out in the hay stack and afterward the farmer found the charred ashes of the mother bird with her wings stretched out over her brood. The story brought tears to one hard-boiled sinner.

One of those taxi drivers with an habitually abused look, sat static in his cab when I opened the door last evening.

"To the New Amsterdam theatre," I ventured.

"It's a short run. How much of a tip?" he asked. And yet some wonder why it is so many taxicab companies sag into bankruptcy.

More and more are New York executives keeping away from their offices. In many of the highest salaried posts in the town the occupants only visit the office three days a week. Ray Long, the magazine executive, recently wrote a paper to be read before 9,000 executives in which he said, "no one does any thinking in an office." Big executives, no matter how carefully protected, are finding the only way they can escape the drudgery of unimportant details is to stay away. Hundreds have offices fitted up in their homes. Only trusty aides can reach them.

I know an executive who has five "dead" phones on his desk to give the visitor an impression of his importance. Invariably he makes a visitor cool his heels in the outer office. He is the same magnificent bluff who one day hung a card outside his door reading, "Be back in 10 minutes." A man he does not fool wrote under it: "What for?"

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Milk Products Research.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12—Another of the scientific organizations that are formed to advance various industries will shortly open headquarters in Washington. It is the Milk and Milk Products Research Bureau. The north central headquarters of the Bureau have already been opened in Grand Rapids, Mich., and later there will be offices in Battle Creek and in Chicago. This move is being made, it is explained, as the result of several years of investigation and of intensive study of the needs of the milk industry as a whole in the United States and Canada.

The primary object of the Bureau, according to the managing director, W. H. Hassett, is to bring about through educational methods the expansion of the sale of milk as a food to a degree comparable with the sale of other food products.

An effort will also be made to effect the establishment and maintenance of a national standard of purity as applied to milk, and an enlargement of the volume and an increase in the certainty of milk supply. This is carrying out the idea that it is useless to attempt to get the public to use more milk unless there is a guarantee that the milk will be pure, with an adequate supply available to meet the stimulated demand.

People are in general to be instructed as to the dietary properties of milk and as to its necessity in relation to the welfare of children. Farmers and dairymen are to be educated to an understanding and practice of sanitation and hygiene in cow barns and milk plants.

Other objectives of the new Bureau, as announced, include the promotion of new uses for milk, extension of the scientific knowledge of milk within the industry, co-operation with public health officials, medical bodies, and school authorities, the systematizing of transportation and marketing, improvement in the breeding and feeding of herds and in the growth of feed crops, and statistical and other forms of research that will benefit the public and the industry as well.

Data Already Compiled.

In 1925, according to government statistics cited by Mr. Hassett, the total consumption of whole milk in the United States was 116,505,395,000 pounds. Of that amount, 25 per cent was consumed in the production of dairy butter, 11 per cent was used in making butter on the farms of the country, 17 per cent was used in making cheese, condensed milk, evaporater milk, ice cream, and like commodities, and 47 per cent was consumed by households.

Converted into terms of money, the total value of dairy products that year was $2,740,000,000 while the milk consumed by households aggregated a national bill of $1,287,000,000.

The milk bill is impressive and seems formidable if not prohibitive, but it is pointed out that it amounts to only about ten dollars per capita. That means merely three cents a day, approximately, for each man, woman, and child in the country, and it is not enough, in the opinion of the men who are back of the new organization.

"Despite the fact that milk is praised by the highest medical authorities as an ideal food," says Mr. Hassett, "and despite the fact that it is essential to private and commercial baking and cooking, less than 8 per cent of the total annual food bill of the 115,000,000 inhabitants, more or less, of this country was expended for milk."

The remedy for this state of affairs, which he characterizes as deplorable, is the improvement of marketing or sales methods. Florists met such a situation by adopting the slogan, "Say it with flowers," and it is possible, although Mr. Hassett does not suggest it, that the new organization of milk producers will come to the front with an equally effective sales appeal to the public.

One of the greatest difficulties encountered by the milk industry as a whole, it is said, is the insufficient and uncertain supply. That would seem to call for more and better cows, but the layman is often in error in such conclusions and in this instance the remedy authoritatively proposed is "so to improve the present contact of producers and distributors as to assure both a ready and constant market." There does not seem now to be a widely organized effort to regulate the flow of milk from the farm to the dairy or the plant, it is pointed out, and it is that lack of reliability which harms not only the productive and distributive factors of the business but ultimately the public, as well.

Variation of Standards.

Variation of standards of milk throughout the United States especially exerts an obstructive influence upon the industry, says Mr. Hassett.

"The need for a milk standardized nationally never was so urgent as at the present time. The benefits that would ensue from such standardization are obvious. The trade as a whole would benefit, as would the public. Once the latter were assured that the milk it consumes is of the highest national standard, once the maximum bacterial count were nationally defined, once the butter fat content were nationally established, once the manner in which milk is handled were fixed by a national standard of sanitation, the confidence of those who consume milk, especially in the household, would be very greatly increased."

The properties of milk not only as a nutrient but as a therapeutic should be more widely known, adds Mr. Hassett. What the right application of milk will do for the sick, for the lean, and for the fat, what the vital importance of milk is in relation to the health of the community and that of the nation, has not been sufficiently emphasized, in his opinion. He holds that the public should be disabused of the apparent idea that "milk is just milk," and that an industry so necessary to the life of all people should occupy a corresponding place in the economics of the nation.

There are those who might argue that to increase the milk diet of the country is in effect putting everybody on the waterwagon, in view of the fact that cows' milk is 87 per cent water. However, it includes 4 per cent of fat, 3.35 per cent of protein, 4.90 per cent of sugar, and 0.75 per cent of ash, and the combination seems to be fundamentally nutritive and healthful.

Just what good milk is was defined in the United States Pure Food and Drugs law, accepted by most of the states:

"Milk is the fresh, clean, lacteal secretion obtained by the complete milking of one or more healthy cows, properly fed and kept, excluding that obtained within 15 days before and 10 days after calving, and contains not less than 8.5 per cent of solids-not-fat and not less than 3.25 per cent of milk fat."

It is stated also by authorities of conceded standing that all milk except that produced under extraordinarily good sanitary conditions should be subjected to modern low temperature pasteurization before being used.

It is great to have a clear skin

A clear skin means everything to the popularity of men and women. You cannot get it with external applications. If you are unfortunate enough to have pimples or skin blemishes, in justice to your friends and yourself, you should treat the source of the trouble. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

Thousands have been enabled to free themselves of unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S. S. S.

You owe it to yourself to try S. S. S. It helps Nature build up and corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S. S. S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S. S. S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run down people to give S. S. S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S. S. S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable.

FIND CHEMISTRY NO BUGBEAR

Chemistry is as attractive a subject to Miss Mary C. Watson, of Paducah, Ky., and Miss Eleanor Franke, of Louisville, Ky., high school students, as cooking and sewing is to most girls. Both won prizes in an essay contest sponsored by the American Chemical Society. Miss Watson wrote on the subject, "The Relation of Chemistry to the Enrichment of Life," while Miss Franke's subject was, "The Relation of Chemistry to Forestry."

"MOTHER" WINS AT CERAMIC

Belle Bennett, who created history with her superb work in "Stella Dallas," has added new laurels with her magnificent performance in "Mother," which opened today at the Ceramic theatre. "Mother" is a simple and wholesome, yet absorbing, story of a woman who sacrifices herself for her family, only to find them growing away from her when prosperity arrives, and Miss Bennett's artistry makes her literally live the part.

Few pictures in recent months have achieved such a powerful effect as does this straightforward but intensely dramatic film. As a study of the results of too much success and too much jazz, it is thoroughly worth while, and with the crowning touch of Miss Bennett's perfect interpretation and the support of a splendid cast, it is a masterpiece.

Much of "Mother's" appeal is due to the remarkable direction of J. Leo Meehan, the man who made the notable screen version of Gene Stratton-Porter's "Laddie," "The Magic Garden," and "Keeper of the Bees." Meehan has an unusual flare for the "homey," natural type of story, such as both Mrs. Porter and Kathleen Norris, the author of the famous novel which suggested "Mother," wrote, and he has reached great heights in his handling of the story values and the fearless presentation of the theme.

Crawford Kent heads the supporting cast, and given a superb portrayal of the architect who forgets his wife's share in his success. William Bakewell, a youngster of immense promise, is splendid as the wayward son, and little Joyce Coad, Mabel Julienne Scott, Charlotte Stevens and Sam Allen are perfectly cast in their respective role. Dorothy Yost wrote an excellent adaptation and continuity of the story suggested by the Norris' novel, and Allen Siegler, the cameraman, deserves a word of praise for the marvelous photography.

Four Frigidaires Minute Turned Out By Dayton Company

Four Frigidaires a minute are now being turned out in the plants of Frigidaire Corporation at Dayton, according to information received by J. A. Trotter, local dealer. This is a production of 2,000 units a day, which taxes the capacity of the factories recently enlarged through a $20,000,000 expansion program.

"It has been estimated by Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, that four out of every five electric refrigerators now being installed are Frigidaires," said Trotter. "This subsidiary now ranks second in the General Motors group in unit sales, an illustration of the overwhelming acceptance which has been accorded electric refrigeration by housewives of America.

"Carrying out its policy of larger sales and lower prices, Frigidaire recently announced a new household model, selling at the lowest price in the history of the business, and designed to appeal to hundreds of thousands who have been awaiting a Frigidaire of standard quality, selling at a popular price.

"The amazing growth of Frigidaire sales, which are reaching twice their 1926 volume, reflects the convenience and dependability of Frigidaire and its desirability from a health stand point.

"Other recent additions to the line which include electric water coolers and a heavy duty compressor for use in commercial installations, have extended the benefits of Frigidaire to wider fields, which in the past have been primarily dependent upon outside ice supply."

HARD WATER + MEL'O = MAKES SOFT WATER

IT'S a tragedy. A hard-water tragedy. And it happens in many kitchens every day. It happens in many laundries too, and in many bathrooms.

Why does that scummy ring form in dishpans, washtubs, bathtubs? Because the water is hard! Soap used in hard water combines with the hardness and makes the scum. Add more soap; but the scum remains.

In the dishpan this scum forms a glaze of grease on the dishes. It makes them hard to wash. In the laundry tubs it gets into the clothes. It clings to the fabric. No amount of rinsing can get it all out. In the bathtub and washbowl it makes extra work.

But put a teaspoonful of Melo in the dishpan and that greasy scum won't form. See how easily the dishes wash, how they sparkle, how soft and smooth your hands are. Put a tablespoonful in the washtub and see how wondrous white the clothes are. Put a pinch of Melo in the wash basin and a ring won't form no matter how dirty the hands are. Put two tablespoonfuls of Melo in the bathtub and you won't have to scrub the tub after taking a bath. And my, how pleasant the bath will be!

Keep a package of Melo in the kitchen, in the laundry, in the bathroom. It takes the place of the old-fashioned rain barrel. Get it at your grocer's.

The water in East Liverpool is 9 times as hard as it should be. Two tablespoonfuls of Melo will soften a bathtub full of water. Two tablespoonfuls in the washtubs. One teaspoonful in the dishpan.

HOPE FOR TWO FLIERS CENTERS ON NEWFOUNDLAND

NUNGESSER'S CRAFT MAY BE IN WILDERNESS

Naval Aviators Think Both Men are Dead.

FARMER'S REPORT

NEW YORK, May 12.—Hope for the French fliers, Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, centered today on Newfoundland where, if they landed, they may still be alive in the wilderness. The most optimistic naval fliers do not believe they are on the surface of the ocean if they were forced down at sea Monday.

The possibility that the fliers may have landed in the Canadian wilderness is based on reports from Harbor Grace that a farmer there distinctly heard the exhaust of an airship at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Harbor Grace was near the line of flight of the aviators.

Dirgible Joins in Search.

It has been more than 100 hours since the aviators hopped off and, according to their own schedule, they are three days overdue here.

Despite widespread search by navy and merchant ships and airplanes all the way across the Atlantic not a trace of the missing airplane has been found.

The U. S. navy dirigible Los Angeles, which crossed the Atlantic from Germany to this country in 1924, was offered by the navy department to join the search today. The dirigible was under orders to proceed from the air station at Lakehurst, N. J., and cruise along the coasts of Long Island and southern New England.

It now begins to look as though the attempt to make a non-stop flight from this city to Paris is going to develop into a sensational contest. Aviators Lloyd Bertaud and Clarence Chamberlin are all set for their hop-off at Curtis field on Saturday morning at 2 o'clock, weather permitting.

But another aviator, Charles A. Lindbergh, of San Diego, Calif., is racing towards this city in a Wright motored Ryan monoplane and he plans to set out for Paris as soon as possible after he reaches Roosevelt Field, Long Island.

Bellanca Plane Tuned Up.

CURTISS FIELD, GARDEN CITY, N. Y., May 12.—Sudden activity behind locked and guarded doors of the Bellanca hangar here today resulted in reports that Clarence Chamberlin and Lloyd Bertaud were preparing to leave immediately on their non-stop flight to Paris. Chamberlain said they would certainly start at the latest tomorrow morning and the hour of starting has been tentatively set at 1 a. m.

News from St. Louis that dare devil Lindbergh was winging his way to New York with the intention of stopping for gas and then going on to Paris resulted in the sudden spurt of activity at the Bellanca hangar.

Seach for St. Roman.

RIO JANEIRO, May 12.—Search along the Brazilian coast for Captain St. Roman, the French aviator who has been missing for one week since he took off from St. Louis, Senegal, to fly across the Atlantic ocean, has been given up.

Experts here believe that St. Roman was forced down in mid-ocean and that his plane was soon swamped and all on board lost.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Annie Christensen.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Christensen, 71 years old, who died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Fred Russell, Industry, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Shepler-Murray funeral home, Beaver, in charge of Rev. A. J. Alexander, pastor of the Beaver Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Beaver cemetery.

Two Girls Crushed to Death.

CLEVELAND, May 12.—Ruth Weisberg, 8, and Elaine, 5, her sister, were dead here today as a result of being crushed between an automobile and the front of a shoe repair shop. The little girls were looking in the window of the shop when a car, driven by a woman, careened up over the curb and crashed into them. The woman was to be questioned by police and authorities today.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our bereavement in the death our son, brother and grandson.

Especially do we thank Rev. Davidson, Mrs. Pearl Emmerling, Mrs. James Turner and those who so kindly donated the use of their cars.

which is to be paid into the state general revenue fund. The Myers bill is estimated to increase the revenues paid into the general revenue fund about $2,000,000 annually.

Insurance companies, it was stated, are swamping the governor's office with requests that the Myers bill be vetoed by the governor.

Pass Action on Veto.

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—Ohio legislative leaders today were considering the advisability of requesting the solons when they reconvene here May 31 to re-pass, over the governor's veto, at least some of the items cut out of the Williamson general appropriation bill by Governor Vic Donahey.

The governor, it was announced, blue-penciled items, totaling about $1,-$015,000, from the Williamson bill, thereby reducing from $53,500,000, the amount fixed by the legislature, to $49,485,000, the amount which may be expended to defray costs of state governmental operations during the 18-months' period beginning July 1, next.

It was intimated that Donahey expected to slash about $8,000,000 from the Williamson bill, including $3,000,-000 for state aid for weak school districts, $250,000 as state aid for county health districts, state aid for salaries of county superintendents and assistants, and $12,000 for traveling expenses of the American Legion band of Ohio to Paris this year, on the ground of insufficient state revenues.

Passage by the legislature of the Dodd bill, providing for a 6-10 mill direct state tax levy, however, induced the governor to change his mind, it was indicated.

Other Measures Adopted.

Other measures passed by the Ohio legislature at its session here this week are:

The Sullivan bill, increasing the state gasoline tax from two to three cents per gallon, after eliminating a senate amendment which sought to reduce the annual state license fee on pleasure autos 50 per cent.

The Chappelear-Herbert election reform bill (requested by the governor) including provision of optional permanent registration of voters in all cities and registration districts throughout the state.

The Lefever bill (requested by the governor) empowering the state utilities commission, with the approval of the governor, to appoint attorney-examiners and to employ and discharge its own employes.

The Norton bill, amending the Norton highway recodification act, by eliminating certain provisions objected to by governor Donahey, and providing that the governor may remove at will the state highway director; requiring use of prison-made brick on the highways, and increasing the authority of the state highway director in grade crossing eliminations.

The Jones bill (requested by the governor) providing for an adjustment of the tax rate of a taxing district situated partly in two, or more, counties, and defining the fiscal officer in townships as the township clerk.

Passed Over Governor's Veto.

The solons pased the following bills over the governor's veto:

The Lewis bill, authorizing the governor to order heads of state departments to keep expenditures within legislative appropriations.

The Gillen-Burnett bill, transferring control of the state schools for the deaf and blind from the state welfare department to the state department of education.

The Stone-Nickels bill, permitting school boards to lease school lands for the purpose of sinking gas wells.

Jurors Disagree In $50,000 Action Against Chaplin

NEW YORK, May 12.—After deliberating more than seven hours, the jury in the $50,000 damage suit brought by Leo Loeb against Charles S. Chaplin, disagreed and was discharged early today by Federal Judge Bondy.

Loeb alleged that Chaplin had plagiarized part of a scenario called "The Rookie," using parts of it in the film comedy, "Shoulder Arms."

Chaplin testified that he had not used any part of the Loeb scenario while filming "Shoulder Arms," but had worked only from his own notes.

Motions will be submitted in a few days and it is likely that Loeb will seek to bring another action.

Six Bodies Found In Ruins of Home Of Texas Lodge

DALLAS, Texas, May 12. — Six bodies had been recovered today from the ruins of the Odd Fellows' lodge building here, which was destroyed by fire and an explosion last night.

Fifty-six persons were injured, some seriously, in the blast.

Star Football Player Dead.

CLEVELAND, May 12. — Found hanging by his necktie in the bathroom of a downtown hotel, Robert C. Droege Jr., 26, star football player for Case in 1921, was dead here today. Droege had been in California for several months, and announcement of his suicide was the first his parents knew of his return home, they said.

To save his old home, W. Brewer, aged 82 of Woorage, Australia, stayed day and night in a creek with a bucket extinguishing sparks and cinders that were blown from the bush fires that destroyed a large area recently.

C. A. LINDBERGH PREPARES FOR OCEAN FLIGHT

Captain Leaves St. Louis for Roosevelt Field.

NON-STOP JUMP

Tiny Metal Plane Will be Used in Crossing Atlantic.

ST. LOUIS, May 12. — Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, who flew here yesterday from San Diego, Calif., hopped off this morning at 8:12 o'clock for Roosevelt Field, Long Island. From there he will set out in his tiny metal plane for a non-stop jump across the Atlantic.

After Lindbergh's departure President Knight, of the Air club, who is chief backer of the St. Louisan's trans-Atlantic attempt, said the flyer probably would pass over Terre Haute, Dayton, Columbus, south of Pittsburgh, Allentown, Pa., and Newark, N. J., before he reaches Long Island.

The plane in which Lindbergh will attempt his trans-Atlantic flight is small in comparison with others that have made the attempt. Its wing-spread is only 46 feet, its gross weight less than 5,000 pounds and its gasoline capacity 45 gallons. It is, however, built for efficiency and endurance.

Every inch of the surface, even the hob-caps, is stream-lined to break the wind resistance. The propellor is made of steel.

The instrument board is a maze of sixteen turncock valves governing fueling control. A periscope, an air cushion seat, a sky-light over the seat and celluloid windows at the side are other features.

The cost of the "Spirit of St. Louis," is estimated at $15,000.

On his trans-Atlantic flight, Lindbergh will take 450 gallons of gasoline and 27 gallons of oil. He will take a route over Nova Scotia and Newfoundland where he will get his last glimpse of land until he passes over Land's End, westernmost point in England.

Attorney General Rules on Search of Autos for Liquor

COLUMBUS, O., May 12.—In the absence of facts upon which to base a reasonable belief that a law is being violated, no officer has the right to stop persons driving automobiles, or to search autos without a search warrant, according to a ruling given today by Attorney General E. C. Turner to B. F. McDonald, state prohibition commissioner.

"Where an officer has reasonable grounds to believe, and does believe, that liquor is being transported, in violation of law, and that, before a warrant could be secured, the automobile would be beyond the reach of the officer, with its load of illegal liquor, such officer has the right to search such auto without a warrant," Turner told McDonald.

Gregory's Victor Orchestra Plays at Park Dance Tonight

Dan Gregory's Victor recording orchestra will make their final appearance at Virginia Gardens, Rock Springs park, tonight.

The orchestra will go from the park to the new Capitol theatre, New York, where it will play during the summer.

The Gregory orchestra opened its engagement here Monday evening, when the Trianon club, of Chester, gave its second annual dance. Large crowds were present at both the Tuesday and Wednesday evening dances.

Three Men Killed In Mountain Feud; Five are in Jail

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 12.—Three men are dead here today and five men, two of them deputy sheriffs are being held in the Mingo county jail as the result of the renewal of a long standing mountain feud at Dingess, an isolated mountain town in Mingo county.

Two of the men were killed outright and the third died of wounds early today, after being brought to the hospital at Welch, W. Va.

The dead are W. M. Conn, 42, railroad section foreman; James Conn, 40, his brother, and W. M. Hampton.

Those held in jail are Deputy Sheriffs E. Wellman, and Hugh Wellman, and Noah Wellman, Troy Wellman, and Pat Dingess. Noah Wellman was slightly wounded.

According to state troopers investigating the shooting, the trouble started when the two deputies and their three companions attempted to serve warrants on the Conn brothers on a charge of firing shots into the Wellman home last Monday night.

said a state engineer's report this morning from Simmesport, at the junction of the Atchafalaya and Old rivers. Thousands of levee defenders continued their heroic struggle against the inexorable waters as the machinery of rescue and relief speeded its preparations to cope with disaster in the six rich and fertile parishes beyond the slowly crumbling protecting wall.

On the east bank of the river, eighteen miles south of Baton Rouge, a public health service vessel stands guard today over the famous Carville leper colony, where 250 patients are endangered by the rising waters.

Guard Leper Colony.

Citizens of the community patrol the levees, watching for new points of seepage. Weather reports predict a rise of 10 to 13 inches in the Carville region before the crest of the flood passes. Members of the district levee board are manifestly annoyed but insist their dykes are safe. A break in the east bank levees south of Baton Rouge has been held by federal engineers to be far less likely than a crevasse in the west levees.

Panic prevailed in the Carville district for several hours last night when a single sand bag was washed out of the levee. A member of the dike patrol who chanced to be on the spot was swept from his feet and rolled down the inside of the 25-foot wall before the inrushing water. Picking himself up from the mud he ran down the road in the manner of Paul Revere broadcasting on a long lung length, "Crevasse, crevasse." The community for five miles around was aroused in a flash. Hundreds gathered about the deserted patrol, threw in a few sand bags and stopped the flow. The incident is symtomatic of the nervous state in which land owners and tenant farmers throughout several thousand square miles in Louisiana have lived for almost a month

THE BUCKEYE NEWS

NO. 18. MAY 12, 1927. VOL. 1.

Do any of you readers know where we could find a good assistant editor for the Buckeye News? What if we got sick or something! Wouldn't that be a calamity?

You may not think so, but we thought this was funny: A minister asked a man why he didn't attend church. "Well, I'll just tell you," replied the back-slider, "the first time I went they poured water in my face, and the second time they tied me to a woman and I've had to keep her ever since.'

"Yes," said the minister, "and the next time you go they'll probably throw dirt on you."

An East Liverpool man was trying to teach his wife to drive the car the other evening. She was pretty nervous. Suddenly she yelled, "Here you take the wheel, here comes a tree!"

The following item appeared in a metropolitan newspaper recently: "Ikey Ikenstein accidentally drove his car into the parade of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. He would have been thirty-eight years old next October."

And we extracted a laugh from this one: Young Brown got married. On the first pay day he gave his wife $20 of his $25 salary and kept the balance. Next week he reversed the process. "But Harold," exclaimed the bride, "how do you expect me to get along on $5.00?"

"Hanged if I know," he replied, "I had a rotten time myself last week. Now it's your turn."

CIRCUS AIDE DIES SUDDENLY

Arthur Farmer, 56, W. L. Main Ticket Agent, Stricken.

Arthur Farmer, 56, supervising ticket agent for the Walter L. Main circus, which exhibited here yesterday, died in the City hospital at 9:10 o'clock last evening from a complication of diseases.

Farmer had been ill for several days but refused to leave the show. His condition became critical at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and he was taken from the circus cars near the Patterson Field show grounds and removed to the hospital in one of the McLain-Yellow cabs.

Heads of the circus, at the conclusion of last night's performance, contributed $360 to pay the hospital bill and funeral expenses. A representative remained in East Liverpool to take care of the body when the circus left for Sharon, Pa., at 2 o'clock this morning.

The body will be shipped to Evansville, Ind., where a daughter is said to reside.

Two Persons Dead In Ohio Following Unusual Tragedy

ZANESVILLE, O., May 12. — Two persons were dead today at Sarahsville, Noble county, near here, following an unusual tragedy.

Charles Swain, 50, farmer, shot and killed himself instantly, after slaying the 5-month-old daughter of Miss Retta Highman, daughter of a neighboring family.

Swain's son, Samuel Swain, 21, was married in April to Miss Mildred Grimes, and immediately afterward, Miss Highman filed a statutory charge against the youth.

The elder Swain late yesterday called at the home of Miss Highman's parents, called the young woman to the front porch, and begged her to withdraw the charge. She refused and Swain suddenly drew a revolver from his pocket and shot the baby through the head, killing her instantly. Swain then shot himself. The baby's clothing caught fire from the gunshot, fired at close range, and her body was almost consumed by fire before relatives of the mother put out the blaze. The mother was uninjured.

Dorothy Mackaye To Defend Name in Kelly Murder Trial

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—Dorothy Mackaye awaited her turn today to take the witness stand at the murder trial of Paul Kelly. Miss Mackaye will defend her name, linked with that of the young film player in an asserted love motive for the fatal beating of her husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy star.

Although the actress has been summoned as a state witness, her attorneys announced she will be given an opportunity to refute imputations in the testimony of Ethel Lee, her Negro housemaid.

The servant girl, placed in the witness box yesterday to give an eye-witness account of the fist fight, which, the state charges, caused Raymond's death, dealt the defense a double blow when she told of intimate associations between Kelly and the actor's wife.

ANOTHER TRIAL ON WELLSVILLE CHARGE DENIED

Judge Lones Overrules Motion in House Burning Conviction.

ASKS $2,000 BOND

Man Sentenced to Serve Term in Reformatory.

Motion for a new trial, filed by Nathan Jones, of Wellsville, who was recently tried in common pleas court on an indictment charging him with burning property with intent to prejudice insurers, yesterday was overruled by Common Pleas Judge W. F Lones at Lisbon.

As a result, the case will be taken to the court of appeals, according to action by the accused man's counsel. Attorney W. A. O'Grady. The bond has been set at $2,000, which, if given, will act as a stay of execution.

Counsel for Jones declared that the confession of Randall Jones, a brother, introduced in the case as evidence against the prisoner, was in error, as the signature, it was asserted was obtained under duress by police.

Judge Lones held that if common pleas court had committed error, he would be glad to have the appeals court act in the case.

Jones was found guilty by a jury and was sentenced to serve from one to 10 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 12.—After an irregular opening, in which prices of the active stocks were decidedly mixed, the market moved forward in the early trading today, under the lead of the Nickel Plate rails, the motors and a few specialties. Oil stocks also showed the effects of the latest move for conservation of crude oil supplies, most of the independent oils selling at fractionally higher prices.

Buying of the Nickel Plate rails was based on prospects of government approval of the preliminary plans of the trunk line consolidation, in which it is proposed to segregate the stock holdings of the various roads from the operating company. New York, Chicago and St. Louis — the parent Nickel Plate — jumped 10 points to 205½ in the first period, while Chesapeake and Ohio, Erie and Pere Marquette, the other members of the merger combination, were in demand at higher prices.

Chrysler led the low-priced motor shares with an advance to above 46. General Motors was quiet on the eve of an important meeting of the directors of the company, at which an extra cash dividend is expected to be authorized. Hudson and Packard sold higher.

The resumption of a million-car-week in domestic railroad traffic was hailed as a favorable indicator of current trade. Good results are expected to follow the conferences of the oil production leaders seeking to curtail production in the country as a whole. Call money renewals were unchanged at 4½ per cent, with money market conditions generally unchanged.

COMMISSIONERS LIST HEARINGS

Highway Projects Will be Discussed Here Next Monday.

Furthering the 1927 road improvement program, the county commissioners will hold two road hearings next Monday. The first of these hearings will have to do with the improvement of the Elkton-Clarkson road and the second will refer to the improvement of the Rogers-Negley section of the Lisbon-East Palestine intercounty highway.

The contract for the grading of that section of the Elkton-Clarkson road is expected to be let by the commissioners within the next few weeks, the plans and specifications for this part of the project having already been worked up by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. With the final surfacing of the Elkton-Clarkson road, which will cross the new East Liverpool-Youngstown road, it is believed that Lisbon-East Liverpool traffic will then be diverted over this route instead of following the Lincoln highway through Madison township. The commissioners have not been advised by the state highway department when the four-mile stretch of brick road in Madison township will be repaired, but it is taken to be certain that no permanent improvement of this section will be authorized for several years on account of the financial condition of the state highway department. In the meantime, work grading and surfacing the Elkton-Clarkson road will be rushed through under the major road improvement program as determined upon several years ago.

The road between Lisbon and Elkton is to be surfaced with a brick top, this being placed on the present macadam roadbed, and the narrow brick road extending into Elkton is to be widened to meet the requirements of increased traffic.

The Salem-Canton road via North Georgetown and Homeworth will be improved next year as there remains but two miles to receive a concrete top. This route will give a direct route between Salem to Canton, eliminating traffic through Alliance and making Homeworth a more central traffic point.

Antonio Moreno Also Stars in "Flaming Forest."

The stirring history of the founding of the great Canadian Northwest Mounted Police, an army of a few who conquered the lawlessness of an almost unexplored empire within the confines of the Dominion of Canada, has been reproduced on the screen by Cosmopolitan and will be seen at the American theatre today, Friday and Saturday under the title, "The Flaming Forest."

The picture, directed by Reginald Barker, famous for his direction of great out-of-doors films, is a screen adaptation by Waldemar Young of James Oliver Curwood's immortal story of the establishing of law and order in a territory of three hundred thousand square miles by some three hundred brave men who dared death daily and always "got their man."

The picture, filmed largely in Canada and Montana, is interpreted by a cast of twenty celebrated players with Antonio Moreno and Renee Adoree in the leading romantic roles. Among the other celebrated players of the cast are. Gardner James, Oscar Beregi, Tom O'Brien, Bert Roach, Claire McDowell, Clarence Geldert, William Austin, and little Mary Jane Irving.

South of the Atlas

BY MARSHALL P. WILL
AUTHOR OF THE VALLEY OF STONE and RIDDLE OF HOOGLE ETC. ETC.

BEN MANSOUR, cosmopolite and old friend, saying he must see him at once.

GILES, Mansour's servant, drives Larry to his friend's house. While the two are talking a turbanned head appears at the window. Mansour opens it and a Moor steps in. He gives Mansour a ring as a token, set with a magnificent ruby. Mansour throws it on a table. Through the Moor it is revealed that Mansour is a Moor and ruler of his tribe. For some reason he must die but he insists that his son rule after him. Mansour says that he has taken poison and the Moor goes, tossing into the room a tiny tiger—the Striped Death. Mansour asks Grenfall if he will go to Morocco, find the Temple, endure the Ordeal and crush the Group—all of which is Greek to Grenfall. He is to find a certain Omar ben Medjad. Then Mansour dies. Giles has instructions to open a certain trunk and take care of the letters he will find therein.

CHAPTER FOUR.
Gray Dawn—and After.

Grenfall was aroused by the return of Giles. The man was visibly grief-stricken and now a new trouble seemed added to his woes.

"Beggin' your pardon, Mr. Grenfall, but 'is trunk ain't a trunk at all; thut is, I mean to say, sir, when I opened it I found it 'eld only a chest of some outlandish sort, and I'm blessed if I can make out any way to open it. You'll 'ave to 'elp me, I'm a-thinkin,' sir."

Silently, Larry rose, casting a final glance at the body of Mansour, then turned and followed Giles. The servant led the way up a flight of stairs, to a bedroom with appointments so Oriental that Grenfall could almost have believed himself at that moment in the heart of Morocco or Araby. In a corner he glimpsed the trunk, its lid thrown open, while beside it on the floor was a square chest, heavily carven.

"There it is, sir," Giles pointed to the chest. "There don't appear to be any lock on it; one of them 'eathen treasure boxes, I call it."

Still silent, Larry dropped to his knees, beside the box, his eyes lighting with interest. He recognized it as a chest whose lid opened only through manipulating secret springs; it was of a pattern popular among the shorfa of Morocco, who used them as treasure chests.

He ran his fingers over the carving, pressing tentatively here and there, seeking for a crack that might indicate where the lid opened; but he looked in vain. After an hour he had exhausted every idea he had as to how the box opened. He had used every artifice he had picked up in his studies of Morocco, but in the end he rose, baffled, and turned to Giles.

"Fetch a hatchet, or a hammer, Giles, I'm afraid we shall have to burst it open."

With the words he stopped to lift the box, in order that he might set it more conveniently for the contemplated battering. Grasping either end he straightened, and nearly fell over backwards. The upper framework of the chest had come loose in his hands, allowing the bottom to drop out. Somehow, he had manipulated the springs without having been aware of it. The chest was open.

Giles, breathing heavily, joined him and together they began explorsing the contents. Larry dropped his hand on a heavy, stiff, paper packet, lifting it to glance at the superscription. It was addressed to Giles, and without a word he handed it to the servitor, who ripped it open with shaking fingers.

"'Ere, Mr. Grenfall, part of it is for you. See, this 'ere envelope says, plain as day 'Giles, deliver this to Mr. Grenfall;' so there, sir, it's yours, and I 'ope it means something worth while to you, beggin' your pardon, sir."

Larry grasped the envelops, opening with a quick motion of his muscular fingers. Several sheets of paper dropped out and he saw that for the most part they were legal instruments directing disposal of Mansour's estate after certain things were settled. One sheet bequeathed to Giles a sum of money that fairly staggered the little man, then Larry picked up a page that was meant for his eyes only. This he read last:

"When you read this, dear friend, I will have passed from the life that you know. The inclosed instructions will care for all affairs I leave behind me that concerns the world you and I have known in the course of our friendship. It is my desire that Giles take his share, return to England, buy himself a fine house and live out his life in comfort, and may Allah be with him for he was a faithful friend and a competent man. As for you, friend of my heart, I have already told you, I hope, what I wish you to do for me. If it chances that my passing comes before I see you, kismet! and perhaps it is just as well. But if I have told you—and you alone will know now—I urge you with all my heart to carry out my last desires.

"Above all things, find the Temple and give to Omar ben Medjad the casket I have already told you about. Omar will restore its contents, the Sacred Eye, to he who must have it, for without it, no man may rule in Barbary.

Now dear friend, farewell, as you Americans say, until we met again."

SHERIF OMAR BAN MANSOUR
EL-RASMAZE

The letter finished, Larry let his eyes linger on the signature. Here, Mansour had revealed his true identity; he was a sherif in Morocco and if one could judge by what had already transpired this night, he was a very powerful sherif.

Familiar as he was with Morocco and its history, Larry had never entertained any fancies about Mansour's name, thinking of course, that the first name was Benjamin. The man was dark, but no darker than Grenfall himself; which is so unusual a thing among the Berbers, who are of the white race, and never by word or deed had he intimated he was anything other than what he had always pretended to be to Larry— cultured English gentleman.

Pondering over what Mansour had told him and thinking, too, of the letter, Larry awoke suddenly to a realization that the man had made absolutely no detailed mention of the Temple; on the other hand he had made the puzzle in Larry's mind more confusing.

It was very perplexing, and to make matters worse, if that were possible, there was not to be had a clue of any sort that might help to clarify the situation. Perhaps, if he could round up one of the turbanned Moors of the limousine, or the fellow who had brought the token and the message, he might force from him, or them, some information that would dissolve the mists that hovered over all the events of the crazy, eerie night.

On second thought, he imagined that to capture one of the turbanned men would do little good, especially if there were anything of a religious nature connected with their presence here. A Moor would die rather than yield up any word that might be deemed inimical to his religious beliefs. For a long time Larry conversed with Giles, seeking to learn all he could from the little man that might be helpful in understanding the present state of affairs, but Giles, it turned out, knew little or nothing about Mansour's real life and activities. In the end Larry gave it up and rose.

"We must allow things to remain as they are until after the funeral, I imagine, Giles. Then, since it was Mansour's wish, it will be best that you go to England. For the present, we will return to the dining room and fetch his body here."

He stopped and set the lid of the chest in place, sensing that Giles had left the room; then he followed the servitor, reaching the stairs in time to hear a startled call:

"Quick, Mr. Grenfall; 'urry, sir!"

Larry dashed into the room and found Giles standing with ashen face and shaking knees, pointing to where Mansour's body had been lying on the divan an hour earlier. At the same instant that he saw Giles' pointing hand, Larry was conscious of a sold draft blowing on him; sensed that the room was cold. Then he re-echoed Giless' cry of bewilderment.

Ben Mansour's body was gone!

A window—the one which had admitted the messenger—was standing open and through this came chilling gusts of wind and swirling snow. Outside the gray dawn was beginning to break across the Jersey flats, giving early prospect of a dreary and cheerless day.

Larry reached the window with a half-dozen swinging leaps, then was out in the storm, seeking footprints in the drifting snow. As well to have sought a certain grain of dust in a sand storm. The high wind and constantly falling snow had obliterated every trace the vandals' feet might have made.

Dashing around the corner of the house, Larry looked toward the spot where he had left the limousine. It, too, was gone.

Despair in his heart, resolved to call the police as quickly as he could reach Mansour's telephone, he returned to the house, closing the window behind him tightly. Already Giles had a fresh fire kindled on the hearth. Larry started for the telephone and was interrupted by Giles' voice, coming from the hearth:

"As soon as the fire gets a-goin' a little better, Mr. Grenfall, we'll 'ave a bit of 'ot coffee," he said. Larry was amazed at the matter-of-factness of the man.

"Great heavens, Giles" he exclaimed, "how can you speak of coffee when—"

Giles' uplifted hand, from which a piece of paper fluttered, stopped him. The little servitor rose to his feet now and handed this paper to Larry.

"Read it ,sir, and you'll see why I 'ave ceased to worry about 'is body."

Larry fippped the paper open in front of him and read a few lines of badly scrawled English, with queer spelling and queerer punctuation:

'Fear noating, we tak oar Sherifs body home and, noating shall stoop us, we will give hes the hoanor, due a Loar of the, Beliefers, it will do no Good to seek us foar we tak the Body to Barbary; and you, can not find us.'

The missive was unsigned, but Larry sensed it had been written hastily by one of the turbanned men who had made the night one of mystery. He thrust the paper in his pocket his mind a jumble of fears and fancies, his brain over-keen because of the horrors of the night and lack of sleep. He realized that Giles' attitude had been the only proper one to take, as a result of the message, for knowing the Moors as he did, he knew that they would use every wile, resort to every sacrifice, to carry out their ends. He did not fancy now that it would be well to arouse the police and have them sek the fellows. No, it probably would come to pass that Ben Mansour would be more honored when buried by his own kind, than if the funeral was held here. He turned to the servitor:

"I think, after all, you are right in not worrying, Giles. Prepare the coffee, by all means—also, some sandwiches. After we have eaten, I intend thoroughly ransacking the chest upstairs. Strange that we heard nothing when they were taking Mansour's body out; stranger still that we did not hear the motor of the Pennant Twelve when they drove off with it."

"I don't know as I'd call it strange, sir," Giles ventured, a little timidly. "The storm was 'owlin' someut fierce, if you recall, Mr. Grenfall, and it 'd deaden the sound of the motor. Us bein' upstairs, away from this open window that we found, there ain't much about it so strange that we didn't 'ear the bloody 'eathens when they come in, to my way of thinkin.'"

"We'll let that pass for the present, Giles. While you prepare us a bite, I shall go back and search the chest.

Supposing you fetch my share of the food to me there."

"Very good, sir," said Giles, and turned from the room.

If Larry had expected to find anything in the chest that he had not previously seen, he was doomed to disappointment. For the most part it held only small personal trinkets of Mansour and a few gold coins. Among what he imagined had been Mansour's personal jewels he discovered a small, golden muck balsam flower of seven petals, and on the tip of each petal was a faint, Islamic symbol. These he examined carefully. After a time he looked up and muttered softy:

"The Seven Marabouts of the Seven Tribes."

"I wonder what on earth that means? What seven tribes? Lord knows there are many in Morocco—stay, though. Beyond the Atlas—by jove, that's it—the Seven Tribes of the Berbers—the seven principal tribes, I mean. Could Mansour have been the sherif over these? It looks as if he had."

He dropped the trinket in his pocket as Giles entered with sandwiches and coffee, then, his mind going backward to earlier in the night, he bade Giles set the things down and serve him, then dashed from the room.

The Token was where Mansour had thrown it, and even the gray dawn that was now flooding the room could not smother the hot fires that pulsed in the ruby's heart, where it reflected back the tossing flames on the hearth. Larry picked up the ring and slipped it on his finger. As though obeying some instinct, he turned the stone toward his palm. Silently he rejoined Giles and gulped down scalding cups of black coffee.

"I shall return to my apartments, Giles," he said, when, his appetite appeased and his brain cleared by the potent strength of the coffee, he shoved back his chair. "As for you, I fancy it would be best for you to go directly to England, in accordance with Mansour's wishes. No doubt this will never come to the attention of the authorities, and we shall, of course, say nothing ourselves. If you think you need me before you sail, come to my rooms, but you must hasten for as rapidly as I can wind up some personal affairs, I shall do so, then I shall sail myself."

"You will be goin' abroad, Mr. Grenfall?"

"Aye, Giles; to Morocco. Your late master made me promise to do certain things for him there. I shall do my best to fulfill his wishes, though I'm dashed if I know what it is all about, or how or what I shall do when I get there."

Drive the car that established 10 world records—
5000 miles in less than 5000 minutes!

A STUDEBAKER BIG SIX

Only by owning a Commander can you avoid taking Commander dust on hills and highways

FROM one Coast to the other, The Commander is smashing records of speed, records of hill climbing, records of sales!

5000 Miles in Less Than 5000 Minutes

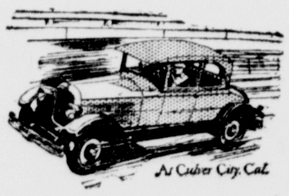
In a recent sensational test at Culver City, California, under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, Harry Hartz and three other noted pilots drove The Commander—a strictly stock, fully-equipped enclosed car—5000 miles in 4909 minutes, total elapsed time, establishing ten new world records.

This is better than mile-a-minute speed for 81 consecutive hours and 49 minutes—the fastest speed for the farthest distance ever attained by any stock car!

The Commander Out-Climbs All Other Cars

In another public contest, five automobile dealers in Batavia, N. Y., challenged Studebaker's repeated statement that The Commander will out-perform any car selling within a thousand dollars of its price. The scene of the contest was a long hill near Batavia with an average grade of 10%.

The Commander won every test made—creeping test, standing start and flying start. Then, to cap the climax, The Commander carried seventeen men, weighing 2794 pounds, to the top in high gear, the speedometer reading 35 miles at the start and 22 miles at the finish.



Climbs 10-Story Building

In Washington, D. C., the Capitol Garage dedicated its new building by inviting all the automobile dealers to engage in an indoor hill-climbing contest—a climb of twenty ramps, ten stories in height.

The Commander wound its way easily up the steep ramps in high gear—and 5000 people cheered its victory over the field. After the contest, 102 drivers of different cars tried to equal The Commander's time-record—but every one failed!

What These Records Mean to You

You probably will never need mile-a-minute speed for 5000 miles—you may never want to enter a hill-climbing contest. But these remarkable records are further proof of what we have demonstrated time and again on Studebaker's 800-acre Proving Ground—that The Commander in every phase of every-day driving will out-perform and out-live any other car, six or eight, selling for less than $2500.

Harry Hartz wired us, after setting 10 new world records in The Commander:

"Based on my experience driving my personal Studebaker Commander and in making the recent record run at Culver City Speedway with a Studebaker Commander stricly stock model, it is my opinion that it will maintain any given speed, up to 65 miles per hour, longer, more smoothly, and at less expense per hour traveled, for gasoline, oil and repairs, than any other stock automobile now being built in the United States."

The best evidence for you of the thrilling performance of The Commander is what the car will do in your own hands. Get behind the wheel of a Commander as our guest—without strings or obligation. Learn for yourself why the Studebaker Big Six now far out-sells the combined totals of all other cars in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower. 'Phone us now and take command of The Commander today!

By Davis J. Walsh.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—Bostonian, winner of the Preakness; his stable companion, Whiskery, which ran third; J. N. Camden's Hydromel, the still hopeful Scapa Flow; W. J. Salmon's Black Panther, the Bradley pair, Boo and Bewithus, and that overnight contender, Rolled Stocking, of the Parrish barn, were the stand-out candidates today, forty-eight hours before the running of the great Kentucky Derby. Of course, every eligible at the Downs is a dark horse but gentlemen are known to like them both light of head and hair and those designated are dark like table linen. They will get the play at the one-way windows—always in but seldom out.

Their rise to prominence has served to create the usual division between the sections, emphasized to a greater degree in the Derby than in any other race. Hydromel, Rolled Stocking and the Bradley entry are the hopes of the west; the Whitney pair, Bostonian and Whiskery; Black Panther and Scapa Flow are from the east.

Form is Served in Derby.

It would be an apt commentary on the customary attempt to beat the game at the track if none of the admitted contenders paid off after the race. But the fact of the matter is that form is served much more rigidly in the derby than in the Preakness, the only corresponding race of the early season when form is mostly the bunk. Still, the boys know very little about some of those mentioned and maybe that is as good a reason as any for giving them a play.

Rolled Stocking, for example, has run one good and one bad race this year. But the good one was no later than Saturday last. So the boys are thoroughly convinced. The colt beat Osmand six lengths in a derby trial at one mile in 1:38 3-5. Very good for the Downs. Yet if he steps out Saturday the way he did at Lexington to finish fourth behind Hydromel, Buddy Bauer and Aregel in a field of four he won't be a race horse; he'll be a pursuer.

Neither Boo nor Bewithus has been out under colors in some time. The former was good at New Orleans, the latter was better at Lexington. But, if the colts weren't owned by E. R. Bradley, they probably would attract as much attention as a man with a head.

Bostonian's Record Good.

Bostonian's only start as a three-year-old, barring an indifferent performance at Jamaica, was a Pimlico on Monday. True, he won the Preakness impressively and without post mortems but, outside of that, you have to go back to his two year-old campaign to get a line on his racing. This shows that he ran often and well, being rarely unplaced. He seemed to show a fondness for going a distance, which, if true, will do him practically no harm in the derby.

All in all, we will have to accept the belief that Bostonian is quite a colt; at least, until he proves to be otherwise.

Whiskery, the other Whitney entry, may or may not improve on his Preakness effort. If he doesn't, he is out like a man gone to lunch. Even taking into consideration the fact that possibly he burned himself up racing Scapa Flow into submission, the horse was in a position to win in the stretch if his drive was that of a prospective champion. Sometimes, however, the Preakness failure becomes a derby success and perhaps that will prove true in Whiskery's case. I am betting the other way.

Camden Colt Impressive.

Hydromel and Black Panther, judged on their records, are much the sounder play. The Camden colt not only won that Lexington race at a mile and 70 yards from Rolled Stocking and the others in the clinking time of 1:42 but did 1:38 4-5 for the mile at the Downs on Monday in winning the prospect purse after a slow start. He really didn't find his running until the last quarter but seemed to have plenty left at the end. He was carrying only 107 pounds at the time but many now regard this horse as the real contender from the west.

Black Panther ran well at a mile and 70 yards, this season, winning twice and placing second in three races before the Preakness. He was forced to take the overland route in the big stake from first to last; yet had enough left to finish fourth. This horse has had to come from behind in all his races this year, so he may be a slow breaker. At that, he beat Bostonian in finishing second to Saxon at Jamaica.

As for Scapa Flow, his hope, if any, would seem to be a heavy track. He ran well in the mud at Pimlico last Friday but the going was bad in the Preakness and so was Scapa, which just about makes it a stand off. On his Preakness form, the Jeffords colt won't stand the racket for a mile and a quarter.

WANTED BAN TO HEAR BOTH SIDES

DETROIT, May 12.—Although expressing regret that Ban Johnson, president of the American league, did not see fit to "hear both sides of the case," Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, today declared that he regarded the action of Johnson in fining Ty Cobb and Al Simmons $200 each as a closed incident. The players were fined for their part in an argument with Umpire Emmett Ormsby in the Boston-Philadelphia game in Philadelphia last Thursday.

McTigue-Heeney Matched.

'BUCH'S' OLD 880 MARK STILL GOOD

Local Lad Shares Half-mile Record With Perkins.

East Liverpool high school still has a share in equity in Columbiana county interscholastic track and field records which, in recent years, have shown a leaning toward the northern end of the county.

In 1916 Ernest Bucher traveled once around the oval at the county fairgrounds to make the half mile in two minutes and five seconds and the record stood until 10 years later, last year, to be exact, when Perkins, Salem's stellar middle distance man, negotiated the 880-yard jaunt in exactly the same time. The two hold it jointly now.

Other county records are still pretty well distributed among the schools of the northern end of the county as Blue and White followers await the appearance of another "Ernie" Bucher.

Bucher was so far above the rest of the field in the half mile in the several years in which he ran that he was really never forced to win. In other words, it is the opinion that if Bucher had ran up against an opponent of something near his own calibre, the chances are that his mark of 2 minutes and five seconds would have been reduced. As it was the local lad had little trouble in outclassing the field.

Records at which county schools will shoot in Saturday's annual meet follow:

220 Low Hurdles—Gregg, Salem, 1926, time 27 seconds.

Pole Vault—Allen, Salem, 1926, height, 11 feet, 9 5-8 inches.

Half Mile Run—Jointly held by Bucher, East Liverpool, 1916, and Perkins, Salem, 1926, time, 2 minutes, 5 seconds.

440 Yard Dash—Gaines, Columbiana, 1920, time 52 seconds.

Mile Run—Campbell, Wellsville, 1916, time 4 minutes, 47 4-5 seconds.

OBERLIN TRACK TEAM AT WOOSTER

WOOSTER, O., May 11.—Wooster meets Oberlin at Wooster in a dual track meet and a baseball game next Saturday. These contests will be the athletic part of the twenty-third annual Color Day program. Wooster's other athletic contests for the week are a baseball game with the strong non-conference Ashland team at Ashland on Wednesday and a tennis match with Mt. Last week Wooster's track team won the triangular with Reserve and Mount. Wooster scored 92 points, Reserve 53 and Mount 17.

THREE SOFT BALL TILTS ON TONIGHT

Three More Friday Will Complete Week's Card.

Klondyke, Northside and Newell will provide the locale for three Recreation League engagements scheduled for tonight.

The National Furnitures, defeated in their first start of the season, will tackle the Ohio Powers on the Klondyke diamond, in Harvey avenue. The Powers won their opener and in the event of a victory for the Furnitures tonight, the two clubs would rate a .500 percentage.

Heimies, another undefeated squad, will tangle with Smith News, which lost its opener, the setto being billed for Northside.

Laughlin, East End, will make its debut on the Newell grounds against the Newell Laughlin entry.

Harry Davies will umpire at Klondyke, Lorah at the Northside and Waters at Newell.

On Friday's assignment, Bulger Drugs and the Review-Tribune will clash at Klondyke. One of them is sure to land in the .500 class after this encounter, both having won their openers. The Workingman's Store will play the Y. M. C. A. at Upper Columbian park and Roselawns will meet the Johannes Drugs at Northside.

The umpire assignment is: Davies at Klondyke; Waters at Upper Columbian park; and Lorah at Northside.

DELANEY MAY BE FIRST FOR JACK

NEW YORK, May 12.—The possibility loomed today that Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, may be Jack Dempsey's first opponent when the former heavyweight king returns to the ring. It is said that Delaney will inform the New York state athletic commission tomorrow that he intends to vacate his title and enter the heavyweight ranks.

Paulino Uzcudun, the basque heavyweight, is scheduled as Dempsey's first opponent, but if Paulino fails to dispose of Ed Keeley in their bout in Boston, his bout with Dempsey would cause no great rush to the turnstiles. In that event Dempsey would take on Delaney instead of Paulino, it was pointed out.

Rickard already has announced that Dempsey has agreed to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney fracas if victorious in his first bout. It is now believed that Dempsey will start east from California about the middle of next month.

Babe's Eighth Homer Gives Yanks Win Over Browns.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 12.—New York's baseball teams are setting the pace in both leagues today. The Giants handed the Cardinals a 10 to 1 drubbing yesterday and knocked the world's champions out of first place in the National League, while Babe Ruth's eighth home run of the season enabled the Yankees to beat the Browns again, 4 to 2, and keep their two game lead over the White Sox intact.

The Giants slaughtered Jesse Haines, who had been leading the league pitchers with five victories and no defeats, while the Cards couldn't hit McQuillan with a sashweight. Hornsby hit his sixth homer and drove in five runs in all.

Ruth's four base swat ruined Ernie Nevers, who twirled for the Browns. Ernie was good but Urban Shocker was better. The Browns are now in seventh place.

Dr. Ted Lyons of the White Sox successfully amputated the three game winning streak of Horace Lisenbee, youthful Washington twirler. Lyons held the Senators to four hits and Ward hit a double with the bases jammed as the Sox won, 4 to 1.

Ban Johnson plastered a $200 fine on Ty Cobb and Ty promptly vented his ire on the Tigers, clouting two doubles and stealing a base. The Athletics won, 3 to 1, Quinn outpitching Holloway.

Hack Wilson delivered his sixth homer but the Cubs lost to the Phillies, 5 to 2. The Phils advanced to third place, while Chicago flopped back into second division.

Cincinnati took a lease on the National league cellar by losing to Brooklyn, 7 to 5. Both Pete Donahue and Jess Petty, the starting pitchers, took their showers early by request.

The Boston Braves had the Pirates on the run when rain halted the game in the eighth with the score tied at four all.

Rain held the Indians and the Red Sox idle.

Play Laughlin and Turk Nash at Columbian Park.

Four contests—two on this side of the river and two in West Virginia—will mark the conclusion of the first successful week of City Industrial League competition.

Manager Ed McVeigh's American Billiards are slated to entertain the Newell Laughlin nine tonight in the East End. This engagement was to have been played, naturally, at Klondyke, the Billiards' home grounds, but with the state line lot still in dubious condition, Manager McVey thought it best to transfer the tilt to Columbian park, home ground of the K. T. K. aggregation. The Klondyke infield has not yet been smoothed out to the complete satisfaction of the Billiards' officials.

On Friday night the Billiards will play the Turk Nash club and it is possible also that this game, too, will be taken to Columbian park, with K. T. K. idle.

The other encounter on Friday night's layout will send the Wellsville Nash Motor nine into action against Pilot Dailey's Home Laughlin combine, on the Newell lot.

Sports Done Brown

By Norman E. Brown.

PAOLINO UZCUDUN, bounding Basque of the Pyrenees, who stepped from meager living with his fists in his homeland to a fortune in the rings of New York over night, may not be a clever boxer or a hard hitter, or a match for Jack Dempsey.

BUT HE IS NOT DUMB.

Wherefore there should be rejoicing. This sets him apart from most of the cauliflower ear artists.

The other day Tex Rickard, who has been playing a sort of glorified shell game with all and sundry heavyweights, met with Senor Paolino and associated parties, to sign him for two fights—the first with Jack Dempsey and the second with the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney fight (provided Senor Paolino won in his first effort).

Senor Paolino was enthusiastic about signing. He offered only one suggestion. That was that, in exchange for signing up for the two fights he receive a posted forfeit from Rickard of $25,000 to protect himself should the battle with Jack Dempsey fail to come off.

Mr. Rickard thought of him in terms of whippersnapper, upstart and other things. Paolino explained calmly that it was merely a business proposition with him. While training for his fight with Dempsey, July 9, he could not accept other engagements and failure of the Dempsey bout to materialize would deprive him of a chance to earn a few honest nickels in some other promoter's ring.

Now this was the first time in the history of the ring game that a mere pretender to the throne had asked the promoter to post a forfeit. It has been the habit for years for the defending champion to insure himself against loss of time, vaudeville engagements and tooth paste ads by demanding that the promoter post a juicy forfeit several months in advance. Rickard is already $200,000 "in" on Gene Tunney's next appearance, against whoever may be sent into the ring against him. Tunney, in signing over the right to his services for a year to Rickard made the promoter agree to deposit 100 grand last winter and another like sum this spring as an indication of good faith.

But for Paolino, a "second rate" fighter, based on his record to date, and a greenhorn in American high ring finances, to come across with that straight left to Rickard's pocketbook—why it was unheard of. It just isn't done, that's all.

But Paolino and his advisers had the right idea. The Spaniard must capitalize on his name while he still remains the colorful newcomer that he is. Two socks on the button by a couple of hams and his Spanish atmosphere will be wasted on the desert air.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

EGYPTIAN ENVOY TELLS HOW NILE IS FORCED TO BEHAVE

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Mahmoud Samy Pasha undoubtedly has told more floods "where to head in at" than any other man in the United States.

SAMY PASHA

Mr. Samy is Egyptian minister in Washington.

Regularly every year, since long before the first pharaoh began building pyramids, the Nile has started to go on the rampage, just as the Mississippi did this year.

With equal regularity, the river control folks have taken the venerable stream in charge, adapted all the solid part of it to soil fertilization, utilized all they wanted of its liquid ingredient for irrigation purposes, and emptied the rest out into the Mediterranean, as casually as you'd drain the water out of your bathtub.

OF course it mustn't be assumed that the Nile control system was as perfect when Moses was still living in Egypt as it is today.

Even then it possibly was better than our present Mississippi river system, but M. Samy doesn't feel that that's boasting much about it. Now, however, he assures us, it's as dependable as a flivver factory.

They simply don't have Nile valley floods, Mr. Samy says.

They have irrigation, because they need it, but it's regulated to a bee's knee.

M. SAMY put all his trust in levees.

They have gates in them to let out such water as the crops require—that much and no more—and that's all they do let out.

They've stronger levees than the Mississippi's, and higher. They have a five-foot safety margin, instead of only two feet, as on the Mississippi Some are set back from the river half a mile or a mile and some are not, depending on circumstances. In places there are two sets.

"Oh, yes, the initial expense is high," agrees M. Samy, "but they pay for themselves."

THERE also are revetments where they're needed, and the river's course is given a certain amount of direction, but in the main the system is one of levees.

As for breaks—

"There's no danger of breaks," says M. Samy, "if leaks are stopped promptly, and that's a mere question of careful watching, and having plenty of men on the job the minute they're needed.

The Egyptian government provides the men by conscription, as for the military service. They don't have to be sent for. They're there. There's a jail penalty for not being.

"It works, anyway," is M. Samy's knock-out answer to all the critics of the system.

M. SAMY isn't enthusiastic over headwater reservoirs.

"From an engineering standpoint it's a wonderful success," says M. Samy, "but ever since it's been in operation, the region it affects has shown a steady decline in cotton and cereal yields per acre.

"I don't know why. Maybe it's just a spiteful trick of nature. At any rate, it's a poor advertisement for storage reservoirs."

The Niles rises in the Abyssinian mountain. They're thickly wooden, now as always. If their trees were swept away, would the Nile still be controllable?

M. Samy shrugs his shoulders. Never having tried it under circumstances, he doesn't know. Yet he has vast confidence in his well-guarded levees It's hard to convince him Mississippi floods are inevitable.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is on e safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Mathews Original Cut Rate who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

Why "90%" Are Still Suffering.

It is a glorious thing to awake with a lively, healthy, energetic body. It is a misery to drag an aching, tired, weary body from a restless, sleepless bed. W. K. Holland, Harlingen, Texas, thus: "I bet that 90% of those suffering from kidney irregularities never take anything for kidney regulation until it is too late, whereas Foley Pills diuretic would be a god-send to them, as they have been to me." A reliable, valuable medicine, constantly in use over 25 years. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. Sold everywhere.
